300,000 MORE ARE ORDERED TO QUIT JOB TODAY

Total to Strike May Pass Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The cotton textile strike, spreading like a prairie fire, today threatened to engulf all other branches of the cloth weaving industry in a mammoth general strike of a million workers.

Approximately 300,000 employes in woolen and worsted mills were today ordered by Francis J. Gorman, head of the United Textile Workers' strike committee, to join the textile workers in their strike at midnight tomorrow. Late today union chieftains were debating a third strike call for all workers in the silk, rayon, and related industries. A decision on this third point is to be reached by noon tomorrow.

May Pass Million Mark.

With roughly 600,000 cotton textile workers under command to walk out tomorrow night, the addition of the woolen unions today brought the total mill employes directed to strike up close to a million. Addition of the 150,000 silk and rayon employes would send the total over a million and close major branches of the cloth industry.

Meanwhile the possibility of a parallel strike in the cotton garment industry grew. David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, left here today for Chicago after instructing Morris Bialis, vice president of the union there, to have all local workers on a strike footing. A walkout in this industry would add 250,000 more to the strike.

As the textile strike spread, fear of communist disorders and uprisings increased. Union leaders, themselves of a decidedly radical bent, called upon their rank and file "to stamp down" the communists who are scheming to turn the industrial unrest to their own revolutionary ends.

Gets Report on Outbreaks.

"We've got to fight the thugs, the lawyers, the tricksters, and the communists," Gorman admitted today when his attention was called to sporadic outbreaks which have already taken place in the south.

Industrial leaders meanwhile were bitterly assailing the government for financing the walkout by putting strikers on relief rolls, feeding, clothing, and sheltering them so that they can persist in their refusal to work.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in a formal statement issued today asked bluntly, "Should the federal government be placed in the position of indirectly financing the activities of labor organizations in their efforts to bring about the complete unionization of industry?"

Puts Spotlight on Relief.

"The textile controversy," Mr. Harriman said, "has brought to a focus fundamental questions as to governmental methods of administering relief. Federal appropriations for unemployment relief are intended to provide for the care of persons in distress because of loss of employment and inability to find other work. But the Federal Relief administration has refused to distinguish between those who are out of work without their own volition and those who are out of work of their own free will through strike."

Shortly before 11 o'clock tonight Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison of the national labor relations board announced the failure of last minute government efforts to prevent the walkout of textile workers. Mr. Garrison's terse statement follows:

"The national labor relations board has kept in touch during the day and evening with Mr. Sloan of the Cotton Textile institute in the hope of arriving at some plan which the board could present to the union for averting the strike, but the board was not successful. The board has no intention, however, of ceasing its efforts to bring about an early settlement of the issues."

Favor Investigating Board.

In the event all efforts to avert the strike fail, government officials are understood to favor creation of a coalition board of three, representing the NRA, the national labor relations board, and the department of labor. This board would investigate the issues of the strike and assess the responsibility, as President Roosevelt's board did in the San Francisco general strike.

Union chieftains moved with precision in calling the woolen strike today and is preparing for the huge walkout tomorrow night. Shortly after Arthur Besse, chairman of the Woolen Code authority, refused Gorman's demand to meet with the union the labor leaders had dispatched in-

79,432 THRONG SEES THRILLING FOOTBALL GAME

College Players Miss 2 Place Kicks.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The largest crowd to attend a sports event this year, 79,432, jammed Soldiers' field last night. These thousands, who overflowed to the edges of the gridiron, saw the first all-American football team ever assembled battle the Chicago Bears, professional champions of the nation, to a scoreless tie in a game presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The result adequately expressed the equality of the players. Brilliant defense, centered around two unyielding lines of behemoths, was the keynote of the struggle. But, despite the alertness of the giant forwards, whose smashing shoulder to shoulder drives piled up impenetrable heaps, each eleven penetrated into scoring territory.

These sorties, a startling third period thrust by the 1933 All-Star Collegians and a successful aerial drive by the Bears, failed because of fumbles.

Field Goal a Foot Off.

Twice the All-Americans attempted to score field goals. The first, a mighty effort by Bill Smith with Paul Pardonner holding the ball on the 32 yard line, might have won the game had he been a bit lucky. As it was, the ball carried far enough, but it passed a foot outside the east goal post.

Smith's second attempt for a field goal was the last play of the game. His kick from the Bears' 35 yard line was partly blocked and recovered by the pro champions.

Neither eleven could muster a concerted ground gaining attack. The Collegians, led by the fleet Herman Everhardus of Michigan and the stocky, black haired Joe Laws of Iowa, however, swept the ends of the Bears' scrimmage line frequently.

In ground gained the Collegians had the better of the argument, but in addition to their own misplays they also found they could not gain when they neared the scoring zone.

From the opening ceremonies, when the players were introduced while spotlights played on the center of the darkened field, until the final whistle, the crowd paid homage to the men whose gridiron exploits are known from coast to coast.

Form Powerful Machine.

For many of these college men it was a final tribute. They responded to the cheers which reverberated from the concrete stands and proved that it was possible to weld together for one evening a fighting unit from the 1933 stars of the nation.

The crowd praised its heroes unstintingly. The huge gathering also gave impartial acclaim to the professional players. On the field the response to the massed thousands was almost unbelievable. Professional and amateur neither asked nor gave quarter. But through all the battle the men observed the code of America's most popular game. They fought hard, tackled valiantly, and blocked furiously; then walked off the gridiron friends.

Breezes from South.

Big Ed Krause of Notre Dame, captain of the starting All-Star team, lost the toss for position. Thus a steady breeze from the south which whipped over the horseshoe circle gave the professional eleven an advantage at the start. But this advantage availed nothing in the early minutes.

Joe Laws was the reason. The All-Stars opened a path for the dodging Iowa star and he carried the ball into the pros' territory. Here possession was lost by a fumble.

Apparently the advance of Laws and his mates aroused the Bears, for near the end of the first quarter two perfectly executed passes placed the ball on the All-Stars' nine yard line. Carl Brumbaugh, the Bears' quarter back, who played the entire sixty minutes, set the pace in this attack.

Brumbaugh Grabs Pass.

First George Corbett threw across field to Brumbaugh for a gain of 18 yards and a first down on the All-Stars' 31 yard strip. A second pass by Corbett was taken by Gene Honanzi, who was downed on the nine yard line.

The stands were in an uproar. Apparently the Bears' famous aerial drive would score. But Corbett on the next play, running wide to his right, tossed a lateral to Bill Hewitt coming around behind, and Hewitt, trying to field the ball with his outstretched hands, stumbled and fell.

REPORT DOUGLAS RESIGNATION HAS BEEN SUBMITTED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Congressional leaders here heard tonight that Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, had submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt and it would be accepted to be effective at an early date.

It was understood that Mr. Douglas has felt for some time out of sympathy with many of the major measures of the recovery program of the administration, and that his resignation was tendered on that account. He conferred with President Roosevelt at the summer White House at Hyde Park earlier in the week, and it was thought probable here that the resignation was offered then.

Mr. Douglas was one of the strongest opponents of some of the expenditures proposed under the recovery program, especially the continuing expansion of the activities of the Public Works administration, of which Secretary Ickes is the administrator. His position was understood to be that expenditures on public works gave relatively small employment in proportion to the great outlays made, which delayed the time when the budget could be brought to a balance.

Five Are Killed When Plane Falls in Storm

Oregon, Mo., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Five persons were killed tonight in the crash of a trimotor Rapid Air transport plane, bound from Kansas City to Omaha, on a road near here.

The plane carried a woman and three men as passengers and had one pilot aboard.

Rapid Air transport officials at Kansas City said the passengers were:

MRS. MAUDE SCHIFFMACKER, Edwardsville, Kas.

DALLAS LEITCH, Omaha.

W. A. TRUELSON, Omaha.

FRANK MAHAN, Kansas City.

The pilot was C. M. Bontrager, Kansas City.

Mrs. Lewis Kurtz, near whose farm home the plane crashed, said it burst into flames upon striking a road embankment and it was impossible for any of the occupants to have escaped alive. The plane was fighting a rainstorm at the time.

Awakened by Storm.

"My husband and I were awakened by the storm," she said.

While they were putting down windows they noted the plane.

"It was flying low just above the trees and was circling as if to make a landing," she recounted.

The plane left Kansas City shortly after 6 p. m. central standard time. It reached St. Joseph about an hour later and remained there until 10:27 p. m. because of stormy conditions.

Mrs. Schiffmacker was the wife of Harry Schiffmacker, a buyer for the Loewenstein Packing company of Detroit. She was on her way to meet him in Omaha.

Sheriff P. J. Louden said all the passengers except Truelson were burned beyond recognition. Truelson's body was thrown clear of the plane, he said.

Identify the Victim.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Dallas Leitch, 19, of Omaha, one of five persons killed in an airplane crash near Oregon, Mo., tonight, was en route home after a visit with friends in Kansas City.

W. A. Truelson, 52, secretary-manager of the Omaha Journal-Stockman, live stock paper, was one of the victims. He was returning home from a business trip to Kansas City.

C. M. Mahan, father of Frank Mahan, is vice president of an Omaha brewery. He said his son was connected with the P-K Wrigley company of Chicago.

ONE IS KILLED, MANY INJURED AS TRAINS COLLIDE

Peekskill, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A fast New York Central passenger train crashed into the rear end of a special holiday excursion train near here late tonight, resulting in the death of one trainman and the injury of a half dozen or more persons.

J. J. Tracy, a brakeman on a Montreal express which struck the special, was killed after the wreck by the second section of the express as he stood on the tracks during the ensuing confusion.

The number of injured was not determined, but at least two—a porter on the dining car of the special and a girl—were taken to hospitals.

Ambulances were called from Peekskill, Ossining, and Tarrytown.

The wreck occurred under a highway crossing at Crugers Station, three miles south of here, at about 10:30 p. m.

GUNMEN TIE UP GRANDMOTHER AND LOOT HOME

Three armed men seized Mrs. Nellie Sittner last night when she answered the doorbell at her home, 920 Margate terrace, forced her into a bedroom, and tied her to a chair. They then ransacked the apartment, taking two watches valued at $75 and $9 in bills. The trio fled when one of them accidentally discharged a pistol.

Mrs. Sittner, who is a grandmother, said that the robbers apparently expected a large amount of loot and tried to make her tell them where more money could be found.

Girl, 15, Slayer of Dad, Held on Murder Count

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Anna Maietta, 15 years old, was recommended held to the grand jury on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury yesterday at an inquest into the death of her father, James, unemployed laborer. He died in the Cook county hospital Thursday from a gunshot wound in the chest, after Anna fired at him in their flat at 1109 South Damen avenue in an effort to defend her mother.

The same jury held that the death of her mother, Mrs. Jennie Maietta, 38 years old, en route to the hospital Wednesday night after she was struck by bullets Anna had aimed at her father, was accidental.

Taken to County Jail.

Following the inquest Anna was taken to the Marquette police station by Capt. Charles Larkin in his personal car, accompanied by two juvenile home matrons, and from there she was taken to the bureau of identification to be photographed and fingerprinted by Policewoman Elizabeth Macauley. Shortly after 6 o'clock the child was taken to the county jail, where she was turned over to a matron and immediately taken to quarters for the night.

Attorney Rinella late yesterday filed a petition in the Criminal court for a writ of habeas corpus to transfer Anna from the sheriff's custody to that of juvenile authorities. A hearing on the petition is scheduled for this morning before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan.

Shouts Her Defiance.

The verdict followed a dramatic recital of the crime and the quarrel between her parents which led up to the shooting. Questioned as to whether she had aimed at her father and whether she had meant to kill him, the small girl, dressed in shiny black, her face pale in its frame of soft brown curls, set her quivering mouth in firm lines, and with glittering eyes shouted in defiance, "Yes, yes, I meant to!"

"And did you mean to kill your mother?" Deputy Coroner Schewel, who conducted the inquest which was held in the Cook county morgue, asked the girl.

"No," she cried, her taut figure crumpling as she buried her head in her arms and moaned, at first softly, her moans increasing to a wild crescendo, while the packed inquest room was filled with the sobs of the women spectators. The girl then sat up and asked, almost in a monotone, her large dark eyes on the opposite wall:

"Ma, ma, what did I do? Ma," she pleaded, her voice rising, "take me with you. Kill me, please."

Her voice then sank to little more than a whisper. "Ma," she repeated in a monotone, "what did I do?"

Women Spectators Weep.

She then leaned back, the heavy, darkly fringed lids closed over her eyes, and she sat with her mouth half open.

Coroner Schewel, who had made several speeches during the proceedings, pointing out that he had a heart and that Assistant State's Attorney Martin Ward had a heart and that the police had a heart, and that all felt sympathetic with the girl, here instructed the jury to disregard the witness' emotional outburst. Women in the audience continued to weep loudly.

"I want to see my mother, please," Anna said, staring into space.

"You can see her as soon as you answer a few more questions," the deputy coroner said, upon which Anna sat up and answered incisively and coherently.

Previous witnesses had brought out the degenerate behavior of the dead father toward his children. A sister, Carmela, 19, an entertainer at the BULLETIN.

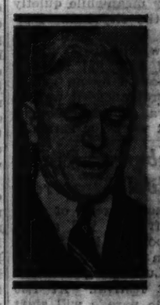
New Orleans, La., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long tonight announced over the radio that he personally had ordered the entire press and the public excluded from the taking of testimony beginning tomorrow in his legislative investigation of the Mayor Walmsley administration in New Orleans.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Sweeping into the city with armed troops who used violence to clear a path, Senator Huey P. Long set out tonight under a proclamation of martial law to investigate his political enemies—the heads of the municipal government of New Orleans.



GOV. O. K. ALLEN

An automobile train with shrieking sirens brought the senator from Baton Rouge, where Gov. O. K. Allen had issued an order calling the militia into active service to protect the legislative investigating committee, of which Long is self-appointed counsel.

The senator and his motor train were met at the city limits by a heavy detachment of National Guardsmen. He was rushed to his palatial home in the Audubon boulevard section to the accompaniment of sirens that pushed traffic to the curb to make way for Louisiana's "Kingfish," who assumed the political dictatorship of the state through laws passed at a recent session of a submissive legislature.

Troops Rush Newspaper Men.

As Long and his guards rushed into Audubon boulevard they spied Frank AHen, night city editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, and E. E. Agnelly, photographer, standing in front of the Long residence.

The troops leaped from their cars and charged the newspaper men with drawn guns. They snatched and confiscated the photographer's camera, tore a part of his clothes from his person and threw him in a truck, where he was held prisoner for 30 minutes, when he was released and ordered to leave the neighborhood.

Allen was seized by another group of troopers who held him for 15 minutes and then ordered him away with the warning that all newspaper men had "better keep clear."

Long Seems Excited.

Long went into his residence, refusing to make any statement and apparently in a state of excitement.

When informed of the incident near the Long residence Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, against whom Long is pointing his investigation, commented:

"It is a fine commentary for soldiers of the National Guard who have been instructed to preserve peace and order to enter a city by committing assault. What can the people expect under these circumstances?

"However, let me assure the people of this city that I will render every protection to our citizens, militia or no militia."

Await Long's Orders.

Members of the investigating committee were at a downtown hotel tonight awaiting orders of procedure from Senator Long. Before leaving Baton Rouge Long had said the investigation would begin immediately, but refused to state the time or place.

He declared that he would have Mayor Walmsley out of office in 60 days and said he had enough witnesses to convict the entire city administration of misconduct in office through associations with the underworld.

Crowds of citizens, learning of Long's dramatic arrival, gathered on street corners. Angry voices were raised in small groups until the entire city was in a state of excitement.

More National Guardsmen, some reports said, were to be brought here from other communities. Supplies of machine guns and ammunition were trundled into Jackson barracks during the day.

Text of Governor's Order.

Troops have been quartered in the barracks since the governor's original proclamation ordering them to hold the city registration office, center of the fight between the Long forces and Mayor Walmsley.

In his proclamation this afternoon the Long controlled governor ordered:

"I hereby call the militia or such parts thereof as may be necessary into active service to protect the committee appointed by the legislature at the extra session of 1934 to investigate into and examine the administration and conduct of the city of New Orleans and the courts sitting in said city.

"This protection to be extended to the members of the said committee, their counsel, witnesses, employes and agents whether in actual session or otherwise at all hours of the day or night.

"To place a commanding officer in supreme command and to call into active service such troops of the militia as may be necessary."

Under the terms of the proclamation, a whole army could be called out to surround the committee which has said it would go deep into the political and personal affairs of all officials of the city of New Orleans.

Some of the officials have declared that they will not submit to an investigation of their personal affairs as it invades their rights as American citizens.

New Orleans has been in a state of partial martial law for a month with National Guardsmen holding the records and the headquarters of the city voters' registration office. The troops stormed the registrar's office, broke in the door and seized the books under a proclamation of Gov. Allen, acting on the advice of Senator Long.

The Rival Claims.

Long said he seized the records to prevent the Walmsley organization from stuffing the books with bogus voters.

Walmsley claimed that Long seized the office so he could strike names from the books of persons that he knew would vote against his ticket which includes in New Orleans two candidates for the United States house of representatives, a judge and a member of the state public service commission.

Walmsley and his old regular organization have sworn in 500 special policemen, making a total of 1,500 armed policemen to use for their protection in the event of hostilities from Long's troops.

Fear Advent of Sept. 11.

So far these armed forces have not clashed, but the populace of New Orleans is looking with fear and trembling on the approach of election day, Sept. 11, when each side has expressed determination to see that its rights at the polls are observed.

At the moment, Huey Long is riding high in the saddle with authority of force and law, but New Orleans is figuratively a powder keg tonight.

Mayor Walmsley meanwhile quietly kept at work in the city hall. During the morning he presided at a council meeting which drew up an ordinance making it illegal for any one to be accompanied by an armed bodyguard. The ordinance—it was no secret the move was aimed at Long—will come up next week for action.

20,000 Luxembergers Ready for Big Festival Tomorrow

The 20,000 Luxembergers of Chicago, with their friends, will gather tomorrow and Labor day in Mueller's grove at the town of Morton Grove for the annual Luxemberg schobermesse, or harvest festival. At 1:30 p. m. tomorrow the parade will start from Rogers Park with bands, floats of floral, fruit, and vegetable displays, and the host of picnickers. There is unusual enthusiasm in the schobermesse this year, since it will be possible for the first time since 1919 to serve the famous Luxemberg Moselle wine and the equally famous Luxemberg Quetsch.

Twin Brothers Quizzed on Oil Royalty Sales

Age Hansen, 1020 Lawrence avenue, and his twin brother Kai, 38 years old, were arrested yesterday and locked up at the detective bureau on complaint of two persons who alleged they had purchased from them deeds to oil royalties which were never delivered. The complainants are Mrs. Margaret Conway, 1337 Waveland avenue, and Joseph Engels, 540 Cornelia avenue. The twins asserted that there was nothing illegal about the transactions and that the investors would get their deeds in a few days.

DOUGLAS DAVIS WINS RACE FOR BENDIX TROPHY

Average Speed Is 212 M. P. H. in Flight East.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Douglas Davis of Atlanta, Ga., veteran pilot flying the tiny red and black low wing monoplane in which the late James R. Wedell set the present land plane speed record, swooped low over Cleveland airport at 3:46 o'clock this afternoon to win the $10,000 Bendix trophy race from Los Angeles. Davis covered the 2,046 mile journey in 9 hours 46 minutes and 41 seconds at an average speed of approximately 212 miles an hour.

The victory was the second feature event which Davis has won at national air races. In 1929, flying a Travelair mystery ship, Davis beat all commercial, army, and navy flyers in what was the first Thompson trophy race.

Fights Head Winds.

Because he was forced to face head winds all the way from Los Angeles and was still further delayed by rain and fog over the Rockies, Davis did not set a new record. The present record, held by Jimmy Haizlip, who made it in 1932, is eight hours and 20 minutes from Los Angeles to Cleveland.

Second and third place winners were, respectively, John Worthern of Pine Bluff, Ark., and Lee Gehlbach of Springfield, Mass. Worthern flew a Wedell-Williams racer with a Wasp 550 horsepower motor and a retractable landing gear. His elapsed time was 10 hours and 3 minutes. Gehlbach flew a Granville, Miller, and De Lackner racer with a 1,000 Hornet motor. His elapsed time was 10 hours and 40 minutes.

Five Others Forced Out.

The other five entrants were forced out before the takeoffs by various difficulties, but have been given opportunity to race the same route tomorrow. Vincent Bendix, aviation accessories manufacturer who put up the prize money in today's race, announced his offer of $2,500 to the first of these pilots to fly from Los Angeles to New York via Cleveland. If one of them sets a new record, the prize will be $3,500.

Those expected to take part in this consolation race are Col. Roscoe Turner, Lieut. Murray A. Dilley of Riverside, Cal.; Jim Granger of Santa Monica, Cal.; S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., and Art Davis of East Lansing, Mich. The race will not affect the distribution of the $10,000 prize money to Davis, Worthern, and Gehlbach. Davis won $4,500 and the rest of original prize money is to be distributed tomorrow among all three flyers, under terms the judges will reach.

Mary Pickford Presents Trophy.

Davis did not fly on to New York after landing here today. Because of the slow time he had made due to bad weather, he felt he had no chance to break Col. Turner's transcontinental record of 10 hours 4 minutes and 30 seconds, which would have been necessary to qualify for $2,500 open to all Bendix trophy race winners who continue on to new cross continent records.

Soon after Gehlbach's plane landed the Bendix trophy was presented to Davis by Mary Pickford, who had flown to the races from Hollywood for the ceremony. Within an hour Miss Pickford was aboard a United Airlines ship bound for Chicago, where she was to remain several days.

Davis' airplane was rebuilt by Wedell soon after the latter set the present land plane speed record of 305 miles an hour last summer. The ship was to have been flown by Wedell in this year's Bendix race, had he not crashed to his death.

As at all the National Air races, the crowd got the biggest thrills out of the military demonstrations put on by the army, marine, and navy air corps units. This year for the first time all three branches of the service were represented by crack flights which put on a display of fighting tactics.

The army's show was put on by the 11th pursuit group from Selfridge Field, Mich., in the newest and fastest military ships now in service—Boeing H-26 low wing fighters.

Demonstrate Attack.

The marine pursuit group from Quantico, Va., flying Boeing H 6 E biplane fighters and Douglas observation planes, demonstrated how fighters attack a flight of slower observation ships.

During the afternoon Clem Sohn and Wayne Wagner, parachute experts, were carried to 10,000 feet and made a simultaneous jump, marking their track of descent with flour. Sohn opened his chute at 1,000 feet and Wagner won the "race" to the ground by falling 300 feet farther before pulling his opening ring.

The finest bit of aerobatics was shown by Gerd Achgelis, German stunt ace, flying a small training type of plane which he brought to the United States from his homeland. Achgelis was inverted during most of his fifteen minute display, flying upside down across the field while gayly waving one hand to the stands.

When Milo Burchman, another stunt flyer, dropped one wheel from his landing gear as he took off there was a gasp from the crowd. Mechanics made a great show of holding up the wheel as if to warn the pilot. Burchman went through his stunts and then stalled his airplane into a perfect landing on one wheel and admitted that it was all a part of his act.

Wins Two Dashes.

Both the short dashes held during the afternoon were won by Lee Miles of San Bernardino, Cal., flying a tiny green Miles-Atwood low wing racer powered with a Menasco 160 horsepower motor. His time in the first, a 50 mile dash of ten times around the five mile course, was 201.76 miles per hour. In the second he flew 206.24 miles per hour over a 30 mile course.

Roger Don Rae of Lansing, Mich., won the parachute drop to a mark, landing 32 feet 10 inches from the bull's eye. Then he flew a Keith-Ryder racer to second place in the 30 mile race at a speed of 204 miles an hour.

CRASH FATAL TO COUPLE.

Boonville, Ind., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Ruth Shelton, 34, died late this afternoon at an Evansville hospital as the result of injuries sustained in an auto accident near here early today. Ray O. Shelton, her husband, who met instant death, was an investigator in the office of the attorney general of Indiana. Surviving are five children.

GENERAL BISHOP IS FOUND SLAIN; VERDICT SUICIDE

Army Cavalry Chief Four Years.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Harry G. Bishop, chief of artillery of the army from 1930 to 1934, was found shot to death this afternoon at his home in 16th street. He was 59 years old.

MAJ. GEN. H. G. BISHOP.

A verdict of suicide was rendered some hours later after an investigation by the coroner. He had been in bad health for the last year and was frequently under treatment at the Walter Reed hospital.

Gen. Bishop was one of the most distinguished army officers and was the holder of citations in two wars. He completed his tour of duty as chief of artillery last March 9, and only today was notified that he had been retired for disability with the rank of major general. Worry over the notification, it was reported among friends, was probably responsible for his act.

Mrs. Bishop, who survives, is the former wife of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the army air corps.

Born in Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 22, 1874, Gen. Bishop was appointed to West Point from Indiana in 1893. After a year in the infantry he was transferred to the field artillery. After nearly 40 years of an arduous army career he rose to be the chief of that branch of the service.

Gen. Bishop saw service on the Mexican border during the disturbances in 1916 and when the United States entered the world war was made a brigadier general. He commanded the 159th field artillery in France and later was transferred to the Third artillery brigade in command. He received the distinguished service medal for his record during the Meuse-Argonne offensive and was made an officer of the French Legion of Honor.

After the war he served as chief of the Philippine department. He returned to the United States in 1925 to command the 15th field artillery at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He was in command of the Hawaiian department until his appointment as chief of field artillery.

Plane Record to Buffalo Cut to 2 Hours 38 Minutes

A new air speed record between Buffalo and Chicago was established yesterday when Earl Ward, general superintendent of the American Air lines, piloting a new Vultee transport plane, flew the 498 miles in 2 hours 38 minutes and reduced the record established last June by 8 minutes.

YANK KIDNAPED BY BANDITS AFTER WRECKING TRAIN

10 Japanese Are Killed in Attack in Manchukuo.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 1 [Saturday].—John Johansen, American film salesman, today was reported kidnaped in a bandit attack on a Chinese Eastern railway express train 15 miles south of Harbin. Dispatches said that 10 Japanese civilians were killed, six kidnaped, and 18 Manchukuoans, including three women, injured.

Two associates of Johansen, a Japanese, named Kmatsumoto, and an unidentified Manchukuoan were among those kidnaped, said the report, which was published here by the Rengo [Japanese] news agency. Johansen is on the foreign sales staff of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film company.

[A Shanghai dispatch said Robert Lurs, Manchukuo representative of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, was also kidnaped. It added that J. J. Russell, another American of the Tokio office of the company, escaped when the bandits failed in an effort to force the door of his compartment.]

The attack occurred early Thursday morning on the Harbin-Hsinking [Changchun] line of the railway. A two hour battle in the darkness between 100 bandits and the Japanese train guard followed the derailment, which was caused by rails being torn up along a considerable section of the line.

Four coaches smashed into each other and were overturned. In the confusion the bandits attacked the passengers, firing machine guns and rifles. The Japanese guards finally succeeded in driving off the bandits, and word was sent to Harbin of the attack. Two trains were rushed from Harbin, but the bandits had disappeared with their captives.

The Japanese foreign office today announced that 31 citizens of Soviet Russia arrested last year and this on charges of communistic activity were expelled from the country on July 11. The announcement added that 64 Russians are now imprisoned on charges of fomenting terroristic plots and inciting incidents on the Chinese Eastern railway.

ALTITUDE FLIGHT IS POSTPONED BY WILEY POST

Wiley Post, holder of the round the world speed record, yesterday postponed the takeoff of his projected assault on the present airplane altitude record of 47,560 feet, indicating the attempt may not be made until tomorrow.

The stocky, one eyed flyer was close mouthed about his plans, declining to give the reason for the postponement. He appeared to be taking things easy while mechanics worked in a hangar at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport in Glenview, making final adjustments to the delicate accessories to the engine on his Winnie Mae, the Lockheed Vega plane in which he circled the globe.

It was considered likely that Post might make another test flight today to try out the special uniform he will wear to combat the sub zero temperatures and rarefied air five miles above the earth's surface. Some of those close to Post thought it possible that the flyer, in the event the suit was found to be adequate, might continue upward in a record attempt.

$450,000 AUGUST PAY IS GIVEN TO COUNTY WORKERS

Four thousand county employes received $450,000 yesterday in payment of their services for the first half of August. Salaries for the last half of August will be due today, but the county is without funds at present to meet the obligation. Yesterday, however, was the first time in more than three years that the county employes were paid up to date, according to Controler Michael J. O'Conner.

Meanwhile the big pay day for teachers and other school workers continued at 130 North Wells street. Five hundred employes called for checks totaling $730,000 during the day. The distribution of the pay, financed by a $22,300,000 RFC loan, will continue through next week. Between 2,000 and 2,500 teachers have not yet called for their checks.

NATION ALARMED BY SINCLAIR VOTE, DECLARES BECK

Calls New Deal "Just a Socialist Misdeal."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

California's selection of Upton Sinclair, Socialist, as Democratic nominee for governor, has unmasked the New Deal as a Socialistic "misdeal" and has rung the alarm bells for conservatives in all parties, in the firm belief of Congressman James M. Beck, Republican, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Beck, who is a former solicitor general of the United States and is leading expounder of the constitution in the house at Washington, predicts that America is on the threshhold of a political revolution of unusual scope. He maintains that the tide will turn in the November congressional elections.

Socialist Sinclair, he declares, is simply a bit more outspoken than Washington brain trusters, who are camouflaging with high sounding phrases their objective of rebuilding America into a socialized state.

Alarm Bell to All.

"The nomination of Mr. Sinclair by the Democratic party in California has been to conservative Americans of all parties like an alarm bell in the night," said Mr. Beck yesterday at Republican senatorial committee headquarters.

"We had known already that the Democratic party had turned its back upon the traditions of Jefferson. But few of us would have supposed that the Democrats in any state of the union would have nominated a candidate who is an out and out Socialist, if not a communist.

"A stick may start an avalanche, and a single incident will often transform a situation almost overnight. The Sinclair nomination is such a threat to the economic welfare of America and the perpetuity of our form of government that patriotic Democrats everywhere will resent the acceptance of that nomination by the administration. This acceptance is quite logical, for Mr. Sinclair is only a little more courageous in expressing the objectives of this administration than are those who conceal their objectives behind empty expressions.

Lawyers Fear Outcome.

"I have recently returned from the meeting of the American Bar association in Milwaukee. It comprised over 1,500 lawyers, representative of all parties and of all sections of the country. No one could attend its sessions without realizing that by significant votes, by the applause accorded to speakers who defended the constitution, and by the conversation of members in the lobbies and hotels, that a large majority of these men, without respect to party, were opposed to the radicalism of the present administration.

"When I say that the thoughtful men of this country are in a mood of rising and militant protest I am not merely referring to the highly educated. The highly educated man may be incapable of clear thinking, as the brain trust has so well demonstrated. The thoughtful men belong to all classes. The workingman who has not a job is now beginning to consider whether the paralysis of confidence due to the radical policies of this administration is not preventing him from getting a job by damming up the current of credit.

Birthright for Pottage.

"The thoughtful farmer, even though he receives a small subsidy, is beginning to wonder whether he is not being forced to sell his birthright of independence for a mess of pottage.

"The workingman who has a job, as he sees its purchasing value steadily decrease by the rising prices of the necessities of life, is also doing a great deal of thinking. These are thoughtful men, as well as those of the so-called 'educated classes.'

"We are at the beginning of a political revolution of exceptional magnitude. Its first results will be shown in the November elections—and this, notwithstanding a subsidized governmental ballyhoo and the wide distribution of public funds to purchase votes. The turn of the tide will come in November, and it will, in my judgment, move as a resistless current in the next presidential election.

Believe in Constitution.

"The American people believe in their constitution and its political philosophy. They remain individualists and they will not be contented with an administration which differs in degree but not in kind from the dictatorships in other nations.

"When I visited the World's Fair today I was much impressed by an inscription in the Ford building, which, in itself, is an extraordinary vindication of American individualism. The inscription was: 'The recovery we need is the recovery of the spirit of American independence.'

"That truth will restore the Republican party to power in the nation and save our form of government from destruction."

Grant Venue Changes in 4 Wheaton Liquor Cases

Four men charged with violation of Wheaton's new liquor ordinance were granted changes of venue yesterday when they appeared before Police Magistrate Frank E. Herrick of Wheaton. The four are Dominick Di Vito, C. B. Crothers, William F. Snyder, and Ralph Attig. All were arrested on Aug. 23 in a series of surprise raids. Their cases will come up for hearing on Sept. 14 before Justice of the Peace Bertram E. Rathje of Wheaton.

Jumps Into River 'Just for a Swim'; Goes Free

A man who gave his name as Joseph McInerney, 28 years old, 5601 South Peoria street, doffed his hat and coat and plunged into the river from the upper level of Wabash avenue yesterday afternoon. He was rescued by the bridgetender, Norbert Majewski, 4539 South Albany avenue, his assistant, Joseph Turner, and Policeman William Breningham. At the Central station he said he merely wanted to go for a swim. He was released.

COUNTY G. O. P. LEADER OUSTED BY PARTY CHIEFS

Deals with Democrats Charged.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Paul W. Rothenberg, Republican county committeeman from the 24th ward since 1928, was declared ousted from that party office yesterday.

PAUL W. ROTHENBERG.

The action was taken by the organization committee of the central committee, a body of ten committeemen of which William H. Reid of the 16th ward is chairman. Seven of the ten members were said to have been present and the vote was reported to have been unanimous.

This summary procedure, while almost unprecedented in the G. O. P., has been resorted to by the local Democrats as recently as within the last two years in cases of party irregularities. In this instance it is intended both as a punishment for Rothenberg and as a warning to two or three other committeemen suspected of trading with the enemy.

Charge Interparty Deals.

"The evidence of Rothenberg's deals with the Democrats was incontrovertible," said a member of the organization committee.

"A delegation of 20 headed by Solomon Goldberg, president of Rothenberg's own ward club, appeared and presented the charges. In substance they were that he has no less than twenty jobs on Democratic pay rolls and that in the last primary he called in his precinct committeemen holding those jobs and when they all appeared they were severely criticized by Ald. Jack Arvey, Democratic committeeman of the ward, and were ordered to lay off.

"We also know that there are about 6,000 fraudulent names on the registration in the books and we are informed that a recent canvass of Rothenberg's own precinct showed a total of 146 dead names on the poll books. With conditions like this it would be easy to deliver the ward to the Democrats as has been done in the past, although it used to be overwhelmingly Republican territory."

Name New Delegates.

For the time being at least the 24th will be represented in the councils of the party by a committee consisting of Golden, former Judge Emanuel Eller, Alfred Rueben, a candidate for congress from the 6th district two years ago, and Emanuel Kolkey.

The Eller ward organization, which hitherto has been a separate unit, will amalgamate with the regulars under the new plan.

The organization committee assumed full authority to oust Rothenberg, basing its position on a provision of the central committee's constitution which makes it the judge of its own members.

Plan Big Day at Fair.

The entire Republican county committee met later in the day and took steps to boom Constitution day at the Fair on Sept. 17. Tickets are to be sold by the ward committeemen at a bargain rate—$1 entitling the holder to admission to the Fair and to twenty-two concessions.

The indications are that the occasion will be largely a Republican demonstration though James A. Reed, former United States senator, will be the speaker of the day. The chairman will be Hanford MacNider of Iowa, former national commander of the American Legion and former minister to Canada. So far as is known the Democratic organization is taking no interest in the celebration.

Idle for Year, He Gets Job and Falls to Death

Frank Haddon, 24 years old, 2715 West Adams street, was killed yesterday when he fell from the roof of the Von Humboldt school at Rockwell and Division streets. He was repairing a chimney when he lost his balance. Until he was given the repair job he had been unemployed for more than a year.

No Confirmation

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Herald-Tribune said Marilyn Miller, musical comedy star, was reported along Broadway today to have married Chet O'Brien, a former chorus man, but confirmation was lacking as Miss Miller could not be found.

Miss Miller, who withdrew recently from the cast of "As Thousands Cheer," has often been seen in the company of O'Brien, described by friends as "a handsome young actor of 23."

Last Saturday O'Brien confided his wedding plans to a few intimates, but whether the ceremony was performed Monday as scheduled could not be learned.

ROBBERS KNOCK VICTIM IN HEAD; SEIZE CAR, $600

Jack A. Hannagan, 38 years old, 1142 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, was seized by three men at Grand and Harlem avenues late yesterday afternoon, robbed of more than $600 and his automobile. His captors tossed him into the forest preserve in River Forest after knocking him unconscious.

Hannagan, a collector for the Chicago Butchers Packing company, 216 North Peoria street, halted at a stop light and one of the three robbers leaped on the running board of his car. He was ordered into their automobile with two of the men while the third took possession of his car. The robbers drove south.

Perhaps an hour later the River Forest police were notified by an anonymous telephone caller that a man had been tossed into the woods near Thatcher and Chicago avenues. The police took Hannagan to the Oak Park hospital, where it was said his skull may have been fractured.

ROOSEVELT AND TREASURY MEN STUDY FINANCES

Must Meet Maturities of 1,750 Million.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today devoted himself to conference with treasury officials on the necessity of meeting government maturities of 1 billion 750 million dollars.

JEFFERSON COOLIDGE.

A series of Liberty 4¼s totaling 1 billion 200 million dollars, has been called for redemption on Oct. 15, and a 550 million issue of short term notes carrying interest of 1½ per cent matures on Sept. 15. The government must meet these obligations, and in view of the fact that the treasury's stabilization fund recently had to be used to support the market for its own the President.

Confers with Coolidge.

Besides Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. the President conferred with Jefferson Coolidge, assistant secretary of the treasury; Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury department, and Jacob Miner, treasury economist.

It was announced after the conferences were adjourned for the day that the discussions would continue and that there would be an official statement concerning the refinancing on Sept. 10.

It is understood that the principal question before the conferees is how much of an interest the market will stand on a refunding bond issue.

Part of today's discussions were said to have centered upon the industrial credit situation. Viner, the treasury economist, is co-director with Dr. C. O. Hardy of the Brookings institution of a survey being made in the Chicago federal reserve district to determine why it is that the government's 580 million dollar loans to industry fund is going begging.

8 Millions Gone Out.

Under the terms of the loans to industry act, the RFC may advance up to 300 million dollars to business enterprises and the reserve banks up to twice their surplus, which is estimated at 140 million dollars. Only 8 million dollars has gone out under the provisions and the treasury seeks to determine whether the banks are placing too much emphasis on liquidity or if the bank examiners' procedure is too stringent.

Secretary Morgenthau went to his own estate, which is near Hyde Park, after the conferences, and it was announced that the refinancing discussions would continue tomorrow.

Richberg Reappointed.

President Roosevelt tonight made public the reappointment of Donald R. Richberg as chairman for thirty days of the national emergency council and the national executive council. Richberg, a radical labor lawyer from Chicago, continues as general counsel of the NRA and as chief coördinator of all the New Deal's alphabetical agencies.

He has been temporary chairman of these organizations in the absence of Frank Walker, who asked for a summer's leave of absence. Richberg now is engaged in a tug of war with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, and his reappointment indicates that he will have a major voice in the pending NRA reorganization, the chief issue of which is what will become of Johnson.

Guests of the President tonight were Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, and Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, chief of the brain trust. Hopkins and Tugwell brought their wives along and are to remain over Sunday. It was reported that the purpose of their visit is to assist the President in formulating his "social security" scheme for the next congress.

Broad Outlines Announced.

Hopkins has announced that the broad outlines of the New Deal's social security plan, which contemplates unemployment insurance, permanent work relief and the payment of a dole, or "cash benefits," in emergencies, would be worked out in conferences with the President during his vacation here.

The President canceled his regular Friday press conference today, the asserted reason being that he had no news and wished to spend the time driving around his estate in his runabout, which he did.

SENDER OF THREAT TO MRS. ROOSEVELT WILL GET MIND QUIZ

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Benjamin Franklin Varn, who sent a letter to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt threatening harm to the President and their grandchildren unless she paid him $168,000 was sent to Bellevue hospital today for mental observation.

From an official authority it was learned the incident has been classed as a mental case, and one authority said physicians and not the law should determine what happens to Varn.

Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey committed Varn to Bellevue. He was arraigned on a "Lindbergh law" charge, and on motion of Assistant United States Attorney Joseph B. Brill was held in $15,000 bail.

Mr. Brill told the court the petitioner had said "Svengali," whom he met in Central park, influenced him to write the letter.

GIRL KILLS BANK PRESIDENT AND ENDS OWN LIFE

Morristown, Tenn., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Miss Mary Sam Bruce, 27, daughter of a Lebanon minister, today shot and killed J. C. Shelton, 35, bank president, with whom she had been in love, and then committed suicide by firing a bullet into her own head.

"I love Jess better than life," read a note found later in her purse. "He was fine and honorable in every respect, but life to me is meaningless without him. Please notify my father, Rev. W. J. Bruce, Lebanon, by telegram. Will you do it tactfully?"

Fatally Shot in Office.

Shelton, who was unmarried, was president of the Hamblen National bank. The shooting occurred in his offices. Witnesses saw the banker stumble out of his private office clutching his breast. He slumped to the floor in the lobby of the bank and died a short time later.

A moment after hearing the shot that fatally wounded Shelton, bank employés heard a second shot in the president's office. Rushing in they found Miss Bruce lying on the floor, a pistol near by. She had died instantly.

Police said the girl had registered at a hotel here Monday, using her own name, but giving her address as Nashville. After the shooting they found a calling card in her handbag bearing the name "Mary Sam Bruce, Lebanon, Tenn."

School Teacher in Georgia.

At Lebanon, where the Rev. Mr. Bruce is a Presbyterian minister, it was said that his daughter was out of the city on vacation. She had been teaching school in Georgia.

Friends of the girl said they knew she was acquainted with the banker, having met him at Chattanooga several years ago when she was teaching school at the Chicamauga High school. Shelton was said to have formerly been connected with a Chattanooga bank.

Miss Bruce attended Cumberland university here and in 1925 was honored by being chosen college sponsor.

Ramon Navarro Sues Soap Firm; Used Photo on Cakes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 31.—Attorneys for Ramon Novarro, motion picture actor, filed a damage suit for 10,000 pesos [$2,750] on his behalf today against a Buenos Aires soap manufacturer who had stamped a likeness of Novarro on cakes of soap. The suit charges the soap maker's action was illegal on any grounds, but adds that the offense was aggravated by the fact that the photograph Novarro would not consented until the soap had been completely used up.

structions to woolen unions to join the cotton workers in tomorrow's strike.

The question of a silk strike, however, was left in abeyance until tomorrow, after Peter Van Horn, head of the Silk Code authority, replied to Gorman's demand for a meeting with a telegram saying, "Coming to Washington Tuesday morning. Will communicate with you upon arrival."

Gorman today made public for the first time the secret instructions sent to local unions some days ago.

Form in Squads of Ten.

"Every local union was ordered several days ago to form in squads of ten, each squad under a captain," he said. "Our purpose in ordering organization by squads is to bring about the highest possible degree of organized responsibility. We know perfectly well the tactics that will be tried by reactionary mill owners who cling to the old ways. We want to have some designated person responsible for the conduct of every member of our organization, so that there can be instant response to necessary orders and so that there can be disciplined restraint in the face of provocation.

"Our entire organization stands ready today to do exactly what we have said would be done. The mills will be tied up."

DISAGREE IN SOUTH

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Southern textile manufacturers stood aloof tonight from the rapidly forming strike front, while a definite cleavage made itself felt among the employés themselves.

Sticking to their decision to remain silent as long as the strike threat hung over code revision negotiations, employers said nothing, but from town after town came reports of majority votes by workers opposed to the general walkout which has been ordered by the United Textile Workers of America.

To offset them, local unions throughout the area began to hold strike organization meetings, at which the votes in favor of the national strike were reported practically unanimous. The union has locals in a large proportion of the south's textile centers, but not all of them represent majorities in the mills where they are situated.

Hears of Vote Against Strike.

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, Inc., announced today that he had received reports by telegraph showing that 2,548 out of 2,600 workers in six cotton mills in Greenville, S. C., and its vicinity had signified their intention of not participating in the strike.

Twenty Pickets Seized.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Macon mill district enacted a disorderly prelude to the general strike called for Saturday night by the United Textile Workers and then closed all plants today for the Labor day holiday with more than a score of strikers under arrest and several minor casualties reported.

Most of the day was marked by disturbances and shortly before the Payne Mill of the Bibb Manufacturing company began its holiday this afternoon a group of from forty to fifty pickets, many of them women, crowded onto railroad tracks at the plant and delayed movement of a switch train for more than an hour. The pickets sat on the rails and refused to move out of the way of the switch engine which sought to move several cars of finished products from the mill. County officers were forced to take some of the pickets forcibly from the path of the train before it accomplished its purpose.

Plan to Open Mills.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Faced with the uncertainties of the declared strike of the United Textile Workers, employers of New England's 150,000 cotton workers were generally agreed tonight that they would open for business as usual next Tuesday morning and let events take their course.

THREE UNIONISTS QUIT HEARING ON TRUCKERS' VOTES

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Three representatives of General Drivers and Helpers' union local No. 574 late today walked out of a meeting of the Minneapolis-St. Paul regional labor board, called to rule on 206 disputed ballots cast in Tuesday's election on representation.

They left in protest against presence of two attorneys sent by employers in the 29 firms in which the disputed ballots were cast. The employers also were present.

The development called a halt to the hearing and the session was adjourned until next Wednesday. W. W. Hughes, labor board secretary, was instructed to notify all parties to be prepared to present evidence on the contested ballots at that time.

In Tuesday's election the drivers' union, which sponsored two recent strikes here, received the support of only 50 of the 166 firms involved. Employés of 58 firms voted for independent action in dealing with employers. The vote in eight firms was tied and employés of 21 did not cast ballots.

As an indirect outgrowth of the recent truck strike, which lasted five weeks, the city council today voted 13 to 8 to purchase 150 riot guns and six machine guns for the police department.

The proposal was passed over the objection of the Central Labor union.

NRA Relaxes Code to Let Jewry Observe Holidays

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Jewish fur manufacturers and their employés of the same faith were permitted today by NRA to take time off to celebrate Jewish holidays during the next four weeks. Code regulations will be relaxed sufficiently to permit making up the time lost. The holidays are Sept. 10, 11, 19, 24, 25, and Oct. 1.

NRA CODE PROTEST AMONG REASONS FOR BIG TEXTILE STRIKE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Union workers who will leave their jobs tomorrow night on the huge textile strike are striking, in part, against the wages and hours provisions of the cotton textile code, first code of the NRA, a model pact acclaimed by the New Dealers to bring peace and prosperity to industry and workers alike for all time.

The union is demanding also:

1. Regulation of the "stretch-out," in other words, of the amount of work assigned each mill hand.

2. Recognition of the United Textile Workers of America as the workers' bargaining agency; this approximates a closed shop.

3. Reemployment of workers discharged because of union membership.

4. Creation of a board to hand down binding decisions on all future labor disputes in the industry.

On its wages and hours plank the union is asking a 30 hour week with the same pay now given for a 40 hour week. On this point they are not only flying into the face of a code which the New Dealers have touted highly as "the law merchant of the land," but also into the face of a government statistical survey.

After a previous strike threat this spring, the NRA statistical divisions investigated the feasibility of higher wages in the industry and found they were neither justifiable nor possible. The union is defying this finding.

Paradoxically the strikers have the sympathetic backing of the radical New Dealers in scrapping the New Leal's own wage and hour compact. Strikers in need will be fed, clothed, and sheltered by the federal relief administration.

GETS 60 DAYS FOR FRAUD.

Christ Adams, 32 years old, 805 South State street, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Robert Jerome Dunne in the Felony court to serve 60 days in the Bridewell. Twenty housewives in court charged he took deposits on dresses but did not deliver them.

A. F. OF L. QUITS LABOR HEARING IN KOHLER, WIS.

Won't Recognize Firm "Unions."

Sheboygan, Wis., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Laying down a new labor dispute policy, representatives of the American Federation of Labor tonight withdrew from the national labor relations board hearing into charges in connection with the strike at the Kohler Manufacturing company.

Union representatives and counsel abruptly announced the federation will not participate in any conferences or hearings in which a "company dominated union" is a party and that the federation will carry this issue direct to Washington.

Hit Workers' Stand.

The announcement, through Joseph A. Padway, state federation of labor counsel, followed introduction of testimony by the Kohler Workers' association seeking to prove the so-called company dominated union is the proper bargaining agent for Kohler employés.

"The American Federation of Labor will not go into hearings or conferences with company unions; it will not recognize them and it will not appear in controversies with them," Padway declared.

Refuse Padway Request.

When counsel for the company association sought to prove its bargaining issue, Padway objected and demanded the company put in its case. When his request was refused, Padway said:

"Paul Smith, representing the American Federation of Labor, and Henry Ohl, representing the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, take the position that no complaint was made against the company union. We do not recognize the company union and we don't want to be here. We don't want to leave because that would be discourteous; we stay here and sit here out of courtesy."

Robert W. Watts, special counsel for the National Labor Relations board, said that the company union might put in its case.

GARMENT WORKERS ORDER 60,000 TO GET READY FOR STRIKE

About 60,000 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union of America have received orders to prepare for a general walkout if the cotton garment manufacturers persist in refusing to abide by the new cotton workers' NRA code which goes into effect on Oct. 1.

This development was revealed yesterday when David Dubinsky, international president of the union, notified Morris Bialis, Chicago vice president, to start setting up the machinery for his members' participation in the strike.

"The rumored strike has absolutely no connection with the textile strike," Bialis said. "On Aug. 28 the cotton goods manufacturers voted not to comply with the administration's order for a 36 hour week when the new code takes effect Oct. 1. Unless the manufacturers reconsider, we shall strike."

The date of the strike will not be known until Sunday when Dubinsky arrives in Chicago to confer with union officials from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, and St. Paul. If it is called, it is believed that cotton workers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and of the United Garment Workers will take part. A total of 8,000 to 10,000 Chicago members, according to estimates, would be affected in case of a strike call.

MANUFACTURERS HERE PROTEST U.S. AID FOR STRIKERS

Message to Hopkins Points Out Dangers.

A strongly worded protest denouncing the governmental plans to aid the 600,000 textile employés who have been called out on strike beginning this afternoon was forwarded to Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator at Washington, D. C., last night by the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

The message, containing the protest, which was approved by the board of directors of the Illinois association, was sent to Mr. Hopkins by R. E. Wantz, president of the association.

Letter Voices Protest.

The message follows:

"The statements attributed to you in press dispatches from Washington, to the effect that federal funds would be made available to men now employed in the textile industry and who have proposed to go out on strike Saturday, Sept. 1, was the subject of consideration at a special meeting of the board of directors held in Chicago today [Friday].

"While we recognize the propriety of the Federal Emergency Relief administration furnishing aid to those who may be in temporary distress as a result of involuntary unemployment, we are convinced that the furnishing of financial aid by the government to men who are voluntary unemployed is fraught with grave dangers to our economic and social stability.

"The furnishing of financial aid by the government to individuals who deliberately refuse to continue in the employment of private industry not only imposes an undue and indefensible burden upon the great body of taxpayers who are called upon by the government to supply funds for such purpose, but is in effect an invitation to the representatives of organized minorities to engage in wholesale and perhaps universal promotion of industrial warfare and strife.

Alarming Number of Strikes.

"The dislocation and unemployment resulting from the alarming and ever increasing number of strikes in this country now represents the principal obstacle to business recovery. The furnishing of relief to strikers if continued as a national policy will, we submit, aggravate this condition. Such policy will, we believe, not only incite industrial strife, but will materially increase the number of unemployed by curtailing production and paralyzing sources of private employment.

"We share the genuine apprehension of the great body of taxpayers and all elements of the general public regarding the genuinely dangerous implications in this program and we earnestly hope you will advise us that the statements attributed to you in the press releases referred to above are erroneous."

NEW YORK CITY POWER SUPPLY IS THREATENED

Brotherhood Asks for U. S. Intervention.

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The power supply of part of New York and the New England states was threatened with paralysis today as the Brotherhood of Utility Employés asked the federal government to intervene to "avert a crisis."

A strike threat hung directly over Brooklyn's complete light and power system, with possibility that the Hudson avenue generating plant, largest generating unit in the world, would be affected.

The Gold street and 49th street, Brooklyn, power plants, as well as Brooklyn Edison substations, also were menaced as the union prepared to make good its claim to have enrolled 90 per cent of the plants' workers in its ranks.

Strike action hinged today on the reply of the National Labor Relations board to telegrams of protest against the discharge of the president of the Brooklyn Edison local of the Brotherhood of Utility Workers and several union members of other companies.

Part of Concerted Move.

Similar telegrams were dispatched by locals of the brotherhood in New England, citing local grievances. The wires were part of a concerted move.

"The companies have been picking off our men, one by one," Bernard Lambe, president of the union, said. "We have decided we must act now or the organization is smashed."

The brotherhood's telegrams declared unless the government intervenes at once the union will be "compelled to take matters into our own hands and fight the case with every means at our disposal."

The brotherhood claims control over the generating plant of the Montauk Electric company, Fall River, Mass., a wholesale plant supplying many smaller Massachusetts and Connecticut companies. It also claims the larger majority of the production workers at the Fall River Electric company and the Narrangansett Electric Light and Power company in Providence.

Double Dealing Charged.

The sudden development of a situation fraught with the possible paralysis of Brooklyn's power supply was the upshot of a year's experiences of alleged delay and double dealing on the part of the local regional labor board.

The union charges that James Donegan, president of the Brooklyn Edison local, No. 1021, and two other brotherhood members were discharged "on the flimsiest of pretexts."

The Hudson avenue plant is the world's largest of its kind from the point of view of production—but not physically the largest.

The municipal Eighth avenue subway is run by power generated at the Brooklyn Edison plants, which also has contracts to serve the I. R. T. and the B.-M. T. in emergencies. The latter companies normally generate their own power.

SEIZE CASH AT OFFICE.

Three Negro robbers invaded the real estate office of J. H. Coleman, 604 East 47th street, locked up the cashier, Miss Elsie Paul, 28 years old, 7743 South Seeley avenue and a Negro rent collector, and fled with $200.

Boy Bandits Take Truck, Tobacco Load and Cash

Two boy bandits hijacked a truck load of cigarets and cigars, valued at $2,100, kidnaped the driver and took $60 of his own money before releasing him at 56th street and Princeton avenue. The attack occurred at 47th and South State streets, according to the driver, Louis Levy, 4223 North Richmond street. The truck and merchandise were the property of the Bridgeport Tobacco company.

140,000 Welsh Miners to Quit Sept. 30 in Wage Row

LONDON, Aug. 31.—(Special Cable)—Labor leaders said today 140,000 miners in Wales would walk out the night of Sept. 30 unless given increased wages. It was generally feared a new agreement will be difficult to negotiate and the government is keeping a close watch, prepared to intervene to prevent a shutdown of the mines. Closing the mines would endanger Britain's coal export trade.

MODERN 'SCARLET PIMPERNEL' AIDS VICTIMS OF NAZIS

Americans and British Lead in Rescues.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—The "Scarlet Pimpernel," which went its romantic way in the days of the French revolution, despoiling the guillotine and prisons of their victims, has come back to life in these times of stress. Again brave men and women dare death to help the innocent. It is an international fraternity now with no real ties linking its members except the fervent "will to help." English and Americans to date have played the most important part in it.

[The "Scarlet Pimpernel" was written by Baroness Orczy, famous Hungarian authoress and playwright. The story deals with an Englishman who helped French aristocrats to escape to England during the French revolution. The play was produced in London in 1905 and at that time enjoyed the greatest run in 50 years. Baroness Orczy is now in Monte Carlo.]

They were feverishly busy in the days following the "Roehm revolt." There is the story of the Englishman who came to Berlin, where he had almost no friends. He was bent on helping three young children whose father was in a foreign country when the Black Hussars sought to arrest him in the June 30 "purge."

Held as Hostage.

Their eldest brother was taken as a hostage. Their mother was threatened with arrest as a hostage. Her passport had been taken away by the secret police. Most of her money was seized. She was anxious to stay in Germany, confident that the innocence of her family could be proved and that her son would be released. To flee, even for the sake of her three young children, would be betraying the boy held as hostage. The "Scarlet Pimpernel" stepped in.

The children had to be taken to Holland to their father. There was not sufficient money. The big bank account of the father was tied up by the secret police. After hectic negotiations somebody was found who had three children of about the same age. They were English children.

The little Berliners, however, knew no English. Once the passport was secured action had to be quick. There was no time to teach the children a few English words. They were taught to call their protector "daddy." The 4, 7, and 11 year old children practiced that word most assiduously. They had seen their mother weep. They felt the tragedy in the air.

Near Nervous Breakdown.

The eldest child, who watched the secret police and black uniformed Schutz-Staffel men (Chancellor Hitler's hand picked bodyguard) search his home, was near a breakdown. They were to fly for the first time in their lives, but not in a privately chartered plane. That would have attracted too much attention. They were to keep absolutely silent—just cling to "daddy" and call him "daddy."

It was a foggy day. When I talked to the modern successor of the "Scarlet Pimpernel" on a trip out of Germany last week he still shivered slightly when he told how the airplane had to make three forced landings. Every time he felt sure that the police would look over the passengers and snatch his three little protégés. But they did not, and he landed them safely in Holland, placing them in the care of their real father.

Their brother was released early this week, but he has no passport. The mother is still here, without her passport. She is fully convinced authorities will soon believe the evidence friends are accumulating that her husband had nothing whatever to do with the Roehm conspiracy. As far as can be established the only charge against this family is that it entertained the French ambassador, the slain Capt. Ernst Roehm, his aids, Count Spreti, and Baron von Detten, together with two more Germans at a luncheon. There, it is changed, details of the Roehm plot were discussed. The luncheon took place early this spring.

United States Professor Present.

What the secret police did not know was that there also was an American present. When he heard of the plight of this Berlin family the American wrote from California to the German embassy in Washington certifying that he had been present at the luncheon and that he could vouch that no remarks were passed which could in the least indicate the existence of a plot.

This American is Prof. David Barrows, former president of the University of Southern California, who had been in Berlin as exchange professor. What the German embassy in Washington has done with his report is not known.

This first "Scarlet Pimpernel" drama is probably nearing its happy end. The three youngsters have moved to England, and now speak English fluently. They are looking forward to the day when their mother will be able to join them with their brother.

Recall Ex-Minister's Escape.

Much has been written about the escape of a former German minister who was to be arrested. The surprised cry of his children to their mother, "Look at all these Black Hussars coming in," which he overheard from the street, warned him. He turned in his tracks and escaped in his car. The Hitler guards pursued him. He left the car near a subway and ducked out of sight. For five days police searched the homes of his friends. On July 5, as he was strolling in a garden, shots were fired at him.

Again he fled. Again the "Scarlet Pimpernel's" successor stepped in. In a wild automobile chase they rushed through Germany and succeeded in crossing the border into Luxemburg.

An American came to the rescue of the widow of a one time prominent politician who "committed suicide" in the concentration camp of Oranienburg. She, too, feared arrest because she was insisting on a thorough investigation of her husband's death. The American, with the help of friends from a neighboring country, helped her escape in a foreign car. She now must spend the rest of her life in exile.

Satirical Painting of New Deal Ruined

HURLS ACID ON MURAL PAINTING OF ROOSEVELTS

Picture Ruined; Vandal Going to Prison.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The ironic mural of President Roosevelt and his New Deal, which has been the subject of widespread comment, was ruined today by a young Russian alien who entered the Westchester Institute of Fine Arts here and dashed a quantity of flaming acid on the oil picture.

The vandal, John Thompson, 26, 1047 Home street, the Bronx, was immediately arrested and sentenced to six months in the Westchester penitentiary on a charge of malicious mischief. He admitted entering this country illegally nine years ago when he jumped ship at New York. His real name, he said, is Smiuose.

At police headquarters, Thompson said his only reason for attacking the lampoon painting, entitled "Nightmare of 1934," was to efface the portion caricaturing the Roosevelts.

Didn't Like the Idea.

"I didn't like the idea of holding up the Roosevelt family to ridicule," he said.

The mural shows the President wearing a crown and talking into a series of microphones. Mrs. Roosevelt also crowned and dropping a mass of manuscrips and letters, and the President's children, Mrs. Eleanor Dall and Elliott Roosevelt, tossing in wastebaskets toy figures representing their mates.

The satirical painting, produced by a public works administration artist whose identity has been kept secret, will not be rehung, it was announced. It was so badly damaged that W. L. Birchfield, director of the Westchester galleries, said it could not be repaired.

Artist Will Work on It.

However, it was to be removed to the studio of its unnamed artist to see if he can repaint the ruined sections. They are mainly the parts depicting the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Thompson entered the galleries by paying the regular 25 cents admission. As he stood in front of the exhibit mingling with the curious crowd it has attracted, he suddenly took a bottle from his pocket and dashed the contents over the painting.

When the liquid, which police said was part naphtha, struck the canvas it burst into flame in three places. Attendants lifted the blazing picture from the wall and laid it on a carpet to smother the flames, while others seized Thompson and held him until the arrival of police.

POSTAL WORKERS RIOT IN HAVANA; MAIL DESTROYED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Aug. 31.—Hope that nationwide postal and telegraph services would be resumed today collapsed when 2,000 newly appointed employés barricaded themselves in the central post office. They refused to abandon their positions to striking employés as ordered by Acting Secretary of Communications Gabriel Landa.

In the riot which ensued Landa estimated that the property loss amounted to many thousands of dollars. The value of destroyed mail and money orders could not be calculated.

When the new employés refused to leave the building, Landa appealed to Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the Cuban army, who sent two companies of infantry to clear the building. Before the troops arrived the employés wrecked furniture, destroyed official documents, letters and money orders, besides carrying away huge sums of money deposited in vaults.

The telegraph and telephone apparatus was set on fire in the south portion of the building. Two bombs exploded during the fire, partially wrecking the telegraph and registered mail departments. Soldiers with fixed bayonets ejected the rioters.

TELL HER IT'S TOOTH POWDER! AND POLICE DO

Miss Eva Goraky, 3857 Wilcox street, made an unusual request of the police last night.

"Please," she said, "have the police at Madison, Wis., get in touch with my sister, Mrs. Rose Margolis, who is stopping in some Madison hotel, and tell her the bottle she thinks is filled with headache medicine is really filled with tooth powder. The doctor says it won't kill her if she takes it for a headache, but it will make her sick."

The accommodating police at the detective bureau sent the message through and Mrs. Margolis, in the Wisconsin capital on her way back to her home in Manitoba, was told about the status of her headache medicine. She called Miss Goraky to inform her she would use it to brush her teeth.

Hitler to Use Hindenburg Mansion for Gala Events

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—Germany's executive mansion, the former home of the late President Paul von Hindenburg, will again be the setting of Germany's most resplendent official functions. Chancellor Adolf Hitler today decided to use the building for gala events. He issued invitations to the entire diplomatic corps to gather there on Sept. 12.

AUTO HITS BEER TRUCK; 1 KILLED.

Morris, Ill., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Milford Nelson, 29, was killed last night near here when his car smashed headon into a truck loaded with beer. The accident occurred on route 7 near the Ness honey farm.

Ship Sinks Off Manchukuo; Fear 136 Lives Were Lost

TOKIO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The sixty ton steamer Taian Maru foundered near Antung, Manchukuo, today and fears were expressed that 136 passengers and members of the crew were drowned, it was stated by a Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatch. Twenty-six persons were reported to have been saved.

WIFE OF JURIST INJURED BY ROCK HURLED AT BUS

Three buses of the Chicago Motor Coach company, whose drivers belonging to the Amalgamated union are on strike, were stoned last night.

One passenger, Mrs. Gabriele Epstein, 5442 Hyde Park boulevard, wife of Judge Benjamin P. Epstein of the Circuit court, was struck on the neck by a missil hurled into a bus at 27th street and the outer drive. She fainted and was taken to a physician's office, but was later sent home. The men who threw the stone fled in an automobile.

The other instances of violence were on the northwest side. One bus was stoned at Addison street and Springfield avenue and another at Addison street and Hamlin avenue. Windows of both vehicles were shattered, but no passengers were hurt.

GERMANY BANS MAGAZINE FOR 'DERIDING CAROL'

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The German magazine Kladderadatsch was banned today for two weeks for "deriding a foreign head of state."

The offense was the publication of a cartoon showing a red haired woman in tights causing a small crowned figure to dance on puppet strings.

It was headed "Madame Lupescu and Monsieur X.," with the explanation: "The king of Rumania has protested against the performance in Vienna of a play purporting to be an adventure of Frau Lupescu; all Rumania will soon protest against such a performance."

Raise Pay of Women Store Clerks in Quebec Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 31.—Wages of thousands of woman store clerks of the province of Quebec, and particularly in Montreal, will be increased 10 to 25 per cent, and in some cases practically doubled. The wage increases become effective tomorrow as a result of amendments to the Quebec woman's minimum wage act. The amendments were formulated following a conference between representatives of Quebec department and chain stores, independent organizations, the Retail Merchants' association and employés.

MUSSOLINI WOOS SOCIALISTS; ARMS TO FORTIFY RULE

Promises Leaders Important Posts in Italy.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy is flirting with the Socialists again in order to strengthen his internal position in Italy. He has promised Socialist leaders positions of importance in his party if they give up their opposition to him, according to persistent reports being received here.

This means that Mussolini is now trying to woo back the party of which he was once a member, but which he later suppressed. These reports, coming tonight from Italy, confirm information which was current in Austria last July. Vice Burgomaster Ernst Winter of Vienna, a semi-Socialist, in a speech early in July cabled THE TRIBUNE correspondent, openly stated that Mussolini was making overtures to Italian Socialist leaders a few weeks before Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was assassinated. The fact is of interest in view of Italy's assumed protectorate over Austria.

Ready to Launch Bold Coup.

According to the Daily Telegraph's Milan correspondent tonight Il Duce is about to launch one of his boldest coups. He has approached prominent survivors of the Socialist party who heretofore were hunted out of Italy like wild beasts, and proposed to them that they form a new Socialist wing of the Fascist party and declare themselves his adherents.

Mussolini's maneuver suggests the recent American development of Upton Sinclair joining the Democrats.

In return for their support the Socialists, who are still strong in Italy despite the suppressive measures, would receive important posts, especially in administrative departments of the corporative state, which controls all labor and production in Italy.

It is also significant that Mussolini makes this move a month after he condemned his former minister of the interior, Leandro Arpinati, to the prison islands. Arpinati was one of the strong men of Bologna, the Socialist stronghold in Italy.

The Italian dictator's movement toward the Socialists confirms repeated cables of this correspondent from central Europe that this summer's events have struck a severe blow at Fascism and its works.

Explains Change of Front.

Anyway, the Daily Telegraph's Milan correspondent says that Mussolini's change of front is due:

FIRST—To the fact that the corporative state, in which he is the supreme master, has assumed unwieldy proportions, and must be worked out with emcient collaborators whom he can trust and whom labor also trusts.

SECOND—That the increase in unemployment (30,000 during the last month) and Italy's fast dwindling export trade make fresh wage cuts and drastic labor restrictions imperative. The adherence of Socialists once prominent and still popular would disarm hostility.

The Telegraph's correspondent continues that Mussolini recently sent for three of his old Socialist comrades, including Sig. Caldara, former Socialist mayor of Milan, with whom Il Duce quarreled about Italy's entrance into the world war, and proposed that they "bury the hatchet."

Caldara refused.

"I shall give you three months to join the party," Mussolini said.

Other meetings between Il Duce and the Socialists followed, and, according to the Telegraph, Caldara is now considering putting on a Fascist badge in return for an important administrative post in the corporative state.

65,000 JEWS HAVE LEFT GERMANY, NAZI PRESS OFFICE CLAIMS

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Nazi press office said officially today that 65,000 German Jews had emigrated from Germany since Jan. 30, 1933.

The office, in this, its first announcement on the subject, said these Jews had gone in the following numbers to the following places:

France, 21,000; Palestine, 10,000; Poland, 5,000; Czechoslovakia, 4,000; United States, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and the Scandinavian peninsula, 3,000 each; England and Belgium, 2,000 each; various other countries, 6,000.

In this post he would represent the interests of labor.

Many rumors, says the Daily Telegraph, are afloat about the conversations Mussolini had with Caldara and his Socialist friends. One version is that when they entered the large room in the Palazzo Venezia in Rome they said "Good morning, excellency."

"Not excellency, but comrade," Mussolini is quoted as saying. "I am just as much a Socialist as you, but while you were talking I have carried out your ideas on different lines."

Another version is that Caldara told Il Duce:

"I will join your party if you will restore liberty."

The dictator replied, according to the Telegraph:

"I'll give you collective liberty, but not personal liberty."

SOVIET ENTRY IN LEAGUE VIEWED AS PEACE STROKE

GENEVA, Aug. 31.—(AP)—League of nations' officials here tonight credited Great Britain's support of Russian membership to her apprehension over political tension in the far east.

[London dispatches quoted British sources as saying the far eastern situation had "nothing to do with" British advocacy of Moscow's entry into the league].

While league sources believed the British economic delegation sent to Manchukuo in an effort to find new markets for British products might conceivably bring about an economic rapprochement with Japan, they saw no indication that the two island nations desire to renew their alliance.

See Far East Tension Eased.

The British attitude was represented here to be that Russian membership in the league would be likely to ease tension caused by recent friction between Tokio and Moscow.

Russia was pictured as apprehensive both as to Japan and Germany.

League officials feared that new arrangements might be made between Russia and Germany, the latter like Japan a bolter from the league's ranks, despite the immense chasm between Nazism and communism.

Great Britain, France and Italy, the three big powers backing Moscow's candidacy, are described as also fearful lest war between Russia and Japan affect Europe disastrously.

Expects Japan to "Soft Pedal."

"President Roosevelt's recognition of Russia made Japan do some hard thinking," one official said. "Maybe Russia's entry into the league of nations with a permanent seat on the council will make Japan 'soft pedal.'"

It was further remarked that England cannot as a league member consider reviving her old alliance with Japan because she subscribed to the league's decision that Japan, in occupying Manchuria, violated treaties. The covenant of the league prevents members making political treaties with nations that break the covenant.

From league sources it was learned tonight that all countries represented on the league council answered favorably when sounded out by the English-French-Italian combine concerning Russian membership.

BEG YOUR PARDON.

An editorial in THE TRIBUNE TODAY referred to the use of sirens on police motorcycles. Capt. David Flynn, [illegible] for the Chicago police department, yesterday pointed out that there are not city police motorcycles, and Mayor Kelly several months ago ordered police to discontinue siren motorcycle escorts.

SEE MILLION IN AND OUT OF CITY ON LABOR DAY

Holiday Population Shift Gets Under Way.

BY HAL FOUST.

Holiday travel to Chicago, virtually a movement of populations, began last night. The migration will gain full momentum this afternoon and will continue in force through tomorrow until Monday night. Incoming trains last night were thronged and the railroads have extra cars and extra sections on the passenger carriers due here tomorrow and Sunday morning.

Parking lots at A Century of Progress Exposition showed license plates from every state in the Union. At one of the larger lots a count showed only 47 per cent of the automobiles with Illinois plates.

Hotel reservation books indicate that Father Dearborn will be host to scores of thousands through the holidays. Private families are entertaining about as many relatives and out of town friends as the hotels.

Fishermen Form Army.

As numerous as the visitors are the residents of Chicago leaving the city for holidays with relatives or at summer resorts. THE TRIBUNE touring bureau received as many inquiries in the last couple of days as in the height of the boom.

On the roads leading to the lakes, woods and fishing streams of Michigan, Wisconsin and northern Indiana last night were Chicago cars loaded with outdoor luggage. Fishermen as a class are fast and long distance drivers. Some of the automobiles were destined to see the sun rise over pine trees with the pink reflected on quiet lakes.

The rush to the country will begin this afternoon as soon as workers can say good-by to their jobs until Tuesday morning. Trafic engineers expect there will be 350,000 cars with a million passengers on the roads of the metropolitan area this week-end.

See Jams in City.

The coincidental arrival of motorists to the Fair will probably be almost as heavy as the exodus of city dwellers. Approximately 60 per cent of the Exposition attendance from beyond Chicagoland comes by private automobile.

Few congestion difficulties are anticipated on the rural highways because of the widening of the arterials during the last few years. Delays from jams will probably occur on the city's neglected street and boulevard system and, while they are annoying, they form nothing to frighten even the motorists unaccustomed to urban trafic.

Nevertheless heavy congestion is expected late Monday afternoon and Monday night as the week-end excursionists are joined by vacationists and one day pleasure drivers on the trip homeward. This prospect is nothing for World's Fair visitors to worry about, however, because most of them will be moving in a direction opposite from the crowds.

Rails Heavily Booked.

The railroads this week-end will contribute more than their normal portion of the visitors to the city. The triple holiday gives persons traveling by train a chance to come from distant cities. The world's greatest railroad center will exercise all of its facilities.

"Last week-end and the week before each established new passenger business records for 1934," said H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad. "From our advance bookings, we'll have as much business in the next three days as during both of the previous week-ends combined."

"We hope to surpass our best week-end of 1933," said D. M. Bowman, New York Central passenger trafic manager.

Both recited impressive lists of large parties, a few hundred in each party, due to arrive today.

Air lines also are enjoying heavy business this week-end. Extra planes have been added in the service from the Pacific coast as well as from New York and Cleveland.

Century of Progress Notes

One hundred Georgia "Peaches" will appear at A Century of Progress Exposition for Georgia week, Sept. 23 to 30. The beauty queens are now being selected at peach festivals throughout the state. The group will leave on Sept. 23 in a special train with Gov. Eugene Talmadge and his staf.

A five foot hand carved model of the Constitution, most famous of all ships of the United States navy, carved by Theodore Morales of Evanston, has been placed on exhibition on the second floor of the Hall of Social Science.

Miss Helen Chase, 24 years old, blonde and an employe of the Detroit plant of the General Motors corporation, will be fêted today in the General Motors building at A Century of Progress as the 10,000th visitor to come to the Fair on the G. M. World's Fair tours.

Rogers Crocker, the totally deaf Fair guide, who has escorted hundreds deaf visitors about the grounds this season, expects heavy business tomorrow. Two hundred members of the Illinois Association of the Deaf in one party nave been assigned to him.

The Most Reverend Francis M. Janssens, Vatican City, abbot general of the Cistercian order, made a flying visit with his party to the Fair last night on his journey to the Cistercian monastery of Spring Bank, Okauchee, Wis.

Kenneth J. Heilbron, 619 North Michigan avenue, won first prize in the miniature photographic contest last night in the Hall of Photography. Mr. Heilbron's winning photograph was an unposed portrait one inch square of Eric DeLamarter, of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Second prize went to W. P. Eastman, 1 North La Salle street, and the third to Robert N. Lyon, 5 West 63d street, New York City.

Dr. Henry Balfour, noted ethnologist of Oxford university, visited the Fair yesterday.

Asks Receiver Be Named for Streets of New York

R. J. Walters filed suit yesterday in the Circuit court for an injunction to restrain the Continental Concessions company from continuing operation of the Streets of New York concession at A Century of Progress Exposition. He asks appointment of a receiver, alleging that he had not received any of the 75 per cent of the net profits of the business he was promised as his reward for planning the concession's layout.

The Lincoln Park aquarium, which has been closed since March 1, was formally reopened yesterday following the completion of alterations which cost $35,000. UNION SILENCES CHAMPION BAND ON VISIT HERE

The Blatz post band of the American Legion, on its way home to Milwaukee, can parade today from the city hall to the World's Fair, but must not play unless accompanied by a union band of twenty-five paid musicians.

This was the edict laid down yesterday by Carl A. Bauman, vice president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, which is headed by James C. Petrillo, according to sponsors of the parade. Richard Hart, a representative of Eitel Brothers company, joint sponsors with the Blatz Brewing company, said he had been given the ultimatum by Bauman by telephone.

Accordingly, he said, it was planned to take the band to the city hall today to be greeted by Mayor Kelly, then march the organization silently down Michigan avenue to the Fair grounds, led by the Black Horse troop and a police escort.

The band has just returned from the International Music Festival in Geneva, Switzerland, where it won the title of world's champion in competition with 120 other bands. All the bandsmen are union members.

Neither Mr. Bauman nor Mr. Petrillo could be reached last night for a statement.

CZECHS TO STAGE BIG SPORT DAY AT SOLDIERS' FIELD

Dances never before seen in this country will be presented tomorrow at Czechoslovak Sport day and Cermak memorial observance in Soldiers' field. A soccer football game will also be held between the Kladno, Czechoslovakia team, and the Sparta-Leader club, representing Chicago.

The program has been dedicated to the memory of the late Mayor Anton Cermak, a native of Kladno. When the late mayor visited his birthplace in 1932 he spoke of bringing the soccer team to Chicago as a World's Fair attraction. Arrangements for carrying out his plans were completed by the Sparta-Leader club.

Four dances participated in by 300 persons will be given. More than 8,000 persons living outside of Chicago have already written to the committee expressing intention to attend.

On Labor day a portrait and bust of Mayor Cermak will be unveiled in the Czechoslovakian pavilion at the World's Fair.

FAIR'S PROGRAM FOR LABOR DAY BEGINS TONIGHT

Ready for Unprecedented Rush of Visitors.

BY EARL MULLIN.

A Century of Progress Exposition is to open today a three day program of entertainment and education for the Labor day week-end. The attractions are such that officials believe they will draw a week-end paid admission multitude to rival that of the 1933 Fair, when more than 750,000 visitors entered the grounds.

Preparations are complete for handling more than twice the attendance expected, that that visitors face no danger of being inconvenienced by crowds. The Fair has organized its facilities for the Labor day celebration so that daily throngs of 400,000 could be handled expeditiously.

Of particular importance in the three days is the appearance of three speakers on Monday. They are Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, who will speak on "American Labor"; U. S. Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, who will talk on the topic, "Freedom of Speech—Press and Radio," and Henry Goddard Leech, editor of Forum, who will discuss "Consumers."

Special Fireworks Shows.

The opening special event will be tonight's fireworks show, the first of a series of fifteen daily presentations. Among the pyrotechnical paintings tonight will be incidents from the history of the Fair.

Tomorrow all of the subjects will be dignified in nature; and Monday leading labor leaders will see their pictures in flames above the waters of the lagoon. The evening show starts at 10:15 o'clock.

Tomorrow's general programs will be largely musical. Events are to begin in the Court of States at 2 p. m. and run until 5 p. m., under the direction of the American, Illinois, and Chicago Federations of Labor.

A symphonic ensemble under the direction of Walter Steindel and the 500 voice chorus of the United Mothers' Singers of Chicago are to be features. Speakers will include Father M. J. R. Maguire, Dr. James M. Yard, and Rabbi Solomon Goldman.

16th Day Over 100,000.

Further musical attractions will be presented for the Labor day visitors by the Chicago and Detroit Symphony orchestras. At 2 p. m. and at 6:30 p. m. the Swift chorus under the direction of George A. Arnott will give concerts in the Swift Bandshell on the 23d street bridge.

Yesterday was the sixteenth consecutive day with Fair attendance above 100,000. At the end of the All-Star-Bears football game there was a rush of fans from Soldiers' field into the grounds, and 10,089 admissions were registered between 11 p. m. and midnight, when the total for the day had risen to 113,826. So impatient were some of the newcomers to get in that several thousand more climbed the fences near the stadium. Only a few of these were caught by the police and ejected.

REVEAL PLANS OF ROCKEFELLER FOR UNIVERSITY

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—A plan of John D. Rockefeller Sr. to have a university or medical center established on his Pocantico Hills estate after his death were revealed unofficially at Tarrytown today.

It was said that the oil magnate has had this plan in mind during the years he has been assembling the estate. His heirs, under the plan, would set up the university or medical center after his death, and would then donate it to the public as a memorial to the founder of the Rockefeller fortune.

LEADERS OF BAR IN VAST PROGRAM OF LEGAL UPLIFT

Loftin Named President; Convention Closes.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The American Bar association at the close of its annual convention today entered upon its fifty-eighth year with a vast program of work in the fields of improving the criminal code, bringing about a better judiciary, purging the bar of undesirables, and clarifying the situation brought about by the growth of administrative law in the new government bureaus and commissions.

The association will be under the leadership of Scott M. Loftin, 56, a corporation lawyer from Jacksonville, Fla., a former prosecutor and a Democrat in politics. One of his first duties will be the appointment of a committee to investigate and report at next year's session on the effects of the New Deal legislation on the constitutional guarantees of the American people. He is expected to appoint this committee in two weeks. He told members of the association today that he would strive to make the association a real constructive force in American life. Los Angeles probably will be named as next year's meeting place.

Wickersham Gets Medal.

At the final session today the association presented George W. Wickersham with its highest award, a medal for distinguished service in jurisprudence, as president of the American Law institute. Mr. Wickersham in receiving the medal, which is worth about $1,250 at the present price of gold, said:

"The jurisprudence of a nation is not made by acts of legislature of a people, its roots are far back, it flowers from the people's conception of justice.

"Administrative bodies may issue decrees and make violations punishable by fine and imprisonment, but this is not the jurisprudence of a nation.

"Quoting from an Italian friend, the decrees of a dictator are not law. Justice springs from the roots of the people. Laws come and go, but jurisprudence moves on from precedent to precedent. One of your committees reports that the volume of edicts and decrees from administrative bodies fills more space than the entire statute law since the foundation of the republic. Is that the jurisprudence of a people, made out of hand, contributed in a period of one or two years?

"Opposition's Force Inevitable."

"The eighteenth amendment showed the folly of trying to legislate against the people's will, how the inevitable force of opposition rises to destroy that which those in power seek to impose. So today we are confronted with a vast body of regulations affecting us all. All are presumed to know it, if it be the law.

"For eleven years the American Law institute has sought to clarify and state with precision the laws which our ancestors brought from England and which have been developed by usage so that we will understand what it is. Judges grope in vain in the wilderness of precedent for rules to govern cases. We want to find what the law is today on great, fundamental subjects, so that we may apply it to new found edicts and legislative mandates placed on us, so that ultimately all may understand this great common law that has grown to guide people as they move forward in the restless onward move to a better national life."

Gives Gavel to Association.

F. Regis Noel, president of the District of Columbia bar, presented the association with a gavel made from the stair rail in the house of Chief Justice Marshall. He asked the members of the association to commune with the spirit of the great chief justice, whom he described as America's unique legal character, and try to guide themselves by his conceptions of government.

"He was an advocate of a strong, centralized government," said Mr. Noel, "but we may be certain his horizon did not extend to what he would have beheld during the last few decades. We can be sure he did not contemplate the central government taking wayward laundresses the esthetic dances; that he would have shuddered at the federal government sending out secret operatives to carry out summarily every duty of the judiciary department, as well as the investigation, detection and apprehension of criminals; he would have raged to see judicial functions assumed by unelected and irresponsible bureaus and commissions and would have been disgusted to see the legal profession so largely tainted with commercialism."

Name Vice Presidents.

Vice presidents of the association were elected as follows:

George R. Nutter, Massachusetts; Frank D. Thompson, Vermont; Samuel H. Richards, New Jersey; J. Lyle Glenn, South Carolina; Arthur G. Powell, Georgia; George B. Martin, Kentucky; James M. Ogden, Indiana; George B. Rose, Arkansas; James F. Allshia, Idaho; George F. McDermott, Kansas.

Executive committee members named were: L. Barrett Jones, Mississippi; Arthur T. Vanderbilt, New Jersey; Charles A. Beardsley, California. John H. Voorhees of South Dakota was named treasurer, and William P. McCracken Jr., secretary.

Debate Judges' Selection.

The question of the appointment or election of judges was debated at the last session of delegates. Austin V. Cannon of Cleveland, chairman of this committee, reported on questionnaires sent to bar associations. One hundred twenty-eight replies were received, disclosing a dissatisfaction with popular election of judges and a "fair degree of satisfaction" with appointment by executives or selection by legislatures. The report states that while the recognition of the necessity for better methods of selection is widespread this sentiment appears to be largely unorganized.

The association made another flank attack on recent legislation today when it accepted the report of its special committee on the securities act of 1933. This act was characterized as one which "rides rough shod over legal principles." Revision of the act in the interests of simplification and clarification was recommended.

While the majority of the lawyers have been shown to be out of sympathy with much of the machinery of the new burocracy and doubtful of its constitutionality, there has been a little defense of the new legislation heard during the convention. Most of this was off the floor and in hotel lobbies and was expressed in impatience with the many committee room attacks on various aspects of the New Deal. Those feeling the impatience, however, were not ready to debate the issue or felt they did not have an opportunity.

Attacks "Unfairness."

Manton M. Wyvell, Washington, D. C., attorney and a former member of the diplomatic corps under the Wilson administration, gave out a statement today attacking the fairness of the convention in this particular.

Important action has been taken by the convention in the field of crime. The association formally will recommend to the governors of the states that there be established in each state a permanent committee on criminal justice with the duty of following up systematically the enforcement of criminal law. It also recommends creation in each state of a department of justice similar to the federal department. Such a department would supervise the work of the district attorney in each county. Resolutions adopted also cover specific technical improvements in the criminal codes, such as the recommendation for alternative jurors, a recommendation permitting trial upon information as well as upon indictment, and one that a defendant who intends to plead an alibi may be required to notify the district attorney in advance.

In addition, the association urged upon local bar associations more vigorous effort to unearth and remove from practice those lawyers who are described as "lawyer criminals."

Seek to Speed Court Work.

There was a distinct movement to speed up and make the work of the courts more effective, as one answer to the new tendency to combine administrative and judicial functions in bureaus and commissions.

Judge George T. McDermott of Topeka, a member of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, told the lawyers at their closing dinner that there is a growing lack of confidence in courts and lawyers.

"We can, if we will, do our jobs so well that no real complaint can be lodged," he said. "We can, if we will, do justice between man and man as quickly and as effectively as our English cousins. While we deplore the present trend, let us closely inspect the judicial machine and find and correct its flaws.

"I am in entire accord with the efforts to restore the rule making power to the courts where it belongs. But battles are not won by rules. They are won by men. If the bench and bar will throw off their traditional languor and earnestly coöperate in an effort to decide cases in weeks instead of years, any rules will work. If they won't coöperate, better rules may help a bit, but they can't win the fight."

CHACO WAR TRUCE NEAR; PARAGUAY O.K.'S PEACE PLAN

U. S., Argentina, Brazil Submit Proposal.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A truce in the Chaco war seemed near tonight, after four years of bitter, bloody jungle fighting.

Paraguay had accepted and Bolivia was considering the proposal made by three big friendly nations, Argentina, Brazil and the United States, to cease hostilities while terms for peace are discussed at Buenos Aires.

Jubilation over Paraguay's willingness to stop fighting was tempered, however, by the countless difficulties standing in the way of any armistice.

Bolivians Pushed Back.

Paraguay's finest troops, thrusting forward along two fronts in their sixth major offensive, have driven far into the territory Bolivia claims as her own—a factor, neutral observers were inclined to believe, in the Paraguayans' willingness to rest temporarily on their laurels.

Bolivia, on the other hand, was not regarded as likely to favor armistice terms leaving Paraguayan forces too far forward in the territory she claims, especially since the war office at La Paz today claimed flatly that the enemy's sixth big drive had been smashed.

Nevertheless, workers for peace this evening clung to the hope that Paraguay's acceptance of an armistice would break the long deadlock.

Dogged Fighting Continues.

Manwhile the dogged fighting in the jungle region went on, with the claims of the two nations conflicting, as usual.

To her estimate made yesterday that more than 14,000 Paraguayans have died in battle since April, Bolivia today added the assertion that the stopping of Paraguay's latest offensive had sent enemy soldiers fleeing in confusion to the mountains, where they were dying of thirst and fatigue.

Asuncion was silent for the moment, although yesterday it was asserted Paraguayans continued advancing on all fronts.

In the absence of official Paraguayan dispatches since that reporting the capture of Fort Florida, near Ingavi yesterday, observers were inclined to believe the fighting might have reached another deadlock, such as occurred at Fort Ballivian.

This major Bolivian stronghold, last bulwark of Bolivia's claims in the Chaco, repeatedly resisted Paraguayan thrusts and after months of virtual siege stands unconquered.

In their latest drive to oust Bolivia from the eastern and central portions of the Chaco, the Parguayans entered territory which long has been held by Bolivia.

It was this fact which observers here believed might cause Bolivia to refuse any armistice that did not provide for withdrawal of Paraguay's troops.

Paraguay Is Pessimistic.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Aug. 31.—(AP)—It was learned authoritatively tonight that although Paraguay has accepted the preliminary peace proposal of Argentina, Brazil, and the United States, the formula is considered ineffective. It was believed here Bolivia's insistence upon an outlet through the Paraguay river, which Paraguay is unwilling to consider, will block acceptance of the plan.

FREE DANCER SEIZED AFTER BREEZE BLEW AWAY HER FIG LEAF

If Rosita Royce appeared in the nude while performing her shawl dance in the Streets of Paris concession at the World's Fair Thursday evening it was not intentional. That, in effect, was the ruling of Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Women's court yesterday when he dismissed Rosita on a charge of appearing without clothing.

Rosita, who is 20 years old and lives at 15 East Superior street, was arrested in her dressing room at the close of her act by Policeman Frank Andrews and Policewoman Dorothy Tedell of the south parks department. They testified she had danced for two minutes in the glare of a spotlight with nothing but the night air about her.

The dancer in turn testified that a thief had stolen her costume from her purse and she was forced to appear in a makeshift "fig leaf" and that the wind had blown it away early in the dance. Her attorney pleaded that the disappearance of the fig leaf was an "act of God" for which his client was not responsible.

After a conference in chambers with attorneys for both sides, Judge O'Connell dismissed the case over the protests of Assistant State's Attorney Fannie Ferron.

PARADE TO MARK LEGION MEETING AT PEORIA TODAY

Proposed Resolutions Ask Ousting of Hines.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The four day sixteenth annual convention of the Illinois department of the American Legion will open with activities by the Forty and Eight and Eight and Forty tomorrow.

The Forty and Eight, fun and honor society of the Legion, will stage its annual parade in the evening, winding up at the state armory where an initiation will be conducted, followed by a vaudeville show. The Eight and Forty auxiliary will conduct an initiation and frolic at the Jefferson hotel in the evening. Both these organizations will hold business sessions Sunday.

Business sessions of the Legion department and auxiliary department will be held Monday morning and Tuesday morning and afternoon.

Charles C. Kapschull, Deerfield, state commander, arrived early to join William C. Mundt, department adjutant, in arranging details of committee meetings.

Resolutions Pour In.

More than 90 resolutions have been sent to Mr. Mundt by various posts, districts, and divisions in the state. They will be turned over to the state executive committee which meets Sunday morning. The major issues recommended in the resolutions will be the movement to oust Gen. Frank T. Hines as veterans' administrator and cash payment of the bonus.

A resolution submitted by several posts, including Capitol post, No. 745, Springfield, asks that the department take a determined stand to stamp out politics within the ranks by frowning severely upon veterans' political organizations.

"How can we prevent any of our members from participating in politics?" one high official asked. "We can only prevent any political activity in the event the American Legion's name is used. The Legion is not a political organization. This resolution will probably be killed."

Say "Hines Must Go."

A veritable flood of resolutions condemning Hines, and stating that "Hines must go!" are in the adjutants' hands. They represent part of a nation-wide movement among Legionnaires to get the scalp of the veteran administrator. Fire is also directed at the conduct of the United States veterans' bureau at Hines, Ill., in several of the resolutions.

Another flood of resolutions concerns the bonus. They vary in their demands. Some demand prompt payment to every eligible; some ask that those veterans in need be paid immediately.

A resolution demanding a federal law providing a universal draft provision will probably find favor, officials say.

Communism is hard hit in a number of proposed resolutions. Some urge the government to organize a general battle against revolutionists.

GRAND JURY ENDS TERM; 317 CASES UNDER SCRUTINY

The August grand jury considered 317 cases before ending its term and presenting final and supplementary reports yesterday to Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court.

According to the report, the grand jury voted 216 true bills and 85 no bills, and passed 16 cases to the next grand jury.

In the supplementary report the jurors gave an account of their investigation into charges of fraud in the administration of the Illinois emergency relief commission. The report concluded with the summary: "It is the united conclusion of the August grand jury that the recent public attacks on the honesty and effectiveness of operations of the Illinois emergency relief commission for Cook county have been without substantial foundation, and should be discredited."

The supplementary report also covered the jury's investigation into arson cases brought to light through investigations conducted by the state's attorney's office. Unable to complete the study, the jury recommended that the September grand jury continue the investigation, and commended the vigilance and activity of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney in the matter.

DENY FORGERY SUSPECT WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

A writ of habeas corpus sought by Jack Wellborn, alias J. O. Williams, 29 years old, to avoid extradition to Nashville, Tenn., on a forgery charge was dismissed yesterday by Judge Grover C. Niemeyer in Criminal court.

Wellborn is wanted on a complaint charging he forged bonds of Dyer county, Tenn., totaling $116,000, and $20,000 worth of Henderson county bonds.

Wellborn announced after the court's ruling yesterday that he would file an appeal before Judge Frederic DeYoung of the State Supreme court. If the appeal is denied, the accused man will be turned over to Tennessee authorities.

WOMEN SOB AS GIRL, 15, IS HELD FOR KILLING DAD

"Yes, I Meant To," She Shouts at Inquest.

World's Fair, testified to frequent quarrels between the parents in which the father threatened the mother with a gun and knife and declared under questioning that the father had molested both her and Anna in past years.

Questioned by Attorney Rinella, Anna told of the events of the afternoon which led to her parents' quarrel the night of the double slaying.

"I was alone in the house with my father," she said hurriedly. "I had gone down stairs into the basement. He followed me and locked the door. I saw him coming. I said, 'Pa, what are you going to do?'"

She then broke down, weeping, and was excused from further testimony. Previously she testified that her parents began quarreling at 8:30 that night and that her father began beating her mother at 10 p. m.

Tells of Bitter Quarrel.

"It was the worst quarrel they ever had," she said. "He hit her, then had her head on the table and was choking her. There was no time to call the police. I went and got his gun, which I had put in my dresser drawer earlier because I knew they would begin quarreling, and then I shot four bullets.

"After I fired the shots my father held the barrel of the gun and pointed it at me. Then he fell. I put my foot on his hand, got the gun and ran. I fell down the steps. Then I went down the street, crying for help. I saw Dominick, and he took the gun. I walked toward a policeman and he took me in his machine. I didn't know my mother was hurt."

The girl identified the 38 caliber blue steel Colt revolver which Dominick Saviano, 1117 South Damen avenue, gum chewing, curly haired neighborhood youth, previously had identified as the gun he took from her. He turned it over to an ice cream dealer, but later recovered it and gave it to police.

Arrested After Argument.

On Sept. 2 last the slain father was arrested after neighbors reported that he and his wife were quarreling. At that time the mother told police their quarrel was over the father's mistreatment of Anna, it was brought out in her testimony. Nevertheless the father was booked for disorderly conduct and discharged in the Fillmore court, Capt. Larkin told reporters later.

Before being taken away Anna asked if she might attend the funeral of her mother. Deputy Coroner Schewel explained she would not be in his custody at that time. She then left with police and juvenile officials, followed by three of the seven Maietta children: Michael, 9, in a tattered shirt and long trousers; Carmela, in black satin, and Dollie, 13, in a cheap black cotton dress and white shoes which had been painted over with black shoe polish, now rubbing off.

Funeral services for both the slain parents will be held at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning at San Callisto Roman Catholic church, 2167 De Kalb street. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Dismiss Larceny Charge Against Wife of Banker

A petty larceny charge against Margaret, wife of Lawrence Petersen, commercial banker with offices at 105 West Adams street, brought after she was arrested in a loop department store with lingerie worth $4.50 in her possession, was dismissed by Judge J. William Brooks in the Women's court yesterday when store officials declined to prosecute.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

'Full Flavour' Is Given Rank of Best Seller

Novel Is Long, Vivid Record of a Woman's Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Full Flavour," by Doris Leslie. [Macmillan.]

"FULL FLAVOUR" is a novel which is destined to make its way into the hearts of readers as surely as "Cavalcade" did as a play and as a movie and as "Inheritance" did as a book, and for much the same reason that those two panoramas of English life captured and held the public. It is a long, vivid, full flavored record of life . . . of one life, and of those other lives which touched it, lived against the changing but ever rooted life of England.

The unrolling picture of Victorian England and Georgian from 1848 to 1914 is not, as in "Cavalcade," motivation. It serves rather the same purpose that the passage of days and years does in human life . . . it emphasizes rather than creates character.

The heroine of "Full Flavour" is a child when the book opens. She is the grandmother of a young man just starting off to war when it closes. During those years her character has "set," like a well made jelly, according to its own consistency, but in the mold of the times. Not too exactly in that mold, however, for when she is a young woman Catherine Ducrox does something that few women of her day, young or old, did. Her father, rakish, gay, a collector of snuffboxes when he might have been collecting the most skilful facts about his business, inherited Hanson's, where the finest cigars in London were to be had. When he took his young daughter for a walk in the park royalty and prime ministers nodded to him because, as he said, they owed him too much money to cut him.

Death ended too soon and suddenly the life of Edward Ducrox, but it saved the life of Hanson's. For with nothing to live on, convention could not triumph over Catherine's passion to run the cigar business, and "Miss Ducrox" took her place in an astonished trade.

Catherine had the richest, fullest flavor of life for a few years . . . her work and her love. The love which she gave her young husband filled every vein of her body, every wrinkle of her brain, during the hours that she was not at Hanson's. But during the hours at her desk she was the famous "Miss Ducrox" who had dared to go into trade and who had made a smashing success. There really weren't enough hours . . . that was the trouble, for both of her selves demanded twenty-four in every day to fulfill themselves. The tragedy which overtook her marriage was inevitable and, because she had not understood, the greater since she might have averted it.

Always through life Catherine tried to possess those whom she loved . . . but there was too much of herself in her daughter and in her grandson to make them possessable. The story of that daughter and that grandson finish the book begun with Catherine's own childhood and adolescence.

"Full Flavour" is one of those novels that has insidious charm. It is not, I think, a supremely great novel. But it has something that even many great novels lack. Something one cannot exactly put into words any more than one can put into words what makes the thought of one friend fill you with a glow of comforting pleasure while the thought of others leaves you cold. That glow has nothing to do with emotion or attraction, but is a sort of reflex action toward the rare quality of rightness in a human being.

That quality of rightness is what "Full Flavour" has. It comforts the reader, not actively, but by implication. It amuses him. It is, in a word, everything that a novel can be without being a masterpiece. And just as ordinary human beings are much more comfortable to live with than geniuses, so "Full Flavour," which has every virtue of the simple, charming chronicle, will probably find a home in every home.

Literary Editor Writes Tale of His Active Life

E. B. Osborn of London Is Known as Fighter.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Among the amusing caricatures which adorned H. G. Wells' delightful book, "Boon," were two or three of a writer who was charged with being peaceful in fact, though extraordinarily bellicose on paper. The writer was E. B. Osborn.

Mr. Osborn was one of those who were young when Mr. Wells was young, and he learned his manner of writing from the late W. E. Henley, being, in fact, one of "Henley's young men." He has seen a great deal of the world in his time, was a gold seeker in the days when men adventured to Klondyke, and for many years now has acted as literary editor of the London Morning Post.

The Morning Post has always been the voice of the British fighting services, active and retired; and travelers in London railways can now see a photograph of a handsome young nobleman or gentleman who announces that he reads that paper because it is the best. I have no doubt that he inspires many who wish they were noblemen or gentlemen to follow his example.

But Mr. Osborn is not a nobleman, although he is a gentleman, and although his work on the Morning Post has always been of a vigorous and invigorating order, he is a fighter; he loves the grand air, and his work at all times testifies to his faith.

Now he has written his autobiography under the title of "E. B. O.: On and Off the Pavement" [Jarrolds], and I can promise all who are interested that the book will be as full of life as any book of memoirs of recent years. It could not be dull. Mr. Osborn is incapable of dullness or the commonplace.

If relationship is any guide to talent, Miss Diana Maugham's first novel, "Rhapsody in Gold" [Nicholson & Watson], should be a very notable first novel. It is to be published in the early autumn. Miss Maugham is a niece of Somerset Maugham, and the daughter of Justice Maugham. I lately had occasion to visit the law courts in London, and there, in the Appeal court, I heard Justice Maugham deliver a judgment. I was astonished at the strong likeness between the brothers; when Justice Maugham referred to some point which he was dismissing as "an inconceivable whimsicality" it might have been Somerset Maugham who spoke.

Miss Maugham's novel contrasts the characters of a very rich and eccentric American and a young girl whose every movement and reaction [I quote the publishers] are ruled by her mind and curiosity. The book should thus be modern in tone; if it is written with the verbal felicity one expects, it will be particularly interesting.

Another young woman of talent who is publishing a new novel is Miss Jane Oliver, whose book is called "Evening of a Martinet" [Collins]. She is a clever young woman with much humor, and her book should be good.

Cambridge History of English Letters Out in New Issue

A set of books that no student of literature ought to let himself be without is the Cambridge History of English and American LIterature, which has recently been reissued at a fraction of the price of the original de luxe set.

This year Cambridge University Press is celebrating its 400th anniversary and, although I have had no official notification of it, I imagine that the reprinting of the famous history of literature is by way of being part of that celebration. For whatever reason, it is our gain. The history has been called "The most monumental book about books which has ever appeared," and justly. F. B.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

Milward Kennedy is the president of that group of seasoned mystery story writers which calls itself the Detection Society of England, and so can be trusted to turn out a very workmanly book, that gathers its clews into a neat little twist, thus bringing to a satisfactory end almost any fantastic thesis.

In "Corpse in Cold Storage" (H. C. Kinsey) he does just this, and at the same time writes a very amusing tale of people of assorted moral fiber. You are introduced to a rich young American, who is entertaining on his yacht a member of the British aristocracy and his lady, and in turn being entertained by the lady, who is very much prettier than she is good, but at that a vast improvement upon her noble husband.

A corpse is discovered in an ice cream wagon, of all places, and host and guests set out in their various ways and for various motives to discover the murderer. The police are also taking a hand, but, hampered by the assistance of so many amateurs, they are rather behind the least likely of the amateurs when it comes to a showdown.

It is one of those stories where it is impossible to tell anything without telling almost everything, and since its interest and amusement depend largely upon the unfolding of the purposes behind the effort to bring a very bad man to justice I can only say that it's the kind of an apt and intelligent murder story that is worth reading.

The corpse was a pretty bad lot himself, so you won't mind his getting his, but you may feel that the light hearted wicked are allowed to flourish a little ostentatiously.

Bares Hollywood Rackets in Hilarious Fiction Tale

"Nights and Daze in Hollywood" [Macaulay] is the apt title of an ironic and hilarious fictional disclosure by Richard Henry Lee of Hollywood rackets. The day the book was published in New York Mr. Lee was present at a tea for him, and few of the guests knew that he had flown across the continent the day before and was winging home the next day. Two transcontinental early bird hops to capture the worm of a New York literary tea party seems to us a typical Hollywood gesture.

New Collections Are Mines of Good Reading

"Seven Famous Novels," by H. G. Wells [Knopf], is one of those enlivening omnibuses which, when they are good, make the reader feel as if he had struck oil. In this volume are seven of those thrilling and fascinating scientific romances which made a name for H. G. Wells thirty-five [or was it forty-odd?] years ago, "The Time Machine," "The War of the Worlds" . . . you remember with what breathless thrills you discovered them. Here they all are under one roof with 876 rooms to explore.

And a gusher, too, is "A Book of Great Autobiography" [Doubleday-Doran], 1,000 pages of such superb writing as Joseph Conrad's "A Person Record," Selma's Lagerlof's "Marbacka," W. N. P. Barbellion's unforgettable [but too soon forgotten] "The Journal of a Disappointed Man," and others. One thousand three hundred pages for the price of 800.

And "Modern American Prose" edited by Carl Van Doren [Harcourt-Brace], the August Literary Guild choice, a library of living literature in 900-odd pages . . . excerpts from the best that Americans have written in our generation. The selections are arranged—interestingly, chronologically—to illustrate the trend of literary fashion during the last twenty years, and that arrangement in itself is a literary masterpiece.

There are two other anthologies of prose, not omnibus volumes but rich in pleasure for the reader, "Designed for Reading" [Macmillan], a reprinting of the most important articles that have appeared in the Saturday Review of Literature during the last ten years, and "The Greatest Pages of Charles Dickens" [Doubleday-Doran], selected and commented upon by Stephen Leacock, whose life of Charles Dickens was a joy.

And if you are another Mortimer Quick—finding the rarest of delights in mystery and detective fiction—there is "The New Crime Club Golden Book of Best Detective Stories" containing three complete detective novels, short stories, true cases, and articles on crime [including two classic novelettes by T. S. Stribling that I'll wager you never met before] in 1,088 excitement-packed pages.

Engineer Describes Discovery of Tribe of White Indians

A recent change in the attitude of the United States state department (and every American knows how long it takes a federal bureau to change its mind) enables Richard O. Marsh to tell of his fantastic adventures several years ago in the republic of Panama in "White Indians of Darien" (Putnam).

Marsh, former United States chargé d'affairs at Panama City and former partner of Gen. Goethals of Panama canal fame, is an engineer. He now holds what his publishers say is an important New Deal post in Washington.

Several years ago he was sent to Panama by Ford and Firestone to investigate its rubber growing possibilities. He heard rumors of white Indians in that region, and, deciding there were more possibilities of thrills in that direction, he organized a scientific expedition to search for these light colored natives.

He found them after an adventurous exploration of unmapped territory. He ended by starting and organizing a civil war, which resulted in independence for certain tribes.

His "White Indians of Darien" is an unusual combination of exploration, travel, scientific research, and war. It is well mapped and has photographic proof that "white Indians" are white.

13 MILK DEPOTS DEFY STATE EDICT TO STOP SALES

Will Continue Bulk Trade, They Declare.

Thirteen milk depots, accused of selling bulk milk containing certain impurities in Chicago suburbs, appeared yesterday before the state department of foods and dairies and defied the order of this body to discontinue such sales.

Meeting in the office of the state department, before Supt. H. I. Lepman, representatives of the eleven companies operating the thirteen depots declared they would ignore the state order, effective today, and would continue to sell their bulk milk at the roadside and other stands.

24 Concerns Named.

In all, twenty-four concerns had been named by the state department as selling milk in bulk form, most of it unpasteurized, containing a dangerous amount of bacteria.

Of this number, twenty appeared befor Mr. Lepman—the eleven who defied the order, nine others who promised Mr. Lepman that they would remain out of the milk business or else begin selling milk in bottles, in conformation to the new ruling.

Four other concerns failed to appear at all.

The companies which defied the order are:

Economy Dairy company, 7314 Irving Park boulevard, Norwood Park; Montrose Milk depot, 6430 Montrose avenue, Norwood Park; Thrifty Dairy Products, First avenue and Lake street, Maywood; Big Oak Dairy Products, Norwood Park; Southwest Farm and Dairy Products, 3941 South Harlem avenue, Stickney; Guernsey Dairy Products, 4422 Narragansett avenue, Norwood Park; Dairy Maid Products, 7310 Irving Park boulevard, Norwood Park; Villiage Dairy Products, 1410 West Harrison street, Maywood; Wisconsin Farm Products, 1602 Sheridan road, Wilmette; Oakwood Dairy, 977 Center street, Des Plaines; Niles Dairy Products, 6522 Milwaukee avenue, Niles.

Invitation to Typhoid.

In commenting on the bulk milk being dispensed by a number of dealers, Mr. Lepman was quoted as saying:

"I'm not a doctor, but some of the milk dipped out into th. customers' containers was an invitation to typhoid. The more business some of the milk stands did, the dirtier they got."

These stands, to which he referred, are places to which customers went with pans, jugs, bottles, or other types of container, and had attendants dip out their milk with ladles from open cans.

"Even though it is hard to prosecute," said Mr. Lepman, "we have cases against about 100 dealers and distributors."

Health department authorities, who pointed out that they have no jurisdiction over milk sold outside the city limits, nevertheless stated that at least one company accused of having brought impure milk into the city had had its license revoked.

"We are constantly on the lookout for impure milk and test samples of various dairies daily," said Dr. John L. White, head of the bacteriological laboratory at the health department. "In the event we find evidence of hig bacteria development we notify the dairy immediately. If the dairy fails to clear up the difficulty we make an inspection and, if necessary, revoke the license, as we did in the Wagner Dairy company case."

Bundesen Explains Tests.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, also took occasion to point out errors in recent published statements of analyses of milk specimens. In referring to the counting of "pin points," or small bacteria growths in milk, he said that these were disregarded, since they were not disease producers or carirers.

He also denied the published statement of one doctor that bacillus aerogenes is a producer of gas gangrene.

"The doctor who made that statement," he said, "apparently had the bacillus aerogenes confused with the bacillus aerogenes capsulatus, which is a form of soil organism and might bring about such a condition."

ATTORNEYS SEEK DELAY IN INSULL MAIL FRAUD CASE

Attorneys Harry S. Ditchburne and Charles E. Lounsbury yesterday served United States Attorney Dwight H. Green and Assistant Attorney General Forrest A. Harness with copies of a motion which they intend to present before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson early next week seeking a continuance till Nov. 5 in the Insull mail fraud case, which is set for trial in federal court on Sept. 18.

In the motion, which consists of four typewritten pages, the attorneys set forth that they have just recently been appointed as counsel for Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart & Co., and three other officials of the concern, who were indicted with Samuel Insull Sr. and eleven others for using the mails to defraud, and that an unusual amount of work is necessary for them to familiarize themselves with the case. Some 40,000 individual documents must be carefully examined before they can properly represent their clients, they maintain.

Mr. Green previously has announced he would oppose such a motion for continuance and will ask that the trial proceed as originally set.

Police Hunt for Boy, 10; Fear Runaway to Farm

The Brighton Park police were searching yesterday for 10 year old George Thompson, 3623 South Sacramento avenue, who disappeared on Aug. 21 when he left his home to go to a nearby park to play. His mother, Mrs. G. E. Thompson, a widow, said that her son loved horses and that she feared that he may have been enticed away to some farm or circus.

Modern Machinery Speeds Corn Harvesting to Fill Silos

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

Fill Two Silos Quickly.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

August 31, 1934.

MACHINERY has lightened this season the burden of filling the silos on THE TRIBUNE'S auxiliary experimental farm near Wheaton, Ill. The two silos, of a total capacity of 100 tons, were stored this week, furnishing a liberal supply of high grade roughage for the dairy herd at the farm.

Old-fashioned corn knives that once made corn cutting a laborious task have been thrown into the discard at the auxiliary farm. Machines were used in the main steps taken in the process of harvesting the fodder. The corn was cut with a binder and elevated directly to the wagon. The corn binder and the wagon are both drawn by tractors. Then, with a tractor driven ensilage cutter, the corn is chopped up into pieces and blown into the silo.

Carl Henderson, general manager of the auxiliary farm of 1,000 acres, estimates that the silage corn this year yielded between 6 and 7 tons to the acre. This is a much higher yield than was harvested on many farms farther south where there was a lack of rainfall throughout the growing season.

Today, several weeks in advance of the normal frost killing date, the corn at the farm is far enough advanced to be safe. In fact, the kernels on practically all of the ears are dented and are approaching the final stage of maturity. All of the corn grown at the auxiliary farm this year could have been harvested for grain and stored in cribs.

Mr. Henderson said that the men started out this year determined to grow a good crop of corn. First, they prepared an exceptionally fine seed bed and on May 18 planted high grade seed corn of the Yellow Dent variety. The fine seed bed aided in supplying enough moisture to bring about quick germination of every kernel. This gave the corn a start ahead of the weeds, which were easily kept under control by cultivating the fields four times with a two row cultivator drawn by a tractor.

The corn was heavily infested with chinch bugs of both the first and second broods, but it grew so rapidly that it produced good ears and leaves despite the pests. Mr. Henderson said that the corn was so thrifty all season that he was able to produce plenty of feed for the chinch bugs and had a fine crop left for live stock.

Yesterday the 400 head of sheep were turned in the corn stubble to pick up the blades and ears knocked off by the corn cutter. Clean cultivation has kept the fields free from cockle burs and other weeds. With a blue grass pasture on each side of the corn stubble the ewes have an ideal place to run between now and the beginning of the breeding season. Rameses, the famous Coredale ram will be turned in with the flock about Nov. 1.

Corn not used for ensilage at the auxiliary farm this year will be cut for fodder. The ears will be removed and the stover will be shredded and stored in the barns and used as feed or bedding for live stock.

HEARING ORDERED IN MOVE TO FREE INNOCENT YOUTH

State Cautious; Acts to Avoid New Error.

CRIMINAL COURTS.

John Blair, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary for murder by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Attorneys for John Long, who is serving a sentence of one year to life in Stateville penitentiary for a crime confessed by another man, yesterday took the first steps in their program to have him freed.

Attorneys Daniel Wolf and Harold Lowenthal, representing Long, filed a petition in the form of a writ of error coram nobis in Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan's Criminal court calling for a vacation of judgment in Long's case. Writs of habeas corpus also were asked to bring Long and George Wilch, who was sentenced with Long, back for a new trial.

Set Hearing for Tuesday.

To insure against error in procedure, Assistant State's Attorney Richard Devine moved to strike out the petition. Judge Finnegan then set 10 a. m. Tuesday as the time for a hearing on the latter motion and assigned the hearing to Judge Donald S. McKinlay, who heard the original trial. If Judge McKinlay overrules the motion, the writ will be issued and the two young men will be brought back.

Edwin Brethauer, described as Long's "double," has confessed the robbery for which Long was sent to prison, according to police.

Held on Murder Charge.

Brethauer is held for extradition to Wisconsin on a murder charge. He was identified by Mrs. Helen Broski of South Milwaukee, Wis., as the man who shot and killed her husband in a tavern robbery in Kenosha.

Yesterday Assistant State's Attorney Devine took Brethauer to a drug store at 1976 Lawrence avenue to reënact the robbery for which Long was sentenced to prison.

Brethauer was taken next to a drug store at 1101 Granville avenue which he declared he and Wilch had robbed. Brethauer described accurately the interior of the store before he entered and in the store called attention to smaller tables which had replaced those he saw at the time of the holdup.

Employés corroborated this. They also confirmed Brethauer's statement that the store contained a large number of customers, including a group of basketball players, whose sweaters he described.

Only Small Points in Error.

The cashier of the store, Miss Margaret McCall, denied a remark attributed to her by Brethauer during the robbery warning a customer to stay away from the door, and said another customer had made the remark.

A point on which Miss McCall and C. F. O'Rourke, the pharmacist, differed from Brethauer was their belief that Wilch had carried a nickel plated revolver instead of a blue steel one as Brethauer said.

In each place Assistant State's Attorney Devine said Brethauer's story tallied closely with what had actually happened.

Held as Brethauer's accomplices in the Kenosha shooting are George Hirschman and Ray Thompson, whom Wisconsin officials also will seek to extradite.

The three were taken to the detective bureau showup last night and Brethauer was identified as one of two robbers who held up the Owl tavern near Kenosha July 12. Gus Johnson and Peter Podliezuk, who were in the tavern during the holdup, were unable to identify Hirshman or Thompson as Brethauer's companion.

Inquest Ordered Today in Baby's Mystery Death

An inquest into the death of William Readdy, 13 months old, 4612 North Hamlin avenue, will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock. The infant was taken unconscious yesterday afternoon to the office of Dr. I. A. Love, 4500 Elston avenue, by his parents, who advanced a theory that he had been electrocuted. Unable to revive the boy, Dr. Love summoned Squad No. 6 of the fire department, who also failed in an effort at resuscitation. Police could find no electric wires exposed in the house.

FIND DEATH NOTE, DRAG LAGOON.

Police were dragging the Columbus park lagoon yesterday, after the discovery of a note found on a bench nearby, with the instructions to "notify John Jones, 3723 Gladys avenue, when you find my body. The note was signed "Sarah." No John Jones was found at that address, and police were inclined to believe it was a hoax.

YOUNG ROGALSKI IS TRANSFERRED TO PONTIAC CELL

George Rogalski, 14 years old, serving a ten year sentence for the fatal kidnaping of Dorette Zietlow, 2 years old, was taken yesterday from the diagnostic center at the Stateville penitentiary to the Pontiac reformatory, where he will serve the rest of his term.

Since July 12 Rogalski has been under observation by Dr. R. G. Barrick, state psychiatrist. In his report Dr. Barrick said the boy has an inadequate personality makeup and is of low average intelligence, but that there is no evidence of psychosis and the boy shows possibilities for practical education.

At the reformatory Rogalski will be placed in school, starting in grade 6B. As he left by automobile the boy appeared to be pleased at the prospect of a change and smiled when Warden Frank D. Whipp advised him to "be a good boy, obey all rules, and you'll get along fine."

3 ROBBERS TAKE AMERICAN STEEL $2,000 PAY ROLL

Three robbers, one carrying a sawed off shotgun, obtained yesterday the $2,000 pay roll of the American Steel and Wire company, 2364 South Ashland avenue. Charles S. Cawthorne, Lake Bluff, cashier of the company, and James J. Brady, 6724 South Lincoln street, a shipping clerk, had just gotten the money from the concern's executive office at 208 South La Salle street.

As Cawthorne drove up to the shipping platform the three gunmen surrounded the car, snatched the ignition key, and forced Cawthorne to hand over the money envelope.

As Cawthorne complied he shouted that he was being robbed. The nearest robber struck him with a revolver, knocking out three teeth. The gunmen then fled to a waiting automobile driven by a fourth member of the gang.

BOY WHO KILLED FARMER HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Stephen Maracek, 16 years old, who shot and killed Herman Doerries, 45, a farmer with whom he lived near Newark, Ill., was ordered held for first degree murder by a coroners' jury yesterday at Yorkville.

"All I did was herd cows and hoe thistles all day long," the youth told reporters. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy and it makes Steve a dull boy."

Maracek was placed in Doerries' care last December by the Lutheran Home Finding Society, 4840 Byron street, of which he was a ward. He killed the farmer with a shotgun on Thursday after charging his guardian with opening his mail.

The youth, who was committed to the society after his father, John, deserted him, a brother and two sisters also testified that he had overheard Mrs. Doerries suggest to her husband that he be sent to the boys' reformatory at St. Charles.

SEIZED IN CAFE THEFT; IS FREED TO TAKE A JOB

Thomas Barker, 30 years old, 106 West Erie street, arrested four days ago after breaking into a restaurant at 168 North Wells street in search of food for his sick wife, stepped from a jail cell into a job yesterday.

Barker, who was on probation after a larceny conviction in 1921, appeared yesterday before Municipal Judge Robert J. Dunne. He was defended by Attorney Richard Harte, who was hired by Max and Robert Eitel, restaurant proprietors. The Eitels asked the court to give Barker another chance and said they had a job waiting for him. Judge Dunne ordered Barker released on one year's probation, saying that the accused man apparently had led an honest life since the trouble in 1921.

FOUND DEAD IN VESTIBULE.

His throat slashed by a razor, John Kujowski, 40 years old, a war veteran, was found dead yesterday in the vestibule of his home at 2106 West 19th street, apparently a suicide. Kujowski's wife, Marie, 42, had left him three days ago, police said.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed. I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. I will shake down from its height corruption and bury it beneath the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."

—Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

NEW YORK ENSLAVED.

It is incredible that New York state, once the very stronghold of personal liberty in America, should have so meekly allowed itself to be enslaved by the federal government. It is incredible, but in the last few weeks there has been irrefutable evidence that it is true.

To gain an idea of how low the once great state has fallen, how unresentfully it submits to the shackles of the NRA, how humbly it cringes under the whip of the burocrat, it is only necessary to glance at the period of American history when the constitution was being drawn up in the summer heat of Philadelphia. When the great document had been completed after three months of argument and the time had come for the state delegates to place their names upon their handiwork, only one from New York would sign. That one was Alexander Hamilton. The others refused, saying that the constitution would take too much power from the states and would thus ultimately deprive the citizens of their personal rights.

Now that same constitution, to which the delegates objected, is the sole protection of the people of New York against federal invasion of their liberties.

A further example of the stanch individualism of the New Yorker came in the year after the constitutional convention in 1787. A bitter fight was being waged in the state over the ratification of the constitution. In favor of accepting it were Hamilton, Jay, and Madison. They were opposed by a determined group led by Melancthon Smith and George Clinton. The latter two saw the dangers of federal control; they were ready to resist it with all their power and influence. At the state convention they fought for two weeks against the oratory of Hamilton, the weight of Madison, the logic of The Federalist, and they gave way only when they had been promised certain amendments [later to form the bill of rights], and voted with Hamilton "in full confidence" that these would be adopted.

What has happened to the descendants of Smith and Clinton?

When Jacob Maged, a little tailor who happens to live in Jersey City but who presses the clothes of New Yorkers, was arrested, fined, and sentenced to jail because he charged five cents under the rate set by the NRA there was no protest.

Leo Nebbia, a small grocer near Rochester, had been in the habit of giving away a loaf of bread to needy customers when he sold them milk. He was arrested and fined for this kindly custom. There was no comment on the matter.

Mrs. Katherine Budd, a Brooklyn mother with two small children to support and raise, was refused permission by the state's millionaire code authority to make flowers in her home because "the whole purpose of the NRA code would be defeated." No one offered to defend her.

Even the integrity of the New York courts has given way to the burocrat. Instead of resisting unlawful usurpation of power by the government, the judges are encouraging it. Nebbia's fine was upheld by the Court of Appeals. After sentencing Maged, Common Pleas Judge Robert V. Kinkhead said:

"The punishment for violation of the NRA code should be one which will deter others."

It is evident that the spirit of personal liberty has moved westward since the exciting days of the founding of the constitution. In Glenn's Ferry, Idaho, a small baker named E. W. Nestak received word from the local NRA code authority that he must raise the price of bread one cent. The price he had been getting for his bread was satisfactory both to himself and to his customers, so he defied the order. Back of him stood Senator William E. Borah, who announced he would supply the baker with legal aid should the NRA prosecute. The NRA did not dare prosecute.

It is impossible to believe, had there been a code authority in Chicago so callous as to refuse the right of the Misses Mary, Jessie, and Louise West to support themselves and their invalid sister at home by sewing baseballs, that any Illinois court would have been so abject as to refuse them an injunction to protect themselves.

It is to New York's shame that cases like Mrs. Budd, and the West sisters, and Grocer Nebbia, and Baker Nestak, so similar in principle, should have so widely divergent solutions.

IN THE SADDLE.

Speaker Rainey was the only man from north of the Ohio river to hold a post of great power in the national house of representatives at its last session. Every important committee chairmanship, save one, was held by a southerner, and a southerner was also majority leader. Now even the speakership seems destined to fall to a southern representative.

Texas had six important committee chairmanships. Alabama had five. Louisiana and South Carolina had two each. Oklahoma, Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia each had one. New England had one. The great middle Atlantic states, including New York and Pennsylvania, had none. The border states, except Tennessee, had none. The central states had none. The mountain states and the Pacific states, from Canada to Mexico, had none.

The chairmanships of the committees which deal with the raising of revenues and the spending of it are wholly southern. [The only northerner to hold an important chairmanship is Representative Connery of Massachusetts, who presides over the fiscally unimportant committee on labor.] Ways and means falls to North Carolina; appropriations to Texas; likewise agriculture, rivers and harbors, and public buildings. Louisiana has flood control and Mississippi has war veterans. Georgia has the navy and South Carolina the army. Virginia has the merchant marine.

In 1933 the total of income tax collections from the whole country was nearly 750 million dollars. Less than 60 million in all came from the eleven southern states whose representatives dominate the money raising and money spending activities in the house. Naturally these chairmen are not greatly troubled when income tax rates go up and when appropriations mount. They have few taxpayers to worry them and they see to it that their states get far more than a fair share of the pork. That makes everybody happy except the taxpayers in the north and east, and who are they to worry about?

THROUGH ROUTING FOR AIR SERVICE.

When through railway passenger service was inaugurated between Chicago and New York, the trains were scheduled to stop at all principal centers of population along the route for the purpose of insuring adequate revenue. Later, when travelers became more numerous, such trains as the Century and Broadway came into the picture to cater to through traffic. They have been an outstanding success from the start.

We recommend this experience for study by the air lines, which have added reasons for encouraging the development of through trafic. There are three lighted and marked airways between New York and Chicago. The northern airway passes over, or via, Detroit and Buffalo, the center through Cleveland and the southern through Pittsburgh. If a flight were initiated for Chicago-New York passengers only, it could choose from these three routes the one that offered the most favorable weather conditions, and not only operate on a faster but also on a more reliable schedule because cancelations would be reduced to a minimum. Doubtless it is true that an intermediate stop for gasoline would be necessary. To fuel at New York or Chicago for the complete journey would seriously reduce the pay load capacity of the ships, but if such stop were not scheduled taxiing to the stations or waiting for time would be avoided.

Unlike the railways, the air companies have no proprietary interest in right of way, intermediate stations or emergency landing fields and fueling facilities, so the opportunity to take the initiative is open to all of our air lines.

BOMBING AND OTHER VIOLENCES.

No doubt the bombing of a local printer's establishment was not done by an emissary of NRA, but responsibility for its inspiration is not so easily shirked. Bombing is a resort which propriety suggests must be officially repudiated, if not publicly rebuked. But official protest, if it were indulged in, might reasonably be taken in a Pickwickian sense by practical men who have noted the attitude of representatives of NRA or of the department of labor toward open violence in recent strikes. Protests by agents of the new federal burocracy against the calling out of the National Guard to protect communities from organized violence might reasonably imply a sentiment and, in fact, a policy to which bombing would seem perhaps tactless but hardly illogical.

Editorial of the Day

IF THE TREE BELT SHOULD FAIL.

[A letter signed Leonardo di Galileo in the Engineering News-Record.]

In a recent press notice it was noted that $75,000,000 was to be expended in the development of a so-called timber belt, 100 miles wide, stretching from New Mexico to Canada, across the semi-arid plains of the central west, the object being to create a more equable climate in the Mississippi valley, increase the water supply and diminish wind erosion.

Two alternative schemes have apparently been overlooked, either of which, it is believed, would bring about results fully comparable with the development of the tree belt. The first involves the simple expedient of reversing the rotation of the earth, thus bringing the gulf stream along the Atlantic seaboard, making it a French Riviera, the prevailing easterly winds to carry the moisture to the foothills of the Rockies. The only possible drawback to this scheme would be its effect upon California, for the rotation of the earth from east to west might shift the Japan current farther westward, thus making the California climate much more "unusual" than it is at the present time. In view of the fact, however, that California is largely Republican, it would seem that this minor disadvantage might be overlooked.

The second proposal might not require as much assistance from on high. It is that the Rocky mountains be leveled. These mountains now deflect the moisture laden winds from the Pacific ocean upward, and most all of the moisture is precipitated on their westward slopes, leaving little for the vast Mississippi river basin. Undoubtedly the mineral resources made available in the leveling process would more than pay for the labor involved and in addition the rock could be spread on the 75,000,000 acres of eroding land and help keep it in place. If man hours were taken into consideration it is conservatively estimated that this project would require about the same number of man hours as will be required to water the tree belt after it is once planted and to patrol the 100,000 miles of fence being constructed to protect them.

Neither of these schemes has apparently been given serious consideration and it is suggested that a Rocky mountain leveling administration (RMLA) and an Atlantic ocean westward-ho administration (AOWHA) be formed to study the question.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THERE AND BACK.

A vacation trip to the Nantucket Free State
Is a trip to a foreign land.
You get on a steamer at Woods Hole
Or New Bedford and
There's the same excitement as when you
Go on board a big liner at New York en route
For Southampton or Havre. People rush down with boxes of Candy and great bunches of Flowers for those going away,
And messenger boys gallop around bawling
Out the names of the passengers to Whom farewell telegrams have been sent. There
Are ladies standing on shore
Weeping copiously as they sobbingly say
Good-by
To the dear ones about to Sail across the great gray ocean to Foreign shores; namely, the Free State of Nantucket.
And the ship is just like an ocean
Liner. The purser is very haughty
And throws spasms
And has hysterics
At the sight of any little Dog
Brought aboard by a passenger.
And he sternly orders the dog and the Passenger down to the lee scuppers or
A lonely, dreary place abaft the Steerage or Something like that.
And finally the ship sails, with everybody
Crowding the rails and shrieking good-by to
The friends and relatives left behind.

The first port of call is Martha's Vineyard and almost the entire lot of Passengers go ashore.
But a sturdy few remain and fare forth from
Martha's Vineyard to the far-off
Shores of the Nantucket Free State.
The sea is like glass, it's so smooth, but
Of course there are some people who are Seasick.
They would probably get seasick
In a rowboat on the Lincoln park lagoon.
But, anyhow, it makes it more like a
Voyage to England or France to see them
Hurrying to the rail and calling
Feebly for the steward.
And passengers from the great
Middle West and other parts of the Mother Country or
The Nantucket Free State
(Although many of the Nantucket Free
Staters regard England as the Mother country)
Crowd the rail and gaze eagerly through Field glasses
Looking for whales.
There are no whales around the Nantucket
Free State these days, but the island
Was once the whaling capital of the World
And the ocean all around was alive
With these great monsters of the mysterious
Deep and you never can tell, there
Might be one snooping around there yet.
Anyhow, people from Kansas City and Omaha can never be convinced but that the Man up in the lookout in the maintop
May sing out any moment the glad old cry,
"Thar she blows!"
And then the first mate will run up to
The captain and Shout: "Man in the maintop says,
'Thar she blows.' Shall I Lower?"
And they expect the captain to say: "It's a-
Comin' up to blow great guns and I don't See fitten fer to lower."
And then the mate will drop his head and Go moodily forward and the man in the Maintop will yell: "Thar she Blows and belches and she's three points
Off the weather bow and She's a spermer!"
Anyhow, that's the way the story goes, and the Eager passengers expect the mate finally
To win out and drop the boat and go in Pursuit of the great leviathan of the Mighty deep.
It doesn't happen
Any more, but, anyhow, it's exciting to Expect it.

In the Nantcket Free State things are very Different
From the Mother Country (if America is the Mother Country).
People walk (not run) down the Cobblestone streets with market baskets
On their arms,
And if it's between twelve
And two the shops are Closed. If you can call it closed
Where they put up a wooden bar the size of
Your finger and go home to lunch and a Siesta.
While they're lunching you
Peek through the open shop doors at things
And buy garden flowers or water lilies or Rosemary
From the street venders or amble
Down to the wharf or anything you like except Hold up a bank or business office. Nobody walks
Into an office crowded with people and Waves a machine gun and Says: "Everybody hit the floor; this is a Stickup." In the first place there
Aren't any banks and business
Offices crowded with people. And if a
Gang invaded the Nantucket Free State
And robbed a bank just to keep their Hands in,
After they pulled off their Holdup and got their suitcases full of Money they would have to go down to the Steamship office and wait for the next
Boat back to America.
And the sweet, pleasant little lady who sells
Steamer tickets would say:
"My good men,
You're wasting your money buying
Tickets. Here come the police to get you and They'll take you back to a nice jail
On the mainland and it won't cost you a Nickel."
You see, the great trouble
With pulling off
A stickup in the Nantucket
Free State is that thing of waiting
Around several hours on the Dock until the next boat goes Out.
That's why when we asked for the Keys to the little house we had leased the Owner looked bewildered and said: "Keys,
Keys? What on earth do you want with Keys?" And we felt somewhat embarrassed
And tried to explain, and he smiled and said: "I See, an old Spanish custom. Well, I'll Try to get some keys made if it makes you feel Happier."
Think of it. No keys!
It was like being in heaven.

COLDS.

The nasal mucous membrane performs three important functions.

First, the filtering power of the nasal passages is designed to protect the lungs from dust particles that usually carry bacteria. If bacteria reach the lungs they may be swept outward and expelled by expired air. If the body is in a weakened state bacteria may set up inflammation in the upper air passages, in the bronchi, or in the lung tissue.

Second, the mucous membrane acts as a humidifier; that is, it supplies moisture to the air before it enters the lungs. The amount of moisture supplied—many ounces per day—varies with the humidity in the natural air. When the air breathed is low in humidity the mucous membrane of the nose may be taxed to its utmost to supply moisture. This results in drying of the air passages to such an extent that breaks in the thin epithelium may occur and bacteria thereby find ready lodgment.

Third, on cold days the mucous membrane warms the air to approximately body temperature before it reaches the lungs.

The common cold is the most frequent malady that afflicts people living in the temperate zone. It is known to be infectious; that is, the virus may be conveyed from one person to another. Our custom of occupying poorly ventilated offices, schools, theaters, etc., provides a ready means of spreading the infection.

Most of us fail to take the common cold as seriously as we should. We have perhaps recovered in a day or two from numerous colds. We feel that we must keep on working and that to be absent from our employment two or three days whenever a cold appears is an admission of weakness. Physicians are accustomed, when advising the patient to go to bed, to such replies as, "I just can't; too much depends on me," or "The boss wouldn't stand for it." We attempt to beat the infection and struggle along at half efficiency for a week or longer when rest in bed for two or three days at the onset of the cold would have conquered it.

A cold is not a disease in and of itself. It is a term that describes a combination of symptoms that may result from different causes. Some persons take cold, as we say, more readily than others. Body resistance may be lowered by becoming chilled, by loss of sleep, by irregular and improper meals, and by failure to observe the well known rules of hygiene. In such a situation the body may become an easy prey to infections that would normally be thrown off. Most of the organisms present in the nose and throat do not grow because of the resisting power of the nasal membranes.

Colds that are not promptly overcome may lead to the development of deep-seated infections in the sinuses, the air passages, the throat, and the bronchi. Chronic sinus disease—and many of us know how distressing this condition is—had its origin at some time in an acute infection. Furthermore, the cold that hangs on is the best possible preparation for the onset of pneumonia.

The treatment of colds is directed toward a single objective—namely, the restoration of the resistance of the body to normal. Here are some simple suggestions:

At the onset of a cold take a hot bath or a foot bath of fifteen minutes' duration.

Wrap yourself in a cotton blanket and go to bed.

Drink hot lemonade freely.

Keep warm, with plenty of fresh air in the room.

Take your temperature [every one should know how to do this] and if it is over 100 degrees notify your physician and follow his advice.

Do not take a patent medicine to break a cold.

Alkalis are frequently useful and lemonade will supply them if taken in sufficient quantities; if not, one-half teaspoonful of baking soda two or three times daily will assist.

Surveys have shown that far less time will be lost from employment by prompt early treatment than by the so-called wearing out process. Cold vaccines have now and then shown real protective power. They may be tried by persons who are subject to frequent colds. This latter group should also use foods rich in vitamin A.

BROWN SPOTS.

J. W. W. writes: All over my chest and abdomen I have a mass of brown blotches about the size of a dime. What is this and how can I cure it?

REPLY.

If these areas are slightly raised they are probably seborrheic warts. They may be burned off by the electric needle in the hands of a competent operator.

PEACHES.

Mrs. W. H. O. writes: 1. Are peaches healthful for children?

2. Are malted milks as purchased from a soda fountain?

REPLY.

1. Yes, if they are ripe and peeled.

2. Yes, if prepared in a cleanly and sanitary manner.

LEGAL INTEREST.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My son borrowed $100 from a loan company. I notice that they charge him 3½ per cent per month, which means 42 per cent per year. Is this a proper rate of interest or a holdup? H. G. T.

The small loans act says "it shall be unlawful to make any loan . . . of $300 or less . . . and charge . . . a greater rate of interest than 7 per cent per annum . . . without first obtaining a license from the department of trade and commerce. . . . Every licensee . . . may loan . . . at a rate not to exceed 3½ per cent per month. . . . In addition to the interest . . . no further . . . amount . . . shall be directly or indirectly charged. . . . No person shall owe any licensee at any time more than $300 for principal."

Practically all of the agencies that make small loans at higher rates are unlicensed so that under the first sentence above quoted the loans are void and the victims are under no legal obligation to repay principal or interest. See Matthews vs. Hayden, No. 36590, Ill. App. court, 1st district, decided May 8, 1933. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STREET BASEBALL.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Baseball playing in the street is a menace to car drivers, pedestrians and to taxpayers' property. Taxpayers still have to pay taxes for the upkeep of playgrounds which these youngsters will not use. 1. What has become of the old law prohibiting ball playing in the streets? 2. How can this nuisance be stopped? O. B.

1. Section 4247 of the 1931 code still contains the prohibition to which you refer.

2. The first step would be to complain to the police.

ADDITIONAL EXIT NECESSARY.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—My husband works in a building which is not only insanitary, but lacks the necessary exits in case of fire. There is only one entrance in the front of the building, with the only means of exit in the rear a freight elevator, which moves slowly. The windows in the shop open only half way. There have been inspections, but so far nothing has been done. R. M.

Since receiving this complaint, the owner of this two story building has been notified to provide an additional exit from second floor.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—The movement started here by Gen. Owen O'Duffy, Blue Shirt leader, for the creation of a new parliamentary system based on Fascist Italy's—the principle of the corporative state—is exciting European attention. Public opinion in many countries seems to be unsettled regarding existing parliamentary institutions just as it is in the Irish Free State. This is especially true among the younger generation. Curiously enough, the Italian model appears to be the greatest attraction.

The German Nazi plan does not have the same appeal. Recent events in Germany, which have manifested a complete disregard for the views of the individual and an assumption of complete control by one man, put that system out of consideration.

The youth movement in Europe, it seems, has no use for a dictatorship either on the Italian or German model; but the corporative state apparently presents a better opportunity of giving effect to the conflicting views of the masses of the people.

Norway is the latest recruit to the ranks of those seeking to work out salvation in this way. It has already developed its youth movement to a considerable extent. Twenty thousand young men are enrolled in the Gray Shirt army.

The leaders of the movement have been keenly interested in what has been doing in Ireland and sent a special emissary here to study the situation.

Terje Baalsrud spent several days here discussing the position with Gen. O'Duffy, Senator Blythe, Tom Gumming, and other Blue Shirt leaders. He is 26 years old, well educated, and the personification of the type of keen political agitator.

Baalsrud is on the editorial staf of the Gray Shirt newspaper, the A. B. C. He was sent to Ireland to report on the progress of events here. His youth movement is far from being wealthy. Consequently he made the long journey from Oslo in the cheapest possible way. He reached London on a tramp steamer. His wardrobe was a suit of gray flannels. His means of transportation was a bicycle which carried the tent in which he slept.

After a few days in London he cycled across England and Wales to Fishguard. Then he boarded a steamer for Ireland, landed at Rosslare, and rode his bicycle to Dublin.

Baalsrud was interested in the fact that the De Valera government had endeavored to pass laws to suppress the O'Duffy Blue Shirts. In Norway the Gray Shirts were less fortunate, as a similar act was passed there. The Norwegian youth leader was the first person to be prosecuted under its provisions.

The Norwegian Youth movement regards all parties in parliament as unfriendly. Some of these are alleged to be corrupt and others merely stupid. The new movement hopes to draw its recruits from the younger elements of all of them.

WHY THEY TRAVEL.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 29.—In another attempt to point out the enormous improvement in business generally, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is reported as saying:

A big increase in travel took place during the summer vacation season now drawing to a close. This development is a good sign of better times. It shows people are better able to satisfy their desire "to go places." Moreover, it is a manifestation of confidence in the future.

At a luncheon recently a friend of mine, who sells transportation to all parts of the world, said, "Do you know our business has picked up so much that I took it upon myself to inquire of a number of travelers why they were spending so much at the present time on travel and they invariably replied in about the same way, namely: "The government is going to take our resources anyway, and while we have any left we may as well do the spending ourselves."

So it would appear that the real reason for the great increase in travel is not confidence in the future but fear of the future. ARTHUR B. SCHMIDT.

INSURANCE ASSETS.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—One of your contributors in today's issue expresses his opinion, an opinion shared by many, that the devaluation of the dollar will be felt the hardest by the various holders of life insurance policies, as the value of their insurance will be considerably curtailed.

This view may appear true to any one incapable or unwilling to analyze things more closely. There is quite another side to the picture.

The greatest majority of insurance holders, if not all of them, are also the owners of other forms of property, which will necessarily increase in value in direct proportion as the monetary value of their insurance will be reduced; so at the end those much pitied policyholders may be gainers instead of losers.

Then we must consider that it was the devaluation of the dollar that halted the course of deflation. Insurance companies were not immune to the destructive ravages of that condition, and almost all of them would have found themselves broke if deflation had been permitted to go on longer. What value would insurance policies have retained then?

O, yes, we hear it repeated often enough that things would have gotten better by themselves; but so do savages believe that trains and automobiles run by themselves.

It it is true that there is a brain trust in this country, so there is also a brainless trust that does nothing but shouting and works with pernicious persistence to distort the truth. L. B. U.

INCONSISTENCY ALLEGED.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—After reading Dr. Nahun Goldmann's article in your Aug. 21 issue in which he "warns German Jewry has outlasted all adversaries," I thoroughly understand why he demands the further boycott of Germany, but I fail to comprehend why Dr. Goldmann, who in the same breath recounts that the Jews living in soviet Russia have been crushed by the economic policy of that government, does not demand of world Jewry a double and triple boycott against soviet Russia which has ruined the personal freedom and the economic life not of the Jews only but of all those living under its red banner.

A QUOTATION FROM CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Faribault, Minn., Aug. 23.—I refer you to pages 720 and 721 of the Life of Cardinal Gibbons by Allan Sinclair Will. These pages are in the second volume.

In addressing a group of young priests the cardinal said:

The constitution of the United States is the palladium of our liberties and a landmark in our march of progress. That instrument has been framed by the anxious cares and enlightened zeal of the fathers of the republic. Its wisdom has been tested and successfully proved after a trial of a century and a quarter. It has weathered the storms of the century which is passed and it should be trusted for the centuries to come. Every man that runs about waving a new panacea for social evils is not to be worshiped as a political and moral reformer. We all remember the story of Aladdin or the wonderful lamp. Better to trust to the old lamp of the fathers which has guided the steps of the American people for generations than to confide in every ignis fatuus that may lead us into dangerous pitfalls. Do not disturb the political landmarks of our republic.

I have wondered if your powerful paper could find some way to weave this address into an editorial.

PHYSICISTS AS POLITICAL GUIDES.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Your editorial this morning anent the opinions of the estimable Mr. Millikan and Dr. Compton recalls to mind another column which you printed several months ago, also concerning a scientist.

That earlier item was a scathing rebuke administered to the greatest scientist of them all, Einstein. In it you berated the relativity genius for meddling with political affairs from which he, as a scientist, should have steered clear (even though every fiber of his life and soul was intensely wrapped in the argument).

Now you adopt two other scientists' words because they happen to suit your policies, and you excuse these mathematicians on the ground that they are "interested in human affairs."

RELIEF CHIEFS AGAIN REFUSE O.K. ON DENTAL PLAN

Reflection Follows Stormy Session on Program.

In a stormy session, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday again refused to approve the new dental care program which, according to several members would give private agencies control of hundreds of thousands of dollars of public funds. The agencies are the Illinois State Dental society and the Chicago Dental society, whose membership includes only 60 per cent of the profession.

A proposal to formally commit the organization to distribute all its millions among only those merchants and manufacturers complying with every provision of their NRA code, brought further bitter argument. The arguments failed to move George A. Barr, commission member from Joliet, but the resolution was adopted by a six to one vote.

Boost Relief Costs.

Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, as a commission member, took the lead in the discussion of the new dental care program, which through higher fees will add an estimated $200,000 annually, to the cost of relief. He announced receipt of a letter from the Illinois society rejecting a suggestion that "organized dentistry" be content to act in an advisory capacity under the plan.

"The proper authorities," Mr. Sexton read, "find it impossible to approve this plan wherein it deals with the employment of dental examiners who would be responsible only to the commission.

"This document," said Mr. Sexton, "seems to put the society on record as rejecting our plan."

Defends Dr. Bremner.

Dr. M. D. K. Bremner, who was ousted as director of the examination and extraction clinic for indigents by Dr. Stanley D. Tylman, president of the Chicago Dental society, was then introduced to the commission by Mr. Sexton.

"Dr. Bremner devoted 25 months without pay to this cause," Mr. Sexton declared. "He was unfairly cast out without the knowledge of this commission, and I think we owe him a debt of gratitude. The thing that struck me was that his services were terminated without our knowing about it.

"I think it's about time that we got organized so that we will be supervising dental care. My position is going to be that I will try to stop the societies from running it."

Build Political Societies.

Dr. Bremner said that in handing over several hundred thousand dollars to officials of "organized dentistry" the commission is giving these men the power to build political organizations within the societies.

Dr. Harold W. Oppice, chairman of the public welfare committee of the Illinois society, objected. He said it was "ridiculous to think that dentistry should bring its dirty linen before a commission like this." Dr. Oppice declared that Dr. Bremner was dismissed because it was believed he had leaned toward socialistic theories. However, he admitted that the public had been served well under the ousted director's leadership.

Sexton Gives Warning.

"If we can't get along with the societies representing 60 per cent of the dentists," Corporation Counsel Sexton warned him in closing, "we will get along without the dentists themselves."

When it was proposed that the commission should fix a course of following the NRA blindly, Commissioner Barr said he would not withdraw the objection he expressed at a previous meeting.

It was recalled that the commission had invariably made its purchases from merchants complying fully with NRA codes, so the wording of the resolution was changed to read that this policy "be continued." The impending purchase of 1,500,000 tons of charity coal will be made in line with code rulings, making its cost an estimated $300,000 more than on the basis of last year's prices.

CHIEF ENGINEER WILL O. K. BIDS ON SCHOOL COAL

John Howatt, chief engineer for the board of education, said yesterday that he would recommend that the school trustees accept the recent bids on coal. The specifications, under which the bidding was conducted, provide that the school board pay the dealers for the coal on a basis of heat value instead of tonnage. This provision is expected to save the board approximately $50,000 on 159,500 tons of coal to be purchased.

There were 38 bidders for the contracts, the largest number ever applying for the school board's coal business. Under the NRA code the bids were identical on tonnage though the heat gauged by British thermal units varied, according to Howatt.

The bids were $5.20 for steam egg coal, $4.30 for screenings and $4.70 for nut. The coal will all come from southern Illinois mines in Franklin, Williamson, and Saline counties. Samples of the coal will be examined at the school testing laboratory, 68th street and Stewart avenue, according to Howatt's plan, and the heat value of the coal will be determined.

Missing Boy and Chum Arrested in Stolen Auto

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 39; recovered, 50; stripped, 1 (from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Thursday).

Two boys were held at the Juvenile home yesterday following their arrest in a stolen automobile at Laramie avenue and Hirsch street by Sergt. Martin Boyle of Austin station, ending a two day search here and at Channel Lake, Wis. The boys, Raymond Busa, 13 years old, 1706 Narragansett avenue, son of a precinct captain in the 36th ward, and an unidentified companion, said the automobile had been given them "by a friend." The Busa boy, who disappeared from his home Tuesday, was reported later riding in a car at Channel lake, which led police to make inquiries there.

MAYOR TO SEEK SETTLEMENT OF TAG DAY DISPUTE

Plans to Confer with Aldermen.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that he would call a conference of the city council tag day committee to compose the dispute over the city-wide tag day scheduled for Sept. 17. The council committee authorized "unendorsed charitable agencies" to conduct the fund solicitation.

"Apparently," the mayor commented, "there has been some misunderstanding. This tag day situation must be ironed out."

The mayor's statement followed a conference with Mrs. Frank Specht, acting president of the Chicago Federated Charities. For 15 years the federated group consisting of 17 charities endorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce, had been awarded the September tag day.

Denies Stirring Up Politics.

The federated agencies withdrew from participation in the Sept. 17 solicitation, however, when the city council committee helped to form a new body, the Chicago Associated Charities, containing a majority of enterprises not endorsed by the Association of Commerce. On Wednesday, the federated group made a final request for a tag day of its own.

Mrs. Specht denied statements made by the council tag day committee on Thursday to the effect that the federated group was guilty of injecting politics into the situation.

"We never have brought politics into the Federated Charities at any time," she said.

City Hall Reaction.

Meantime, from quarters in the city hall other than the mayor's office came an echo of the tag day issue. Silent up to yesterday, Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], chairman of the tag day committee, replied to a Chicago Federated Charities announcement that the organization intended to tag on Sept. 13 whether or not the council authorized the tag day.

Ald. Rowan said that if the federated group carried out its plan, and staged an unauthorized tag day, he would take steps to abolish all tag days.

"If we can't have orderly tag days we shouldn't have any," Ald. Rowan declared. "There should be less malice and more charity among those seeking the aid of the public."

Policeman Nottingham Suspended for 2 Days

Policeman Norman Nottingham, whose affections were given a court value of $7,500 when his wife, Suzanne, won a judgment of that amount in an alienation suit against Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackidge, was in further trouble yesterday. He was ordered suspended for two days from duties at the Grand Crossing station for failure to turn over the personal effects of a man drowned off Rainbow beach on June 23.

NEW STOP SIGNALS GOVERNED BY TRAFIC GO INTO OPERATION

The state highway department turned on yesterday its first modern traffic control lights, a set of vehicular actuated stop and go signals at Harlem and North avenues. They replaced four stop signs that discommoded 25,000 motorists daily and 40,000 on Sundays.

Detector pads on the pavement respond to the passage of automobiles and operate the red and the green so as to give preference to the heavier movement of traffic. With this type of equipment there is no waiting on the red at a vacant cross street.

There are a few such installations in Chicago, and the state is installing its second set at Harlem avenue and 22d street.

"It's the type of light that the motorists respect and will obey," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club. "Unnecessary delays at fixed time lights encourage drivers to run through the red when they see there is no cross traffic.

"Such a control system would have met the needs of traffic on the lightly traveled new north and south roads in Du Page county, where the state has built $150,000 grade separations at the intersection with arterial highways. Then the grade separations could have been built at the bottle necks where two busy thoroughfares intersect."

The equipment is being installed by the state on contracts awarded on competitive bids. The cost is approximately $2,500 per intersection.

JOHN M'ILVAINE WEDS SECRETARY; TAKES TRIP EAST

John H. McIlvaine, president of the McIlvaine Burner corporation, 663 Washington boulevard, was married Thursday to his secretary, Miss Mildred Petrina, it was disclosed yesterday. The ceremony was a quiet one and performed at 1 oclock in the afternoon in the New England Congregational church, 19 West Delaware place.

McIlvaine was divorced in Reno on April 10 last by Mrs. Margaret Pullman McIlvaine, a grandniece of George Pullman, founder of the car company. The suit, in which Mrs. McIlvaine charged cruelty, was heard in chambers.

Miss Petrina, who is 27 years old and lived at 1305 East avenue, Berwyn, had been employed in McIlvaine's office for the past ten years. The couple left for a honeymoon in the east and will return to Chicago Wednesday. The groom lives at 1100 Lake Shore drive.

Crippled Orphans Given Picnic by Sunbeam League

Forty crippled orphans living at the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Children, 4448 South Michigan avenue, were entertained yesterday at their 22d annual circus frolic and supper by the Sunbeam League of Chicago, a women's organization conducting fifteen kindergartens throughout the city. The event climaxed the summer term of kindergarten held at the home.

SLUGGED RELIEF CLERK IN OFFICE; GIVEN $100 FINE

Joseph Mandernach, 32 years old, 1509 South 51st court, Cicero, was fined $100 and costs by Police Magistrate Henry J. Sandusky of Cicero yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct and assault in the slugging of an employé of a Cicero emergency relief station Aug. 18.

According to Assistant Attorney General Harry Muscat, who is assigned to emergency relief headquarters here, the charges grew out of an attack Mandernach made on Richard Walsh, employed at the Cicero relief station at 1916 South 52d street.

Mandernach, married and the father of two children, and regarded as a leader in the unemployed council, was evicted by his landlord in Cicero early in August, Mr. Muscat said. The relief station offered him a choice of three houses which he refused to occupy. Eventually provided with a place to live, Mandernach objected to the rule requiring him to turn in his automobile license plates before going on relief rolls, and went to the station to protest. While there, according to evidence in the case, he attacked Walsh, a smaller man, when Walsh attempted to talk the case over with him in a conference room.

Mandernach was defended at the trial yesterday by Julius Borin, an attorney supplied by the International Labor Defense council.

The case orginally went to trial Aug. 17, at which time a number of friends and supporters of Mandernach attended court. In a disturbance there, John Wright, 35 years old, 4800 Winona avenue, was arrested. It was charged he mishandled Miss Margaret Shelly, supervisor of the relief station as a part of the demonstration in support of Mandernach. Wright, according to Mr. Muscat, is communist candidate for congress from the 6th district.

Wright was to have gone to trial with Mandernach Aug. 24, the date to which Mandernach's case was continued. On that date Magistrate Sandusky heard the evidence but postponed judgment until yesterday, when he pronounced sentence on Mandernach. Because Miss Shelly was not present when Wright's case was called it was put over to Sept. 21.

THANKFUL OWN CHILD IS WELL, SO GIVES TO ICE FUND

Thankfulness for the good health of her child prompted a mother who wished her name to be omitted to send a contribution yesterday to The Tribune's free ice fund.

"I am enclosing a dollar gift from my little girl, Margaret," the mother wrote. "I only wish it could be a great deal more, but I am so very grateful for her health during the hot summer which was due in large measure to our mechanical icebox. I am hoping this will help keep some one else's baby in good health."

Another gift, 12, came from the Junior auxiliary of the Morgan Park chapter of the O. E. S., No. 885. These contributions [illegible] to send to a grand total of $9,491.21.

A gift, through error, was acknowledged on Aug. 26 "In memory of A. Herbert." This was sent by Mrs. A. Herbert King in memory of A. Herbert King. All friends of the ice fund as well as the Camp Algonquin fund which sends mothers and children on free vacations of two weeks, should direct their gifts to the cashier of The Tribune, Tribune Tower.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: A Grim Fairy Tale

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

After a summer in movieland the only preacher in the song and gag writing business is motoring back toward Chicago for a visit with his former parish before going on to New York to return to his mission church and his radio activities on behalf of Joe Penner. The minister is the Rev. Henry Scott Rubel, who uses the pen name of Hal Raynor, former rector of St. Michael's and All Angels parish, Berwyn.

"Hollywood has been good to us," the Rev. Mr. Rubel wrote the other day to Gordon Best, Chicago advertising man and an official of the Berwyn parish. The rector has been writing songs and script for Penner's picture, recently completed. In a letter he told of striking up a friendship with the Fredric Marches and also related that he had recently had luncheon with Eddie Cantor. The banjo eyed comedian disclosed that he plans to make a trip to Europe in December after he does his eight weeks on the air for that coffee concern.

"And will you visit Germany?" the Rev. Mr. Rubel inquired.

"No," Eddie replied, "I wouldn't like to see Cantor on toast."

Harry Richman, who is in town to play an engagement at the Ches Paree, yesterday was telling about his new show "Say When," scheduled to open on Broadway in a few weeks. Asked how he would do his radio show with Jack Denny, which falls at 10:30 on Wednesday nights, Harry disclosed a scheme which might prove popular in Chicago. The plan is to have the show open at 7:45 on Wednesday nights, making it a suburban night. Final curtain would be shortly after 10 o'clock allowing a few minutes to get to the radio station.

"O'Neill had the customers turning out regularly at 5 o'clock," said Harry recalling "Strange Interlude." "I don't see why they wouldn't be willing to let Richman 'Say When' one night a week."

The Revelers have been engaged to sing on the Baker-Beetle-Bottle program Sept. 14. Floyd Gibbons, who is piloting this show in the absence of Phil Baker, leaves the program the same date. He has a new series of his own starting the following day.

When Lawrence Tibbett returns to the air Tuesday, Sept. 18, over NBC, Wilfred Pelletier, Metropolitan Opera conductor, will direct the orchestra providing the musical background. John B. Kennedy, commentator, will also be featured. Tibbett will need his dramatic as well as his musical abilities on the new program, which will be sponsored by the auto maker who suggests "Ask the Man Who Owns One."

13 PERSONS HURT WHEN ELEVATOR DROPS 4 FLOORS

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Thirteen persons, ten of them women, were injured today when an elevator with 21 passengers dropped from the fourth floor to the bottom of the shaft in the Lefcourt State building.

An investigation was begun as soon as the injured were removed from the car.

Ten of the injured are in hospitals. Three went home after first aid treatment.

The elevator operator, Morris Brown, 26, a Negro, also was sent home to recuperate from the shaking up after he had told his story to the police and building inspectors.

Brown said that his car moved very slowly as he started up. The machine began to slip downward before he could get the doors open at the fourth floor, his first stop. He said he threw the operating machinery into reverse, and when that failed to help matters threw the emergency switch, which is supposed to cut off all power and lock all brakes. The car continued downward, gathering momentum until it crashed against the springs at the bottom of the shaft.

LOOP BROKERS INDICTED FOR U.S. MAIL FRAUD

James B. Crowley and Frank L. Doherty, former partners in the defunct Crowley & Doherty investment house at 120 South La Salle street, were named in indictments returned yesterday before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, charging them with using the mails to defraud. Bond for each was set at $10,000.

The two are charged with having defrauded about 200 investors in and around Chicago of between $250,000 and $300,000. Assistant United States District Attorney Warren Canaday presented the case to the grand jury. Each was indicted on seven counts.

Mr. Canaday asserted that the Rev. M. J. Conway, 1610 Semple street South Bend, Ind., was the principal loser among the victims. The Rev. Mr. Conway lost $45,000 of funds belonging to widows and orphans, which he had invested in worthless brewery stock marketed by the defendants, the federal prosecutor said.

RITES TOMORROW IN BARRINGTON FOR W. C. DODGE

Mr. Dodge died on Tuesday at the home of a son, C. Boyd Dodge, in Scottville, Mich. The body was cremated yesterday.

Mr. Dodge was born in Pulaski, N. Y., in 1848 and came to Illinois as a boy. Among the schools he served as teacher or principal were the Cook County Normal school, the Franklin school and the Alcott school. He was a district supervisor for 16 years. In 1926 he was retired on pension, and after the death of his wife several years ago he moved to Michigan with his son.

ALL OF MARRYING PARSON'S KNOTS MAY COME UNTIED

Battle in Court Tuesday; "Love Guide" Bared.

Some 250 couples married in Crown Point, Ind., by the Rev. H. Oscar Stevens, self-styled "marrying parson," may not be married at all in the eyes of the Indiana law, it appeared yesterday.

On Thursday it was revealed that County Clerk George W. Sweigart of Lake county, Ind., had withheld from his records the returns on 30 recent marriages performed by the Rev. Mr. Stevens, on advice from County Attorney George E. Hershman that the pastor was not recognized by an Indiana church and therefore was not legally qualified to perform marriages.

Yesterday Mr. Hershman expressed his opinion that the remainder of the 250 couples the pastor had married since his arrival in Crown Point were affected by the Rev. Mr. Stevens' challenged right.

Injunction Hearing Set.

The next development in the situation will come next Tuesday, when Circuit Judge C. V. Ridgeley of Gary is expected to rule on a petition for an injunction restraining the county clerk from further refusing to record marriages performed by the Rev. Mr. Stevens. If the injunction is denied, Attorney Hershman said, the status of the 320 couples whose marriages were recorded also will be in doubt.

The pastor himself apparently was unperturbed by the storm that has broken about him. He scoffed at opinions that his marriages are illegal.

"I'm fully qualified as a Presbyterian minister and am capable of performing marriages anywhere," he said. "I'm getting a dirty deal by all this publicity. I intend to keep on performing marriages. It's my only source of income aside from what my wife makes by sewing."

Will Tell "Love Secrets."

County Clerk Sweigart announced that he intends to testify at next Tuesday's injunction hearing concerning a letter the Rev. Mr. Stevens has allegedly handed out to couples he has married. The letter instructs the newlyweds in the intimate art of remaining happily married, quoting two physicians as authority. It also contains a suggestion for predetermining the sex of children. The pastor yesterday refused to show a reporter a copy of the letter.

The pastor charged that Sweigart raised the regular marriage license fee of $2 to $7.50 after hours and on holidays, and to $10 after midnight, and that he made a charge for marriage certificates which the Rev. Mr. Stevens provides without charge. He has three grades of certificates to pass out, depending on the price the couple pays for being married, he said.

THAT FAMED SEA SERPENT BOBS UP IN OUR LAKE

Lake Michigan graduated last night from sea lions to sea serpents.

The sea lion which caused all the excitement lately was put in the shade by the 60 foot sea serpent reported sighted last night by the S. S. Theodore Roosevelt during its nightly cruise about the lake.

To put it in the language of Capt. G. E. Stufflebeam:

"We were about four miles off shore, headed nor'east by north, when, just a point off the sta'board bow——"

[No, let's don't use his language, it's too hard to understand.]

Anyway, Lookout Donald Steele cried, "Sea serpent, ahoy!"

"Where away?" called Capt. Stufflebeam.

Steele used the nautical term for "Right over there, you dope," and Capt. Stufflebeam ordered the two forward flood lights to play on the creature.

"There it was," he said, "wriggling and twisting around and swimming faster than the ship was going. We kept it in sight for about five minutes."

Passengers on deck saw the serpent and cried affrightedly up to the bridge to ask what it was. Capt. Stufflebeam didn't know. Neither did his guest, H. J. Cook, former steamship line official, who also saw it.

Presently, after passengers with glazed eyes had thrown a number of bottles away, the sea serpent flicked its tail and started for Benton Harbor.

And that's Capt. Stufflebeam's story, which he sticks to.

Autumn Social Season Opens in City Today

Weddings and Benefits Get Attention.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE first day of September and the beginning of autumn. As the fall season is ushered in [theoretically, though not officially until the 21st] the society mind turns from the eastern seaboard, Wisconsin's north woods, and dude ranching to wedding processions, debut receptions, schoolbooks, and charity benefits.

June is commonly credited as the month of brides, but September and October, when the leaves are turning red and the tang of burning wood is in the air, have become close rivals as the preferred time of year for many of the most fashionable ceremonies.

Proof is offered today in the recording of four weddings of interest to Chicago society.

Mary MacCaughey to Be Bride Today.

On today's list of brides is Miss Mary Houston MacCaughey, daughter of the Andrew Bonner MacCaugheys, a fourth generation Chicagoan, being a great-granddaughter of Thomas M. Avery, a member of the Junior league and the Service club, and one of the most thoroughly liked young women in Chicago. She will be married at 4 o'clock this afternoon to John Jacob Schreiner, son of the Charles A. Schreiners, in a ceremony at the MacCaugheys' house, 535 Warwick road, Kenilworth.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will repeat her wedding vows with Mr. Schreiner after the Rev. Christoph Keller of the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park. Just relatives and a few close friends will witness the ceremony, which will take place in the living room, but the reception following at 4:30 will be larger.

Mrs. Russell Boyer of Glendale, Cal., who played for the wedding of the former Margaret Avery to Mr. MacCaughey, is here from California to play for the wedding of the MacCaugheys' daughter.

Bickell-James Rites on North Shore.

Near by the MacCaughey-Schreiner nuptials on the north shore today, Miss Mary Ella Bickell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Bickell of New York City, will become the bride of George Francis James Jr. The service will be read at 4 o'clock by Dean Frederick Grant of the Western Theological seminary at the home of Miss Bickell's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Leo Daily, at 221 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette. A reception will follow in the garden.

After a wedding trip Mr. James . . . his mother is Mrs. George F. James of Kimbark avenue . . . and his bride will settle in Columbus, O., where Mr. James has a position on the law faculty of Ohio State university.

Owen-Siter Nuptials at Bar Harbor.

This afternoon in Bar Harbor, Me., a young man who has been living in Chicago for several years, Raymond F. Owen, will take as his bride Miss Mary Siter, daughter of Mrs. Barry Siter of Philadelphia and Bar Harbor.

The wedding will be very quiet and Mr. Owen and his bride will be in Chicago by the 10th of this month.

Still another wedding which will take place today is that of Miss Louise Canfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Canfield of Summerville, N. J., to Walton M. Wheeler Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton M. Wheeler of Evansville, Ind. The marriage will take place in the gardens, provided it is fair, of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Chace's home on Meadow lane in Winnetka. Mr. Chace and the bride's father are cousins.

Tell Engagement of Margaret Harding.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cowden Harding of Evanston today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Cowden, to Charles Hogg Cecil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Samuel Cecil of Hazel Green, Ky. Miss Harding, who attended the Principia school in St. Louis and Northwestern university, is a member of the Evanston Junior League. Mr. Cecil, who is engaged in business in Chicago, attended the University of Kentucky. The wedding will be an event of early fall.

Of interest here is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Jean Markham Herring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Grant Herring of Princeton, N. J., to John Alexander Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Robertson of Utica, N. Y. Miss Herring is the maternal granddaughter of the late Edwin Cowles Markham of Chicago.

Mrs. Valentine to Be Long Island Hostess.

Members of the Long Island colony are going to be entertained at one of the most festive parties of the season this evening when Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine has a "gay nineties" dinner dance at her Southampton summer home, Valmay. Every detail of the affair is to be reminiscent of the merry decade. All of the guests will come in costume and the decorations have been done by Charles Frankenbach.

Mr. Frankenbach has hung the walls of Mrs. Valentine's home with cartoons of many of the social notables of the '90s in coaches and fours and on bicycles built for two. Two orchestras are to furnish the music for dancing and a number of professional entertainers are coming out from New York City to provide a floor show.

The Southampton colony has not forgotten the farm dance given by Mrs. Valentine two years ago and an even gayer, better time is expected this evening. Among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs.

Moulding-Rumsey Nuptials

MR. AND MRS. HENRY RUMSEY JR.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

At Hyllgarth, the summer home of her parents, the Joseph W. Mouldings, at Delavan Lake, Miss Margaret Moulding became the bride yesterday afternoon of Henry Axtell Rumsey Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rumsey. The service was read at 4 o'clock by Dr. Alfred Newbery of the Church of the Atonement before a flower banked altar in the living room.

For her wedding the bride wore a trained gown of white velvet simply fashioned with a high neckline and long tight sleeves. At the neck and wrist was a cording of velvet. The same cording held in place a billowy veil of French tulle. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids and valley lilies.

In striking contrast was the turquoise blue velvet gown worn by Mrs. Milbert Palm of Denver, the bride's only attendant. Mrs. Palm's hat was brown velvet and her bouquet brown orchids. Tiny Marjorie Moulding, a niece of the bride, wore a bouffant dress of peach organdy, to fulfill her duties of flower girl. Ernest A. Hamill II. of Lake Forest served Mr. Rumsey as best man.

After the ceremony there was a reception for the wedding guests with the parents of both the bride and bridegroom in the receiving line with them. Mrs. Moulding was gowned in aquamarine crêpe with a corsage of gardenias on her shoulder. Mrs. Rumsey wore the same color crêpe, only a deeper shade.

After a wedding trip Mr. Rumsey and his bride are coming back to Chicago to live in the Marshall Field Garden apartments.

A LADY from Missouri (or perhaps she was the old lady from Dubuque), wearing a mauve decade hat, walked along Michigan avenue seeing the sights one day early this week. When she came to 26 South Michigan she stopped to stare into the window of the Theater Art exhibit. Her eye traveled along the notice: " . . . . 600 Original Paintings for Stage and Costume Designs from Fifteen Countries. . . . . " This obviously interested her, so she paid her 35 cents and started to look at the exhibition. In a few minutes she was back at the cashier's table.

"It's only pictures," she sniffed. "I want my money back." She was given back her money by the dazed cashier, who still is wondering what the woman thought she was going to see.

THE RT. REV. SHIRLEY NICHOLS, Episcopal bishop of Kyoto, Japan, and Mrs. Nichols visited A Century of Progress a few days ago. Their son Jamie got separated from them in the crowd, and it was some time before he was found. When the bishop discovered his son he was engaged in finding out all he could about Mormonism in the Mormon exhibit in the Hall of Religion.

A SCHOOLMARM herself made the wisecrack, so perhaps we can repeat it. In one scene in the Pageant of the Celts at Soldiers' field Ireland was depicted as the center of world culture, sending out missionaries and scholars to the four corners of the world. The participants in the pageant moved about in a circle, and one member of a group of noisy spectators inquired the significance of their behavior. Josephine Donovan, a school teacher from Kew Gardens, Long Island, explained that the circling about indicated the curriculum. "When they had circled long enough to be dizzy they were sent out to teach," she explained.

MAYOR KELLY told the audience at the Pageant of the Celts at Soldiers' field the other evening that he was "thrilled to the bone." And the audience, shivering in the wind, wondered if he didn't mean chilled as well as thrilled.

TWO ladies were sitting in the open air auditorium on the Swift bridge when the Chicago Symphony orchestra was tuning up a few days ago. The air was rent with cacophony, and one of the women turned to her companion and commented:

"This is the overture. I've heard it on the radio a lot of times, and it sounds just like this."

Prof. J. O. Stieglitz Weds Mary Rising; Both on U. of C. Staf

Julius O. Stieglitz, professor emeritus of the University of Chicago department of chemistry, was married on Thursday to Miss Mary M. Rising, an associate professor, also in the chemistry department, it was revealed yesterday by faculty friends.

The ceremony was performed in the Thorndike Hilton chapel of the university's theological institute. The couple will make their home at 5028 Kenwood avenue.

Prof. Stieglitz is one of the veterans of the university faculty, having been connected with the university since 1892. He was born in Hoboken, N. J., in 1867, and was educated both in this country and in Germany. His first wife, Mrs. Anna S. Stieglitz, died in December, 1932.

Paderewski Sells Last of His California Ranch

Santa Barbara, Cal., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Ignace Jan Paderewski, noted pianist, reports from Santa Maria said today, has sold his 2,000 acre ranch to J. E. O'Donnell. Lying in Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties, the acreage is what remains of a once large ranch. He sold much of this after the world war to obtain funds to aid his native Poland, of which he became premier.

Good Morning!

This Chicago censor board breaks my heart!

Just as I have my reviews all set up for the week-end—up they gallop with a permit to show "The Life of Vergie Winters"! Of course they are to be congratulated on having seen the light, but—well—of COURSE they are to be congratulated. [Though I do hear they've not been sparing with the scissors.]

This much discussed and bandied about photoplay deals with the life of a lovely woman, prevented from marriage with the man she loves by the malicious, money bought lies of her father—who informs her finance that she's compelled to become the wife of another man.

Not until John Shadwell has married the girl of his people's choice does the truth come out. After which—for twenty years, Shadwell and Vergie Winters spend every possible moment together. . . .

A child is born. Shadwell, now a prominent politician, adopts the little girl, telling his colorless and indifferent wife it is the child of an old friend.

Vergie, who has gone to a big city for the blessed event, returns to her home town and reopens her millinery shop—the rooms in the rear, which are her home, becoming, as before, the scene for her meetings with Shadwell.

Political enemies of the statesman ferret out the secret, and soon only the demi-monde patronize the store. . . .

The finale is melodramatic—and, I think, quite sad and tragic enough to satisfy any hound for punishment of the errant.

The story, you see, is in no way new. It has been told, with variations, throughout the ages, and the same minor chords were struck in "Back Street." This picture's pull lies in its moving presentation, its cleanly drawn characters.

The opening scenes, showing Vergie, haggard and desperately unhappy, looking down from the windows of her cell upon the funeral procession of her murdered lover, are most effective. The rest of the tale is depicted by flashback.

See you tomorrow!

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

It is often believed that flowers breathe at night and consume oxygen which is needed by the sleeping person. This is true, but the amount of oxygen consumed is so small that no possible harm could result. Likewise, the amount of carbon dioxide given off by the plant is entirely negligible. An ordinary lamp flame would produce more carbon dioxide than a good sized oak tree. In hospitals flowers are not removed from the wards at night unless by request of the patients.

Tells Epworth League Co-ops Will Save U. S.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

More than 800 Methodist youths representing every section of the country yesterday began establishing their convictions on practically all religious, economic, international and social questions at their national council sessions proceeded into the second day at the First Methodist church, Evanston.

Following forums on problems, the youths divided into groups of 50 for free discussion. Yesterday the claims of the coöperative movement were presented. This movement, the youths were told, not only will be the savior of the church but also the answer to communism and socialism. Miss Helen Topping of Tokio, Japan, secretary to Toyohiko Kagawa, internationally famous Christian evangelist, told the youths of the strides the coöperatives are making in Japan under Kagawa's leadership.

"There is no hope for the continued influence of the church without the coöperatives," Miss Topping declared, and added that "there is no hope for the coöperatives without the church. The coöperative movement is advancing rapidly not only in this country but also in Denmark, Germany, Scandinavian countries and Japan, where the movement now has 25,000,000 members under Kagawa's leadership."

Miss Topping explained that Kagawa's coöperatives are of seven kinds—consumers, producers, marketing which takes care of relationships between production and consumption; the establishment of a credit union bank, utilities coöperatives, mutual aid and insurance coöperatives which take care of "charity" as well as medical and hospital aid, and international coöperatives.

"In some sections of Japan, medical and hospital costs have been reduced from 28 per cent of incomes to 9 per cent through the coöperatives. One hundred and fifty hospitals of Japan are now coöperative."

One May Give Oneself Good HomeManicure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

When hands themselves are well cared for, a weekly manicure is all that is necessary, with an occasional softening of the edges of the nails with an emery board, or pushing back the cuticle after washing the hands. There are many women who have never had their nails attended to by a professional manicurist. Still one rarely sees a woman who neglects her nails if she makes any pretense whatever of being well turned out.

For those who do not feel they can afford the services of a manicurist regularly, I would suggest that they make several trips to a beauty salon and treat themselves to manicures. Watch each step carefully so that your home-grown manicure may resemble as closely as possible the salon treatment.

First, wash the hands in warm water, using a bland soap. Scrub the area about the nails with a nail brush. Dry the hands.

Shape the nails with a long, flexible, steel file, using a stroke of the file from the side of the nail to the tip. The shape and length of the nail depend largely upon the shape and length of the fingers. The oval or round nail seems to meet with greatest popularity.

After the filing, you want to push back the cuticle. This must be done gently otherwise you may bruise the nail and cause white spots to appear under it. Cover an orange wood stick with a bit of cotton, and dip into the cuticle remover. Moisten the rim all around the nail and clean under the nail. After applying the cuticle remover on each nail, rub with a towel. The dried skin comes off easily. To keep the cuticle soft and pliable rub in a little cuticle oil or cream.

Again wash the hands and push back the cuticle gently. Hands and nails are now clean and the nails are ready for your polish. The polish used is a matter of personal choice, but unless your hands are always well groomed, it is well to be conservative in your selection of a polish.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Delicate skin like hers needs the blandest of soaps as a cleansing agent. A new soap that has liquid cleansing cream in its composition fills the bill perfectly.

Women ought to take up a petition for the canonization of the man or woman who thought of cream soaps. They're positive manna from heaven because they permit the woman with dry skin the comfort and the clean feeling of a good scrubbing.

There's no denying that skin dryness is the most serious complexion problem we women have nowadays. Appreciation of cleanliness and proper diet has eliminated a good deal of the old difficulty of blemishes. The ill effects of extreme dryness are particularly worthy of a little thought because they sneak up on you before you know it. You go along for years and years mildly annoyed by peeling or a crinkled surface, but you don't do much about it—and then, long before nature intended you should look your age, you're appalled to discover that you're wrinkled.

And wrinkles, as you know, are pretty hard customers to deal with. They can be prevented, but there's grave doubt in our mind that they can be dislodged once they've decided to take up permanent residence.

Harsh soaps help the wrinkle cause along much more effectively than you'd think. That's why, for every type of skin except the most oily, we recommend the rich cream soaps.

There is a new cleansing cream soap on the market that's nicely priced and absolutely top hole in quality. We've worked with it for weeks and we know. A liquid cleansing cream is part of its composition and the resulting product is so bland and actually soothing that it can be used on the most delicate skin. It lathers beautifully; for a soap so soft and satiny a bar lasts a long time and the perfumes are delightful.

It's pretty soap, too, which means something these days when the decorative standards of bathrooms are so high. The jasmine is green, the gardenia white, the lavender a soft orchid, and the almond fragrance a pretty peach. It's in shops all over.

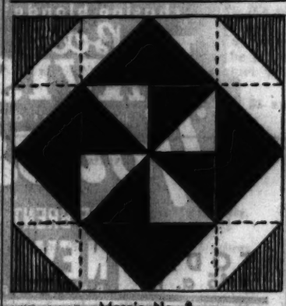
Right Triangles Are Fundamental in Mosaic Quilt



Mosaic No. 8.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Mosaic No. 8" is composed entirely of right triangles and is made in white, gold, and Venetian red. In arranging the pieced blocks in a coverlet one may create six distinct patterns. Twenty-six pieced and sixteen plain blocks complete the quilt arrangement.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

A 'Background' Frock Starts Fall Wardrobe

It Provides Many Changes of Costumes.

BY RHEA SLEGER.

Some understanding person has christened them "background" dresses—these superslim, one piece affairs that should be the smart skeleton of a well assembled fall wardrobe. With such a background model (and there isn't any reason why the thing can't be deep brown, dark blue or dark, dark green), some of the best fashion tricks of the season are turned.

You start enthusiastically with the frock. Buy one that is flawlessly perfect as to streamline, simple and long of sleeve, and this year rather high of neckline. Avoid any superfluous ruffles, godets, shirrings, and trimmings. Sink all or most of your weekly allowance in the dress itself. Then the fun begins.

There are so many ways of evolving a different costume that it isn't an idle boast that you can change your appearance completely every day for a month with just the accessories you wear with this "background." Collar and cuff sets; velvet or velveteen scarfs; belts or plaid velvet or of wide, to be crushed smartly suede with huge decorative buckles resembling locomotive headlights; costume jewelry, consisting of big chest pins, wide bracelets, big clips, all of glittering metal, the shinier the better; and gloves teamed with matching cuffed gloves and a handbag.

This "background dress" can be contrasted with scintillating accent of lamé and metal cloth for a swanky afternoon costume. Black with silver or gold, dark green with coppery lamés, and blue are undeniably the most romantic, with silver or silver gilt effects crossed with streaks of patterns of sapphire blue tones in the metallic brocades. Taffeta trimmings, such as splashing big chest bows, double bands that form the new upstanding collar, deep shirred cavalier cuffs, and a taffeta trimmed hat are a few of the possibilities.

Buy your "background" frock now and start the fashion magic with darling new accessories and accents.

BLAZING GUNS

By WILLIAM MacLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Cole Sanborn, fearless young outlaw and suspected train robber, sits with contemptuous unconcern on the porch of the Jonesboro house, in the stronghold of his enemies, while the sheriff of Boone county advises him to get out of town. Jerry Haskell, foreman of the Circle 3 T ranch, owned by Chet Radbourne, powerful boss in the county, comes along. There is bitter warfare between their brand and Sanborn. Haskell gives Sanborn an hour to get out of town. With Haskell was a young woman who went on in the hotel. She is Mary Landis, ward of Chet Radbourne. She inherited the Lazy B ranch from her uncle. Her range lies next to Radbourne's. When Sanborn goes upstairs Mary stops him. She tells him that Radbourne is holding her a virtual prisoner, stalling her settle, and is trying to force her to marry him. Knowing that Radbourne is their common enemy, Mary asks Sanborn to be foreman of her ranch. Her only escape, Sanborn tells her, is to marry a man strong enough to hold his own against the Circle 3 T killers. Mary strikes a bargain with him. She will marry him in name only and pay him well to be her foreman. Anxious to rid the county of Radbourne's despotic rule Sanborn agrees and gives his word to live up to the agreement. They send for a minister who marries them, unwillingly, because of Sanborn's bad name.

INSTALMENT VI.

WEDDED WITHOUT SENTIMENT.

Calvin Brown shook hands with the girl. "I hope I've not done wrong," he said, still troubled.

"You haven't done wrong," Mary answered him tremulously. "No matter how it turns out."

"It's an even steven bet, Reverend, as to how it turns out," the new husband said, imps of deviltry dancing in his eyes. "If Mrs. Sanborn is lucky she won't be a widow until I've finished a job I've got to do."

"I'll pray you may be happy," Calvin Brown said to the bride.

A twisted ironic smile touched Mary's pale lips. "I'm sure I shall be," she returned. "As happy as I deserve."

To the minister Cole spoke with a disarming smile: "Both Mrs. Sanborn and I are very much obliged to you for what you've done."

Cole followed Brown into the corridor and pressed a gold piece into the hand of the preacher. The latter rejected it, abruptly.

"No. I don't want money for what I did. I wouldn't feel right about taking it, under the circumstances. I'll ask you to treat her well. I'm disturbed about this marriage. Remember she's a young girl, sweet and good and unused to men like you. Be kind to her, no matter how harshly you treat the rest of the world. Protect her—guard her—from your own evil ways as well as from others who would harm her. Do that, and may God forgive you your sins."

"I aim to do just that," Cole said simply.

Something in the way he made his simple promise lifted a load from the heart of the minister. After all, while the light holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return, he reflected.

Sanborn walked back into the room and shut the door. Mary's gaze followed his light footed movements.

He did not try to reassure her with pledges, but came to business in a matter of fact voice.

"We've got to make plans," he said. "Chet will be on the prod soon as he learns this, and I've got to light out. Can't take you with me. That's sure. There's going to be heap much war in the hills. Can't hide you anywhere in this country where he won't find you. Question is, what are we going to do with you?"

Cole thought he knew the answer, but he felt it more courteous to let her join in the decision.

"If you can't take me with you and if you can't hide me——"

"Nothing left for you to do but run away until Chet and I have finished our rumpus. I'll get you to Red Circle and you can take a train back home."

Mary had forgotten her fear of him. It was swallowed up in disappointment. Had it come to this already, that the only result of her mad marriage was to leave two wolves to fight over her property? If she left the country, it would be as good as forfeiting her rights.

"I'm not going," she said bluntly. "The Lazy B ranch is mine. I thought you meant to try to save it for me."

"Sure enough," he assented. "You ought to be here on the ground. It would look a lot better. That's a fact. If it were safe. But I can't protect you from Chet. Not yet. I've got to gather what men I can. It will take time. We'll be on the dodge till I get ready to make my play."

"I can see that," she agreed. "But I can see another thing, too. If I run away every one will think I've abandoned my claim to the ranch. I have to stay here and let people know you represent me. Don't you see that's necessary to make your cause a good one?"

He saw it, plainly enough. If she ran away, the public would regard the quarrel merely as a dog and cat fight between him and Radbourne. To build up opinion on her side and his she had to stay. But could she do this without being gathered in again by the long arm of her guardian?

"I'm not going back home," Mary went on, a sharp decision in her voice. "That would be to give up the fight. Maybe you're sorry you went into this. Maybe you want to back out. If you do, say so. You can have the marriage annulled and tell Mr. Radbourne you're sorry."

He smiled at the challenge flung at him so flatly. She was so young and slim, so full of spirit. And she had cut through to the essential fact that they could not win unless she stayed on the ground. There was a risk for her if she remained within reach, but Cole thought he knew a way to minimize it. Moreover, there was no use ignoring the fact that she could not fling down a defiance to Radbourne without running some risk. That was in the cards.

"You're sure you want to stick it," he said. "You know Chet and his hellions. I'll protect you all I can, but it won't be possible for me to be staying around town all the time."

"With whom can you leave me?" she asked, brushing aside his protest.

He gave that consideration. The office holders at Jonesboro were Radbourne men. His mind eliminated them. The Rev. Calvin Brown had not enough force in his personality and, anyhow, he was a bachelor. There was Hal Peters, a lawyer, an honest man with courage enough openly to disapprove of Radbourne's venal clique. His wife was a lady much respected in the best circles of the town. Cole had never met her. He was barred from meeting women of her kind because he was a semi-professional gambler and a bad man. But she was known to be generous and might respond to an appeal from a helpless girl. It would be worth trying.

He told Mary what was in his mind. At his suggestion she wrote a note. The small son of the landlord carried it.

"I'm not so sure we won't have Chet checkmated far as you are concerned," Cole said cheerfully. "I wouldn't trust him any more than I would a rattler. He's poison. In the hills there are graves of several men he has dryguleched. But a young lady, under the care of Mrs. Peters, if she will take you, would be different. Very likely he would lay off until he had got me."

"What are your plans for yourself?" Mary asked. It came to her with an odd sense of strangeness that the movements of Boone county's leading desperado now intimately concerned her—and an hour ago she had never seen him.

"I'll gather what wild devils are footloose in this country," he said easily. "Chet has made enemies. Plenty of 'em. I'm expecting two lads here tonight. They'll do to ride the river with, both of 'em. Before we leave town I'll make a play before Haskell. I want word to travel through this country that I'm on the war path against Chet. I want it known I've called his bluff that he's the big boss."

"Is it a bluff?" the girl asked. "Isn't what you are doing really the bluff?"

"Maybe so. We'll see if I can make it stick. No use fooling ourselves. I don't claim I can. It's heavy odds I can't. But I aim to take a whirl at it. Soon as I can, if things break my way, I'll call for the showdown." He stopped, frowning at her. "There's another thing. If we play a game we've got to play it so as to fool our enemies. You'll have to call me Cole and I'll call you Mary. Before I leave town I'll fix it so as to kiss you before folks."

"Will that be necessary?" she asked in a small voice.

"Yes. We're aiming to pull public opinion our way. Love at first sight, and all that sort of thing," he added dryly.

His curt manner, so entirely divorced from sentiment, relieved her apprehensions and at the same time stirred feminine resentment.

"All right," Mary said, as indifferently as she could. "If it has to be. A stage kiss."

"That's right. If I act like I meant it, you'll understand. It will have to be done right."

Autumn Social Season Opens in City Today

Weddings and Benefits Get Attention.

Valentine's son and daughter-in-law, who have a summer home close to hers. In another fortnight Mrs. Valentine will be returning to Chicago for the winter.

At 6:40 this morning members of the Longmeadow Hunt will ride forth from the kennels on Winnetka avenue for the first hunt of the season, and from now on the hunt will meet informally every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday morning.

Many Parties Tonight at Country Clubs.

The Weymouth Kirklands' debutante daughter, Eleanor, will be entertained this evening at a party Frederic Lewis Macfarlane, son of the W. E. Macfarlanes, is having for her at the Knollwood club. After cocktails at the Macfarlane home on Westminster road in Lake Forest, Mr. Macfarlane and his guests will proceed to the club, where they will join in the dinner dancing.

The Knollwood party is expected to be especially festive since it is a part of the long Labor day week-end celebration which will include competitions for the John F. L. Curtis golf trophy. At most of the country clubs in and about the city there are parties tonight and again on Monday evening.

The Barrington Hills Country club will wind up the exhibition tennis matches that will open its two new courts this afternoon with a dinner-dance this evening.

From a tennis point of view the week-end will be an especially busy one at the Skokie club, for the North Shore Tennis league men's tournament is to begin this afternoon on the club courts and continue through tomorrow and Monday. The competition will draw entries from Knollwood, Exmore, Indian Hill, the Country Club of Evanston, the Evanston Tennis club, and Shawnee as well as Skokie. The finals are scheduled for Sept. 9.

Members of the Indian Hill club will begin holiday festivities this evening with a dinner-dance.

It will be strictly men's day out at the Chicago Golf club in Wheaton on Labor day, but the entire membership and their guests have been notified of a special holiday party to be held this evening.

Charles S. Deweys Jr. Are Parents of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr. are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son Thursday night at the Presbyterian hospital. The baby is the first child of Mr. Dewey and the former Marjorie Sawyer Goodman. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, and his great-grandparents on the maternal side are Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman.

The infant will be christened Anthony Sawyer Dewey, receiving his middle name from the maiden name of Mrs. Dewey Jr.'s paternal grandmother and from her own father, whose middle name was Sawyer.

Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, who returned just yesterday from the east, will have as her guest over the holiday week-end Mrs. Charles Cushing, who has been visiting the last week with her father and stepmother, the Albert E. Goodriches. With her two little girls back in New York after lengthy sightseeing on the Fair grounds, Mrs. Cushing expects to spend at least a week in Lake Forest visiting old friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Robinson are having a house party for Miss Helen Jeffries and her sister, Virginia, this week-end at their summer place at Dune Acres in Indiana. The party is more or less of a farewell for Helen since she is leaving Highland Park next week for the east to sail for England, where she will spend a year in study. Helen and Virginia are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries.

Hollywood

BY SIDNEY SKOLSKY.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 31.—Adrian is the man who makes the gowns you admire on the actresses when you see a flicker. His name is on practically every Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, for he is the costume designer.

He designs and makes the dresses that Greta Garbo, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, etc., wear, and you're not the only one who likes the dress and wants it.

Often one of the stars will go to the studio after a picture is finished and purchase the gown for her own use.

Here is how Adrian works and dresses a film: A new picture is about to get started and the script is sent to him. He rarely reads movie scenarios now. He has learned that while he reads the script the action takes place in the south of France and, even while he is reading it, they may be changing the locale to Alaska.

He has the script read for him by a member of the wardrobe department. A costume plot is outlined for him; that is the only part of the script which really interests him. It is also noticed, if there is any eccentric action, if any unusual occurrences take place while the heroine is wearing the dress.

If the heroine is to jump into a pool or do some other freak thing he must design a gown for that scene to make allowance for the action.

After he has studied the costume plot he makes a quick drawing of a sketch. Then he calls for the star who is to wear the dress and discusses it with her. She makes her suggestions.

Then Adrian makes an exact pattern of the dress in muslin. Again the star comes to his office, tries on the dress, and discusses it.

Each star has her own idiosyncrasy when it comes to ordering a gown and trying it on. Joan Crawford's favorite color is blue. Adrian has learned that if he presents a sketch of a dress and the drawing is in blue, Crawford will like it. Joan likes tight fitting gowns that silhouette her figure. She will come back again and again and have the dress altered until it pleases her.

Joan always brings a gang with her when she comes for a fitting. She will bring some friends, or the director, or even an electrician from the set. The dress that Crawford made most popular was the "Letty Lynton" dress with the puffed sleeves.

Norma Shearer pays almost as much attention to getting the right dress as she does to learning her rôle. She doesn't come for a fitting with many people, but she stays longer than any other actress.

Greta Garbo doesn't like to come alone for a try-on of a gown. She always brings a friend. Garbo doesn't care about what the trend in fashion is, as most of the actresses do. She likes more revolutionary things. "She," says Adrian, "reacts to gowns emotionally. I am able to go further and create costumes with her."

Adrian hails from Naugatuck, Conn., where he was born March 3, 1904. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 155 pounds, although he appears to be thin. He has brown hair, brown eyes, is a natty dresser, going in for color schemes, and chews gum while working.

He always wanted to be an artist. He started to draw when he was 3. Then he mainly painted animals. He went to New York when 17 and studied art. Then he went to Paris. It was there that he got his first opportunity.

For the big annual costume ball in Paris he designed a gown for the girl he accompanied. He noticed a man looking at the girl. He learned that the man was Irving Berlin. Adrian went over to speak to him. Berlin told him that he admired the costume. The result was that Adrian designed some costumes for the second and third Music Box Revues.

This was his first important work. He then came to the attention of Mrs. Rudolph Valentino—Natacha Rambova. She brought him to Rudolph and he was hired to make all of Valentino's clothes. This was how he came to Hollywood.

BY MARY MEADE.

"I just can't understand why this recipe doesn't come out the same every time when I follow it exactly," laments Mrs. Housewife as she gazes upon a disconsolate cake, freshly baked but already weary of life.

Perhaps, Mrs. H. W., your method of mixing varies, or more likely it's because sometimes you pack the flour down more than usual or measure some air in with that half cup of butter. If you have an opportunity sometime, just have a peak in at one of the scientific recipe testing kitchens, where perfect products are the rule and not the exception. All the ingredients get themselves weighed on a gram scale, even eggs and baking powder, so that the recipes to be passed on to you will be pluperfect in accuracy. In other words, cooking there is done by weight, rather than by measure.

And, while I'm not recommending that you go in for grams and milligrams with these professional devices, there is a scale on the market, at but little more than the price of a good kitchen scale, which measures ingredients as it weighs them. This procedure actually saves time, for there's less work to be done, as well as fewer utensils dirtied. You dump sugar into the weighed bowl until the scale indicates that the correct cuppage is there, then add butter until the proper weight [corresponding to the measure in your recipe] is reached. The same with liquids and flour. And, what's more, you don't even have to remember that 4 cups of flour weigh 1 pound or that 2 cups of butter or sugar or liquids also measure up to a pound, for the weight of each of these ingredients is marked in a different color on the scale. In fact, with such a scale many cooks find that they can "watch their weight" and watch at the same time a good share of their cookery failures sneak out the kitchen door.

And, to answer the riddle, "When is a biscuit not a biscuit?" we submit, "When it's a biscuit cup." It's also the answer when you're puzzling for a new way in which to serve up creamed foods.

Biscuit Cups.

Prepare a recipe of baking powder biscuit dough, roll out, and cut into small biscuits. To form the cup, place one thin biscuit in the bottom of a large greased muffin tin, then arrange around it three more biscuits against the sides, with edges touching. Prick with a fork. Bake these from 12 to 15 minutes in a moderate oven [375 degrees F.].

We've gleefully spread the news before about cakes which don't need frosting—the sort upon which the icing is spread over the batter and baked with the cake. But here's a member of the same clan with an entirely different set of ingredients.

Cake Topping.

[To Be Baked on the Cake Batter.]
1-3 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup finely chopped figs

Combine the ingredients and sprinkle over a plain cake batter. Bake, until the cake is done, in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

Inspiration of the Butcher Boy

WOMAN'S AND MISS' "BUTCHER BOY" FROCK.

Besides being one of the smarest frocks you can have just now, it's extremely youthful and easy to make. Choose one of the new lightweight tweeds in brown with gold threads and use gold buttons on the blouse. Use brown velveteen for the collar, cuffs and pocket trim. Or you might like the blouse and skirt to contrast, as brown and yellow checked wool for the skirt with the blouse of plain brown wool trimmed with a checked wool.

The pattern, No. 3317, comes in sizes 14, 16 and 18 years and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure.

Mothers Must Have Tricks at Their Disposal

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A mother has to be like a conjurer. She must have many tricks in her bag and be quick witted enough to know how to use them.

One that we have often mentioned is tact, not coaxing or wheedling, but tact. Tact is the quality which helps a mother to know when to avoid making an issue of things, when to change the subject, when to divert a child's attention instead of giving direct commands. It is a very important quality for anyone to posses who deals intimately with children.

What are some of the other tricks a mother needs?

She must be able to judge when is the time to talk and when to be silent.

She must know how to gain a child's confidence and keep it.

She must master the trick of correcting without crossness.

She must learn the trick of putting on a mask, of not showing emotion when it would be bad for her child if she did, such as letting him know she is shocked or disapproving when he is telling her things she needs to know, or letting him see her worry when he is ill.

She must learn the trick of smiling and seeming cheerful when she is not so inside.

She must learn the trick of changing the topic of conversation when it is not suitable for her children's ears.

She must be able to summon a joke or a funny expression or a "once upon a time" at the psychological moment.

She must know when she can laugh her child out of a mood and when she must take him seriously.

Oh, there should be more tricks in a mother's bag than in that of any conjurer.

The one about which we have a special fully written booklet is tact. "Is Tact in Your Bag of Tricks?" will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—The secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau Jr., left today to join his family in their summer home at Fishkill, N. Y. He will remain there over Labor day.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the secretary of commerce, entertained at tea this afternoon, another one of the series of entertainments she is giving for her daughter, Mrs. David R. Coker of Hartsville, N. C.

The first secretary of the Spanish embassy, Don Luis de Olivares, has gone to Newport.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. George Djamgaroff arrived on the Europa. While touring Europe they visited Grand Duke and Grand Duchess Cyril at their château at St. Briac.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wickersham of this city will return to their country home at Lawrence about Sept. 14 from the Malvern, Bar Harbor, where they have been stopping two months.

Mrs. Peter G. Gerry returned yesterday to Providence.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

MARATHON BIDDING.

The following hand was very skilfully bid to a grand slam—but it took time to get there. The contract was fulfilled because West did not hold Q x x in spades—they were divided 2-1—and there was no first round ruff. The North hand, dealer, held—

Sp. J 10 9 x x x Di. Q x x
Hr. —— Cl. A Q x x

and South contributed—

Sp. A K x x Di. A K x x x
Hr. K x x x Cl. ——

North and East passed. South bid one diamond, which West, not being vulnerable, overcalled with a heart. One Spade by North, showing some real values since he overcalled an overcall. Two clubs by East, hoping to interfere with the bidding and in support of his partner's attempt to do so. Both these overcalls in hearts and clubs were near psychics, made in desperation on weak six-card suits. After this East and West made no further bids. The bidding proceeded as follows from this point:

South. Three spades. A force showing tremendous spade support and more than three primary tricks for the opening bid; also, by implication, confirms the soundness of the diamond suit.

North. Four diamonds. Shows at least one high diamond as good as the queen with normal support for a five-card suit.

South. Five clubs. A cue bid. He realizes that a small slam is beyond doubt and hopes to eliminate losers down to the point of reaching a grand slam.

North. Five hearts. Having the ace of clubs, he knows that South's cue bid shows a void and makes a second cue bid himself.

South. Five spades. Reaffirming his powerful control of that suit, telling North not to slow up because his spades lack tops.

North. Six diamonds. Still fears to rebid his spades on account of their weakness in top cards. He assumes naturally that South will credit him with at least the queen and thus perhaps wrongly count on that suit being solid between them.

South. Seven spades. He realizes that his partner is worried about the spade loser and bids the grand slam because of his knowledge that the spade suit is, beyond reasonable doubt, absolutely solid.

The bidding of this hand required no special brilliance. I give it as an illustration of the value of gradual, unhurried, sustained bidding methods, which, instead of counting high cards and mutiplying their promotional value and so getting a so-called "count of playing tricks," methodically and relentlessly run down the losers and eliminate the risks of duplication of values.

An Unusual Play to Net an Extra Trick.

North hand was—

Sp. K x x Cl. x x
Hrs. —— Di. 10 9 x x x x x

South held—

Sp. A J x x x Di. x
Hrs. A x x Cl. K Q J x

Wernher sat South and opened third hand with a spade. West bid two hearts, North quite brilliantly said two spades, boldly assuming his partner's bid to be on a five-card suit in view of the extremely uneven suit distribution apparent from his own hand. Wernher now bid four spades and all passed. Winning the opening heart lead with his ace, he realized that only by ruffing a heart could he get in dummy for the spade finesse, and that if he ruffed a second heart that finesse might win but still fail to kill the queen of spades, unless a heart trick were surrendered. He, therefore, set a trap by leading the king of clubs, hoping that the hand holding the queen of spades might be the one that was void of clubs and would use a small trump and bag his partner's lone ace. This is exactly what happened. West had Q 10 x of spades and thought he might as well make a trump trick then and there. When the club ace fell, he laid down the ace of diamonds, but thereafter could not prevent the declarer from making five-odd. At other tables this play was not attempted and those that got to game in spades played the hand safely for four-odd, losing a diamond, a club and a spade. One player ruffed a heart, lost the spade finesse and, consequently, had to lose also a heart trick or a second spade trick, making only three odd. In clubs only five-odd can be made, which counts less than four spades. The North player whose bidding contributed so essentially to this fine result was William E. McKenney, secretary of the American Bridge league.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Dizzy Dean yesterday had the extreme satisfaction of hanging up his 23d victory of the year at the expense of the Cubs, whom he and associate Cardinals licked, 3 to 1, in the opener of the three game series. It was the first time in eight starts since the great right hander set the major league strike out record, July 30, 1933, that he has been able to defeat the Chicagoans. Moreover his success had the additional reward of placing his team in a tie with the Cubs for second place in the National league standings, 5½ games behind the Giants.

The Cubs with their one run made the same quota that they hung up in their last three games with the Giants, the difference being that their pitching was far from the excellent quality enjoyed in the two games with the Giants in which one run was enough to win. Guy Bush allowed nine hits and three runs in the first six innings, which was only one run less than the Giants made all four of the days they were here in the recent heroic series.

Tinning, Weaver Effective.

The attack on Bush included a triple by Orsatti in the fourth and a double by Collins in the fifth. Tinning pitched the eighth and allowed one hit, and the Cards didn't get the ball out of the infield off Weaver in the ninth.

The run which enabled the Chicagoans to avert a shutout was Gabby Hartnett's 17th homer which led off the fifth.

Dean pitched a much more leisurely game than usual, bearing down only when his sangfroid had got him into minor jams. The Cubs had two runners on with two out in the sixth, two on with one out in the seventh, and two on with none out in the eighth. It was on these occasions that Dean bore down a bit, with the result that the gents who rushed up to supply the big punch were utterly helpless.

Martin, Medwick Waste Hits.

Martin and Medwick wasted singles in the first inning and Whitehead and Dean linked up a couple of singles to no avail with two out in the second. In the third Frisch reached first on Galan's error, only to be mowed down in a double play started by Galan on receipt of Medwick's grounder.

The Cards broke through with the first run of the game with one out in the fourth. Delancey knocked a single over second and Orsatti then lined a triple to right center, scoring Delancey. Galan threw out Whitehead, Orsatti

THE WINNERS? 79,432 FANS WHO SAW THE GAME

Joe Laws of Iowa, half back for the College All-Stars, breaks through the line for a gain in first quarter of battle with Chicago Bears last night at Soldiers' field. Among the players whose numbers are visible are Link Lyman of Bears (12), Joe Zeller of Bears (17), Frank Walton, Pittsburgh (24), Jules Carlson of Bears (20), and Bill Hewitt of Bears (56), at right).

Name Rainbow Defender of America's Cup

Newport, R. I., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Rainbow, the America's Cup yacht sailed and managed by Harold S. Vanderbilt, tonight was chosen defender of the America's Cup to meet T. O. M. Sopwith's challenger Endeavour from the royal yacht squadron of Cowes, England. They will meet on Sept. 15, the winner to be the yacht that first takes four races. Rainbow will be the fifteenth defender of the historic prize.

Announcement of the decision was made by George Cormack, secretary of the New York Yacht club and of the America's Cup committee appointed by that organization to select the defender.

He came ashore at 7:35 p. m. after a meeting of the committee on the yacht Corsair out in the harbor here. These on the committee who made the decision are Commodore Junius Spencer Morgan; Vice Commodore W. A. W. Stewart, chairman; Rear Commodore E. Townsend Irving; Cornelius Vanderbilt; Van S. Merle Smith, and Mr. Cormack.

Wins Fourth Straight.

The secretary merely made the terse remark:

"The Rainbow is selected to defend the America's Cup."

It came after Rainbow had won a fourth straight victory over the Boston yacht Yankee, sailed by Charles Francis Adams, to one defeat in the final cup defense trials, and after one second, or a matter less than a yard, of their long noses had separated them at the finish of a 30 mile race.

A second at sea is not much. It is about a fine hair's breadth from a short distance away. Seldom has such a race been sailed.

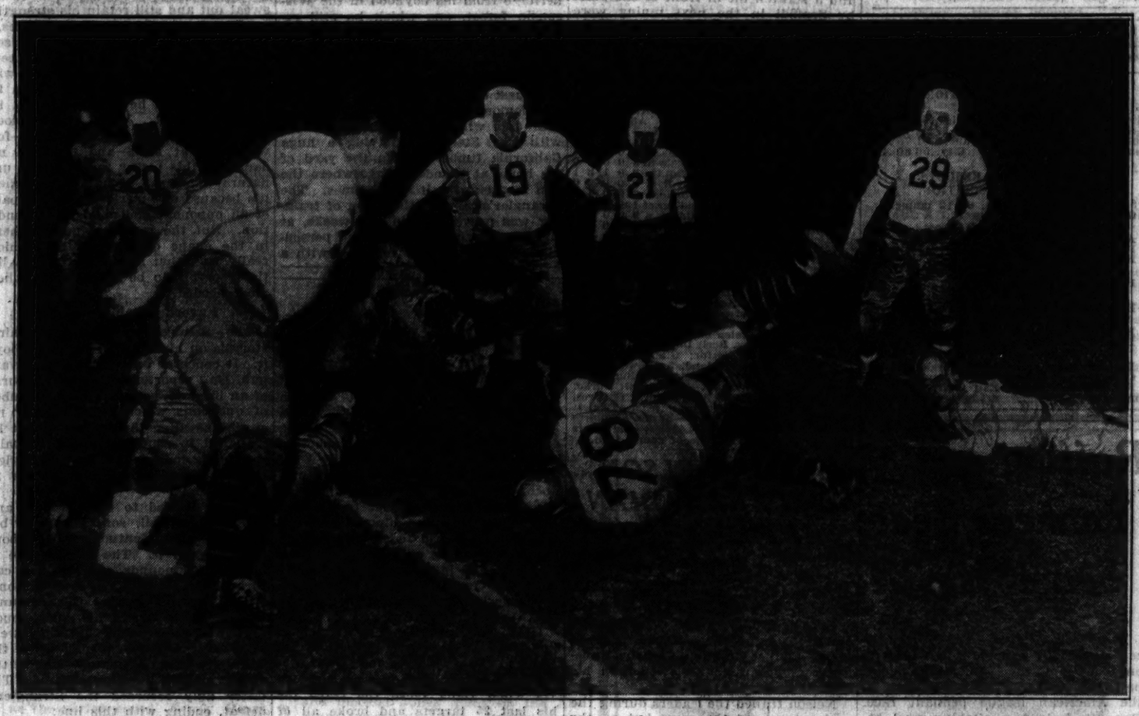
Yankee Leads at Start.

Adams on Yankee had gained the start. Vanderbilt had wrested away the advantage and put Rainbow 1 minute and 33 seconds ahead after 15 miles to windward in a light breeze. But Yankee was out in what many felt was her last try to redeem herself after three straight failures, and to live up to her pace setting early in the season.

There was a 15 mile stretch of kite flying before the breeze back to the international starting and finishing buoy nine miles southeast of Brenton lightship.

Foot by foot Yankee overhauled Rainbow. Mile after mile both struggled on. Eventually Yankee's bow moved up on Rainbow's quarter. Their towering spreads of canvas higher than the Brooklyn bridge became overlapped. Yankee was gaining, and it was a question of distance to go. Rainbow just held out with the last breath of air in her.

One second stood out. Some thought Yankee would be given one more chance, or a race tomorrow, but the trials have dragged out and the committee was anxious to settle the question.



Fred Hecker of Purdue tries to go places for the All-Stars, but is tackled by a burly Bear. Among players in photograph are, left to right: Mike Sebastian of Pittsburgh (15), Jules Carlson, Bears (20), Ed Kawal, Bears (19), Wayland Becker, Bears (21), and Joe Kopcha, Bears (29). In left foreground is the husky George Musso, Bears' tackle. Musso, along with other giant Bear line men, had plenty of trouble with the fast charging All-Stars.

Herman Everhardus of Michigan carries the ball for the All-Stars. He is at the right in the picture. Trying to clear the way, but without much luck, it appears, is Fritz Febel of Purdue (44). The battle, played before 79,432, ended in a 0 to 0 tie. Everhardus was one of many All-Americans of 1933 who surprised the Bears with great performances and stopped the attack that last year won National Professional league championship.

FANS SPOT EACH PLAY BENEATH POWERFUL LIGHT

Brilliant Illumination Turns Night Into Day.

BY ARCH WARD.

The lighting system used for last night's football game at Soldiers' field was the best ever seen at an outdoor athletic spectacle in Chicago. According to coast football followers who accompanied such favorites as Grimith, Schwammel, Mikulak and Bill Smith here, it was far superior to San Francisco's Kezar stadium and to the Los Angeles Olympic stadium in the even distribution of the light. The giant audience was able to follow with facility the details of line play.

The pro team's mascot, a half grown bear, had the field to himself in the moments before the kickoff. The black bear circled the gridiron, eying the crowd inquiringly until he disappeared toward the Bears' bench. The animal stood on his hind legs and guzzled three successive bottles of some potable, probably emblematic of the way Halas' team intended to swallow the opposition.

Bill Hewitt, the Bears' star end, wore his white headgear only long enough to trot up and down the field in formation with his mates, before the opening kickoff. Then he threw his helmet to the sidelines and discarded it for the actual play as is his custom.

After Herman Everhardus, the Michigan back field star, got into the fray he began throwing long passes with the ease of the man on the flying trapeze. His ends found too many Bears in their way to get down under the throws.

The most plaintive scene in advance of the game was that in which Aaron Rosenberg, University of Southern California college star, tried to convince Trainer Erickson and Coach Kizer he was in physical condition to play. Rosenberg's right knee was injured when a tendon was torn while he was being blocked out of a practice play by Joe Gailus, Ohio State.

Five of the 35 players with the collegians were members of the same campus Greek letter society. Tackle Schwammel of Oregon State, Back Hecker of Purdue, Guard Carl Cramer of Ohio State, Back Dave Cook, Illinois, and Tackle Fred Crawford of Duke, all belonged to the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

A picturesque stunt was tried out in introducing the individual college players. All the floodlights on the field were turned off, leaving everything in pitch darkness which was broken only by two spotlights, focused on the center of the 50 yard line where the All-Stars, one by one, took place in the opening lineup, while an announcer gave each player's football pedigree to the audience via the loud speaker system.

In the first quarter Eggs Manske, 175 pound Northwestern end, recoiled three feet from the concussion when he tried to block 230 pound Bronko Nagurski out of a play. Nagurski barely shrugged at the impact.

Music before the game was furnished by three bands, one of them a Highlander contingent in red tartans and kilts. One band represented the Chicago Board of Trade, American Legion Post band, and another the Lawson Y. M. C. A. Other harmony was dispensed by singers known as "Mayor Kelly's quartet," and by Katherine Bennett, soloist.

The approaching end of the straw hat season was signalized by a turnout of 20,000 or 30,000 chaff chapeaux. Some of the skimmers sailed into the air on exciting plays, the fans apparently deciding this was an appropriate way to bring the summer season to an official close.

Entertainment at half time included maneuvers by the band and drill team of the Commonwealth Edison Legion post.

The spirit and enthusiasm of the All-American college football team held even and at one time surpassed the methodical precision of the Chicago Bears, professional football champions, for a 0 to 0 tie before 79,432 people at Soldiers' field last night.

Considering the evenness of the play, it would have been an injustice to either team to have lost. While to the collegian partisans it seemed that the All-Americans were doing the greater gaining in midfield, yet the Bears were twice within range of a touchdown.

Bears Threaten Twice.

Once early in the game two successfully executed passes for a distance of over 40 yards gave a first down at the All-Stars' nine yard line. Here a fumble frustrated an imminent score. Again, late in the game, the Bears had the ball on the All-American's 19 yard line.

A pass intended for Hewitt over the goal line was intercepted by Joe Laws, winner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE silver football last fall, who was a brilliant figure throughout. Laws, thinking quickly, moved out from behind his goal line instead of knocking the ball down, thus giving his team a chance to kick instead of allowing the Bears to take another shot at the goal under the new rules in vogue this year.

All-Stars Try Field Goals.

The All-Americans twice tried for field goals. In the first attempt early in the third quarter, with Pardonner holding the ball, and Bill Smith at about his own 40 yard line, the oval carried to the goal posts, but slightly to one side, so close that many in the stands thought it was a count until the official ruling.

Late in the fourth quarter Smith made another attempt from the 38 yard line, with Cramer of Ohio State holding the ball. The kick was low and never had a chance.

FIRST QUARTER.

The Bears won the toss and elected to defend the south goal. Schwammel kicked off for the All-Americans to Brumbaugh, who came back to the Bears' 26 yard line. A pass, Johnsos to Brumbaugh, was incomplete after both teams had been offside on the first down. Corbett failed to gain at the All-Stars' right end. A pass by Corbett was intercepted by Laws of Iowa on the Bears' 38 yard line. Laws went inside the Pros' right end for 8 yards. Laws went around the Bears' right end for first down on the 20 yard line.

Hewitt broke through and tossed Feathers for a ten yard loss. Feathers picked up a short gain, but the play was called back and the Bears penalized five yards for offside. Laws went past Johnsos' end for seven yards behind blocking by Griffith. Feathers went through the left side of the Bears' line for five yards, but the Bears were penalized five yards for offside, giving the Collegians first down on the Bears' 13 yard line.

Feathers Fumbles Twice.

Feathers fumbled and Hewitt recovered. However, Hewitt was offside, and the ball was called back. Feathers fumbled on the next play, and Miller recovered for the Bears on their 14 yard line. Corbett punted to the Bears' 40 yard line.

Karr replaced Johnsos at right end for the Bears. A pass by Feathers was intercepted by Zeller, who carried the ball back to the Bears' 40 yard line. Nagurski hit center for two yards. Ronzani failed to gain at left guard. Corbett picked up three yards at center. Corbett punted out of bounds on the All-Stars' 31 yard line.

Laws picked up four yards at the Bears' right end. A long pass, Griffith to Skladany, was incomplete. Kawal went to center for the Bears and Kopcha replaced Zeller at guard. Griffith made a quick kick which went out of bounds on the Bears' 49 yard line.

After a short gain by Corbett, Corbett tossed a short pass to Brumbaugh, who ran to the All-Stars' 30

Error—Campbell. Runs batted in—Simmons, Swanson, Andrews, Garms, Pepper. Sacrifice hits—Tietje, Haas, Clift, Melillo. Two base hits—Swanson [2], Garms, Bejma. Left on bases—Chicago, 7; St. Louis, 12. Struck out—Tietje, 2; Andrews, 1; Bases on balls—Tieje, 4; Blaeholder, 1; Andrews, 1. Double plays—Clift to Melillo to Burns, Melillo to Strange, Appling to Boken to Dykes. Hits—Blaeholder, 4 in 2 innings; Andrews, 3 in 7; Coffman, 3 in 2 innings. Winning pitcher—Coffman. Losing pitcher—Tietje. Time—2:15. Umpires—Ormsby and Donnelly.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Les Tietje's luck continues to be all left handed. He lost his fourth straight today in the opener with the Browns, 3 to 2, in eleven innings. The winning pitcher was Dick Coffman, who went in at the start of the tenth to register his fifth triumph of the season over the White Sox.

Tietje might have won in regulation time had not Bob Boken, subbing at second for the injured Hayes, failed to make a try for a pop fly in short right in the ninth. The tying run was scored on that hit. After being turned back in the tenth with the bases filled, the Browns rushed across the winning run in the eleventh.

Long Fly Ends Game.

After Coffman was thrown out on a brilliant play by Appling, Clift singled past Hopkins and went to third when Garms shot a single just inside the right field line. Burns was purposely walked and Pepper sent a long fly to Haas, bringing Clift home with the winning run.

The Sox made their two runs in the first two innings off George Blaeholder, the prominent hits being two doubles by Swanson. Paul Andrews blanked the south siders on three hits from the third to the tenth when Coffman went into action. Boken and Hopkins singled after two were out in the eleventh, but Shea popped to Melillo.

Tietje has been scored upon ten times in his last four starts, two of them being unearned runs. On the other hand, the Sox have made only five tallies in these four contests.

Sox Make No Errors.

The Sox played errorless ball for the fifth straight game, although making a pair of stupid plays. One was Boken's and the other an Alphonse and Gaston act by Hopkins and Shea on Grube's pop fly.

Three hits off Blaeholder in the first inning netted the Sox only one run. Swanson started it with a trick double to short center that bounced away from Pepper. He advanced while Haas was being thrown out and scored when Simmons lashed a single past short. Al took third on Appling's single over second and Luke went to second on the throw-in. Dykes, however, flied out to Garms in short left and Boken popped to Melillo.

Swanson figured in the second Sox run, which came in the second. Hopkins walked and was advanced on Tietje's sacrifice after Shea flied out. Evar then blasted a double against the left field wall, scoring Marty.

The Browns got that run back in their half on three singles after two were out, the hitters being Grube, Strange, and Andrews, the latter a pinch batsman for Blaeholder.

Browns Tie Score.

Tietje's luck deserted him in the ninth. Bejma, batting for Andrews doubled to right, just out of Swanson's reach. Clift sacrificed and, with the infield pulled in, Garms hit a pop fly back on the grass that fell safe for a single, scoring Bejma. Boken made little effort to get the ball and Swanson was too far back to get it. The next two hitters went out, forcing the game into extra innings.

Giants Break Tie to Beat Dodgers, 2-1

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Giants resume their pennant drive in the east today by defeating the Dodgers, 2 to 1, in the first of a three game series. Fred Fitzsimmons yielded five hits in winning his 17th game of the season.

An error by Sam Leslie in the eighth permitted Joe Moore, who doubled, to break a tie and cross the plate with the winning run off Van Mungo. The Giants were stopped until the seventh when Terry's hit bounced over Taylor's head for a double. Jackson then singled him home to tie the score.

Brooklyn scored in the second in a peculiar fashion. With Leslie on first, Len Koenecke topped a ball and claimed it struck his foot. Believing it was foul, he didn't run but Leslie made for second and went on to third when Mancuso made a wild throw into center field. The relayed throw caught Koenecke at first by a step. Joe Stripp then singled to bring in Leslie.

Ruffing and Yankees Beat Senators, 3-1

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Tony Lazzeri drove out a home run with one on today and the Yankees gained a half game on the Detroit Tigers in the American league pennant race. The hit decided a pitching duel between Charley [Red] Ruffing and Jack Russell, and gave the Yanks their second straight victory over Washington, 3 to 1.

Ruffing pitched six hit ball to earn his 16th victory of the season. Russell and Al Thomas also limited the Yanks to 6 hits. The Yankee victory, coupled with Detroit's idleness, reduced the Tiger lead to 4½ games.

Dixon, Michal, Brennan Win Caddy Tourney Finals

Caddy championships that have stood for the last five years were successfully defended yesterday at Evergreen when Walter Dixon, Andy Michal, and Bill Brennan carried off honors in three flights of the 18 hole finals of the course's twelfth annual caddy tournament. Dixon defeated Andy Katulic, 3 and 2; Michal won from Joe Barilla, 2 and 1, and Brennan won 3 and 2 from Bud Driscoll. Match play at nine holes constituted the elimination rounds, in which 142 caddies entered.

JUNIOR WORLD'S SERIES IS WON BY CUMBERLAND

With only one day's rest Ronnie Triplett pitched Cumberland, Md., to a 6 to 1 victory over New Orleans in the third and deciding game for the American Legion junior world's championship at Comiskey park yesterday. Ronnie, 16 years old, a six foot four inch right hander, weighing 190 pounds, avenged Wednesday's 5 to 4 defeat at the hands of Jerry Burke by allowing only three scattered hits and fanning nine.

Cumberland drove Burke from the mound with six hard hits in four innings. Joe Childress, relieving Burke in the fifth, yielded only one hit in the remaining innings, but New Orleans could do nothing against Triplett.

Cumberland Scores First.

Wally Hoewat, star in Cumberland's 4 to 3 thirteen inning victory yesterday, drove Maryland's first run home in the opening inning with a single to center, scoring Charles Clark. Hoewat later scored on an infield error.

Three hits in the third resulted in only one run for Cumberland. Osborne opened the inning with a triple to the left field scoreboard. Hoewat flied to right, Kraft doubled to the same spot, scoring Osborne. Nestor popped to third, but Comiskey singled to right, Kraft stopping at third. Further scoring was prevented when Hodgins threw out Reel for the third out.

Childress Goes In.

Childress went in to pitch for New Orleans in the fifth inning after Burke was touched for two more runs in the fourth. Lewis received the only single off Childress, but it scored Kraft, first batter in the fifth, who walked. Neither team could pass second after that.

A base on balls to Gilbert in the first inning was responsible for the only New Orleans run. Shannon Goertz smacked a double down the left field foul line sending Gilbert home. Gilbert's triple in the sixth and a scratch hit in front of the plate by Scaffidi in the next inning were the only other hits off Triplett.

More than 5,000 fans witnessed Cumberland emerge champion after 30,000 junior teams had played for three months.

MARVIN NELSON WINS CANADIAN NATIONAL SWIM

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Marvin Nelson of Fort Dodge, Ia., today won the Canadian national exhibition's 15 mile marathon swim.

Nelson, winner of the event in 1930 and 1933, swam the distance in seven hours and 46 minutes, nearly three-quarters of an hour slower than his time of last year.

Nelson trailed the leaders during the early stages of the race, but as the cold water took its toll of such favorites as George Young of Philadelphia, George Bladgen of Memphis, and Gianni Gambi of Italy the Iowan appeared to gain in strength. He took the lead around the eight mile mark and was never seriously threatened thereafter.

The victory was worth $5,000 to Nelson.

Bill Goll of New York finished second to earn prize money of $1,500.

Goll was timed in 8 hours 18 minutes as he earned second money of $1,500. Third place and $700 went to the Canadian dark horse, Johnny Cairo of Toronto, whose time was 8.46:15.

Excess Fat Acts as Reservoir for Lewis in Long Battles

[This is the sixth of a series of articles on the career of Ed (Strangler) Lewis, who will meet Jim Londos for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship at Wrigley field on the night of Sept. 20.]

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The tongue in cheek brethren who eye modern wrestling with skepticism invariably are forced to make one concession to its patrons, and that is the remarkable condition in which the grapplers keep themselves, remarkable if only on the score of the strenuous schedules which they maintain. From champion down to preliminary men, these athletes wrestle four and five times a week, a program which requires consistently perfect physical shape.

A majority of them meet this rule of condition by training for a long campaign and keeping themselves in good shape throughout. Others, notably Strangler Lewis, are not content with this system, preferring to augment it with rigorous supplementary work, particularly at the time of an important match. One thing is certain about the battle between Lewis and Londos at Wrigley field on Sept. 20, and that is that the Strangler, who arrived in town a week ago looking in perfect condition, will be at his best on the evening of the match, because he plans an arduous workout from now until then.

Training a Pleasure.

Unlike many other athletes, who find training routine irksome, Lewis regards it as a pleasure to be relished rather than a chore to be done. He recalls, for instance, that in training for the first big match of his career, the one in which Fred Beal taught him a valuable lesson, he ran 15 miles through the snow around Nekoosa on the day of the battle. That may seem to have been a crude beginning, but even today roadwork occupies a paramount position in his training schedule.

His pet methods of getting himself into shape, however, are chopping and sawing wood. This is doubtless a heritage from his boyhood in the Wisconsin forest, one which he still retains, for he has done much of his training at his big camp, Pine Ridge lodge, near Rhinelander, Wis.

The Strangler considers ax swinging the finest exercise a wrestler can take. He demonstrated this more than a year ago, when training for a match with Ray Steele, by having a huge California timber laid in the yard of his home at Glendale, Cal., where the sun might strike it at all times. The Strangler's zest for this form of training was proven within two weeks, at the end of which time he had personally reduced the fifty foot log, with a circumference of seven feet, to a pile of chips. He cites this not only as a great reducing aid, claiming he can lose ten pounds an hour at it, but also commends its virtue as a wind conditioner and muscle hardener.

Excess Fat a Reserve.

Friends of Lewis frequently have criticized the fact that he generally carries what they term excess fat, but his reply always is that this cargo is deliberately encouraged, because in the course of an ordinary series of matches this surplus suet will cancel any taxation of real energy. It is nothing for the Strangler to lose a dozen pounds in a one hour match, and if he didn't have a reserve to call upon in the course of a big battle he would find himself in miserable shape before the evening was over.

Lewis contends that a wrestler who is trained too fine soon finds himself without what is called second wind, which is really nothing more than a dried up condition that eventually affects his breathing. That is his principal argument for a good supply of reserve power, which he can safely sweat out and still retain his strength.

"Watch closely in most matches," he points out, "and you will soon see a wrestler fairly drenched with perspiration. In 15 or 20 minutes he will be as dry as a clean towel. Then in 5 or 6 minutes he will break out in another torrent. When a man does that he's in topnotch condition—for wrestling, at least—and there is no danger of his power fading in an unnatural manner. If he's beaten then it's because of superiority on the part of an opponent and not lack of condition. But the reserve must be there in the shape of so-called fat—which really isn't that at all—but just a little reservoir to be called upon when most needed."

Favorite Training Story.

The Strangler's favorite training story is on himself, but he still enjoys it. It concerns an impertinent Savannah, Ga., reporter who in the course of an interview asked Lewis a number of questions which the Strangler regarded as altogether personal, but he managed to contain himself. Finally the young man said, "Say, Strangler, how do you know when you're in condition?"

Lewis decided to rib the boy, and answered, "Well, son, I have a big farm back in Kentucky, with about 20 steers on it. The biggest one is about 1,800 pounds, and when I can throw him, I know I'm in condition."

The reporter carried this astounding tale as a fact in his story, much to Lewis' amusement, but they were all even three weeks later when the Strangler lost a match which the young man in question covered. The latter duly recorded the Strangler's defeat, ending with this line:

"The steer must have been sick."

OIL MAN WINS TRAP SHOOTING TITLE OF U. S.

Vandalia, O., Aug. 31.—(AP)—From the little oil town of Derrick City, Pa., in the foothills of the Alleghenies, comes America's 1934 trapshooting champion.

Lawrence George Dana, 58, oil producer, who said he "came along to the grand American just to be with the boys," surprised himself and the trapshooting world today by shooting the best score he ever made, 98 from 17 yards, and in a shootoff cracked 24 out of 25 targets to take the handicap classic, the greatest honor the knights of the clay targets can win.

H. F. Pace of Mansfield, O., shooting from 19 yards, broke 98 to tie Dana in the regulation 100 targets.

Five shooters already were in with 97s when Dana faced the traps for his last 25 targets and broke all of them to go ahead of the throng.

McLarnin, at Ease, Discusses How He'll Win

Orangeburg, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin took a busman's holiday today and talked about the assault he will make on Barney Ross' welterweight championship dynasty next Thursday.

The 26 year old Irish slugger, who talks with a slight trace of a brogue, was given the day off by his handlers after going through a strenuous program yesterday.

It wasn't exactly a day of rest, because he arose at his customary hour—7 a. m.—and galloped over three miles of country roads with his trainer, Charley Schoeneman. Later McLarnin and Schoeneman set out on a ten mile walk.

Promises Not to Miss.

"I never felt so young in all my life," said the veteran of ten years of ring warfare, as he relaxed in his cottage a half mile from Gus Wilson's training camp. He clenched his right hand and rubbed it with his left.

"Is your right hand sore?" he was asked.

"No, sir," he shot back. "I'm just thinking about Barney Ross. I missed him with it three months ago, but it'll be a different story next week."

McLarnin was reminded that Ross not only expects to retain his title he lifted from Jimmy, but also anticipates doing it by a knockout.

"If Barney wants to think out loud, it's O. K. with me," he smiled. "Barney's a great fighter, make no mistake about that, but I'm going to prove that I won the last fight. The worst break I should have got was a draw."

No Weight Worries.

Jimmy said he was at a great disadvantage when he met Ross last May. The two fighters had a private agreement that McLarnin was not to weigh more than 145 pounds. The responsibility of complying with the weight requirement preyed heavily on his mind, and he weighed in 2½ pounds under the limit.

"I wasn't overconfident in my last fight," he declared. "The trouble was having to make 145 pounds. We have no such agreement this time, and I'll be at least 145 pounds when we meet next Thursday night. I'll be stronger. I'll be a much faster fighter, too."

Chamberlin Beats Puta for Junior Golf Title

holding third, and the inning was over when Dean fouled to Hartnett.

In their fourth the Cubs got runners on base for the first time. Hack reached first on Whitehead's fumble. Galan flied to Orsatti, but Cuyler beat out an infield bouncer toward third for the first hit off Dean. Babe Herman fanned and Stainback popped to Collins.

The Cardinals were held to two runs in the fifth, thanks to a great catch by Babe Herman. Martin walked and moved up on Rothrock's sacrifice. Frisch lined a single to right, scoring Martin. Medwick lined to Babe Herman, but Collins doubled to right, scoring Frisch, and took third on the throw to the plate. Babe Herman then ended the riot by making a one handed leaping catch to grab Delancey's smash to the top of the screen in right center.

Hartnett Smacks One.

Hartnett's homer got the Cubs out of the goose eggs at the outset of the home fifth. It was a vast shot over the wall not far from the end of the stand in left center.

The Cubs had two men on base in the sixth as a result of two walks, but the inning ended when Frisch made a brilliant play directly back of second to throw out Stainback.

Hartnett led off the seventh with a single to left center, the Cubs' third hit. Hurst flied gently to Orsatti, but Jurges singled to deep left. Hartnett reaching second by a safe margin. Klein batted for Bush and fouled to Delancey, and Phelps struck out for Hack.

The eighth saw the Cubs in even a bigger and better fadeout than they showed in the seventh. Galan led off with a single off Dean's right hand and stopped at second when Cuyler singled off Dizzy's right foot. The runners moved up on Babe Herman's sacrifice. A healthy single would have tied the score, but Stainback fanned for the second time and Grimm, in the rôle of pinch hitter, tapped to Martin.

The Cubs went out in order in the ninth.

Collegians Miss Field Goals in Second Half.

Ed Krause followed the bounding ball and recovered on his 19 yard line.

Beattie Feathers of the All-Stars punted against the wind to Corbett, who took the wavering ball on the run and danced a zigzag route to the All-American 32 yard line. Again a fumble ended the threat. Corbett was hit by three linemen as he tried to knife through center and Chuck Bernard recovered for the collegians. This marked the high tide of the Bears' advance.

At the start of the second half the All-Americans had the wind at their backs. On the second play of the period they backed the Bears to their own goal line.

Mike Mikulak returned the kickoff 35 yards to his own 46 yard line, and he narrowly missed escaping into the open. Homer Griffith quick kicked over Brumbaugh's head, and Smith downed the ball on the Bears' 3 yard line.

Wayland Becker, a first year man for the Bears, punted from his end zone, and Griffith was dropped by Bill Hewitt on the pros' 38 yard line. Griffith fumbled, and the Bears recovered to check the threat momentarily.

Attempt for Goal Wide.

Play continued in the pros' territory. Then Laws raced through the line for 15 yards and, with two smashes by Mikulak, reached the Bears' 32 yard line. Here Smith attempted his first place kick, which would have beaten the Bears had it been at trifle more accurate.

The Bears usually block at least one punt in a game, and last night they showed the collegians they still can do it. Early in the fourth quarter Red Grange's pass to John Sisk, which covered 22 yards, placed the ball on the All-Stars' 26 yard line and set the stage for the blocked kick.

The All-Stars checked the Bears' running plays and took the ball. But when Bob Jones, standing on his own 27 yard line, kicked, Becker from right end drove through to step in front of the ball, which shot out of bounds 19 yards from the goal.

Jack Manders, place kicker par excellence for the Bears, warmed up along the side line. But Manders never had a chance to try his specialty. On the first play Corbett passed to Bill Hewitt, who was standing in the end zone. But Laws intercepted the toss and ran the ball out to his 9 yard line.

From this point Everhardus kicked out and with an additional 15 yards penalty when the Bears were guilty of clipping impending disaster was averted.

Passes Keep Crowd on Edge.

Neither team threatened seriously thereafter, but each, by resorting to passes, kept the crowd on edge. The ball invariably shot off the mark or was batted down by alert defenders.

An idea of the ability of the secondary defenders may be gained by the fact that eight forward passes were intercepted as compared to four completions by both elevens.

Near the end of the game the coaches of the All-Americans substituted so that all of the 35 members of the squad except Aaron Rosenberg, whose injured leg kept him on the side lines, had an opportunity to play.

Four of the six first downs negotiated by the All-Stars were by running. The Bears made their three first downs from scrimmage and passing.

Rival Coaches Satisfied.

The result was hailed with satisfaction by the contending coaches. The pros still believe that had they been permitted to pass from any point behind the line of scrimmage they would have won. The college coaches pointed with justifiable pride to the showing of their players, particularly to their alertness on defense. They mentioned the flat pass by Becker of the Bears which Bill Smith juggled and dropped on the pros' 18 yard line with a clear field ahead.

The record crowd had praise for all. They saw the first All-American team in football history fight on even terms with the greats of the professional game.

And it was a football game long to be remembered.

DREAM OF 79,432 COMES TRUE AT ALL-STAR GAME

BY FRENCH LANE.

A dream came true last night at Soldiers' field when for the first time a flesh and blood All-American college football team—picked by the fans of the nation—battled the Chicago Bears, the professional gridiron champions of the world.

A crowd of 79,432 in happy mood was packed around the enormous horseshoe bowl peering from out of the dusk down upon the brilliantly lighted chalk marked greensward where the vast spectacle took place.

It was a crowd completely carried back to its college days, a gathering which joined and sang the songs of Michigan, Iowa, Purdue, Notre Dame, Illinois, Southern California, and the songs of a score of other schools represented on this team. They sang and cheered to urge the college All-Americans on to greater deeds.

Cheers for All-Americans.

There was no doubt that the huge assemblage was on the side of the All-Americans. They wanted to see the boys fresh from the college campus whip the professionals, but the boys were not quite equal to that, since the game ended in a scoreless tie.

Many times in years gone by has an All-American football team been carefully selected by this or that expert or group of experts and heralded as an undefeatable unit. But never until the idea was conceived by the sports department of THE TRIBUNE several weeks ago and presented by THE TRIBUNE last night has such a team actually been assembled and presented to the public in unified action against the strongest opponents it was possible to find.

To pick this team an army of 165,000 fans, representing all the territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian border to the gulf, cast their ballots, deciding which men would square away against the champions of professional football. A much larger army of fans, one which numbered 617,000, cast their ballots and picked the coaches who prepared the All-Americans for this football spectacle.

Rain Clouds Drift Away.

That's what made the situation at Soldiers' field so tense. That's what made it so packed with thrills.

From every part of the country football followers, lured by the possibilities of this game, trooped into Chicago throughout the day yesterday. They spent much of the time viewing with alarm the cloudy skies and their threat of rain.

At 6 o'clock the rain clouds had drifted across Lake Michigan, and the great crowd began marching in on Soldiers' field. From the time the gates opened these football visitors flowed in a steady stream into the huge stadium.

At 8 o'clock there didn't appear to be a seat left vacant. The 71,000 stadium seats were occupied. Six thousand bleacher seats on the north end of the field were filled. Two thousand other bleacher seats which had been erected in front of the stands were bulging with their human load.

It was the largest crowd to attend a sports event in America this year. The next largest gathering was that of 70,000 which watched the New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers engage in a double-header in New York two weeks ago.

The Bears appeared on the field first. They were attired in white jerseys. Two minutes later the All-Stars ran out wearing gold jerseys, blocked numbers, silver pants made out of satin and silver, and white sox.

The preliminary drills ended at 8:20. Then members of both squads left the field and returned to their dressing rooms.

A Dramatic Preliminary.

Now came the most dramatic part of the preliminaries. The bands stopped playing. Officials ended their powwow, lights were turned off and the entire field darkened.

The All-Americans—their starting lineup—were out again. A huge spotlight beamed down from a far corner of the field. The band struck up "The Maize and the Blue" and Michigan men and women began to shout. Then into the spotlight alone stepped Chuck Bernard, Michigan's great center, to be introduced.

Next came the songs of Purdue and Pittsburgh and Fritz Febel of Purdue and Frank Walton of Pittsburgh, guards on this great All-American team, took their turn before the flood lights.

Now the crowd did go mad with its emotion. The band was tooting out "Cheer, Cheer for Old Notre Dame." Big Ed Krause, Notre Dame tackle, was receiving a gigantic reception. Next came the tune of Oregon State while Ade Schwammel from that faraway football territory was introduced.

Roars Greet Manske.

Even cheers accorded Krause were surpassed when the band started playing "Go You Northwestern." Edgar Manske, famous end from the campus of the Wildcats, took his bow. Back to the Pittsburgh song swung the musicians and Joe Skladany from Pitt, the other All-American end, went before the lights.

Next it was the Californians who were on their feet. The air of Southern California's fighting song came drifting up from the puffing musicians. Homer Griffith, the quarter back and field general of the All-Americans, went smiling into the dramatic picture. Backers of Iowa went wild when Joe Laws was introduced. The band played the melodies of University of Oregon, of Tennessee and of Michigan again while full back Mike Mikulak and the half backs Beattie Feathers and Herman Everhardus took their places in the picture.

Coaches Are Applauded.

Other members of the All-American squad then appeared before the floodlights and received their cheers. The coaches, Noble Kizer of Purdue, Dick Hanley of Northwestern, and Jim Crowley of Fordham, were introduced.

The Bears—the starting lineup of the professional champions—came on as a team. The floodlights located Grange, however, and beamed down upon him. There was another wild cheering session for the red headed hero who will ever be the idol of every son and daughter of Illinois.

Corbett punted and Hewitt downed the ball on the 50 yard line.

Everhardus tossed a long pass, which Sisk intercepted but dropped. A pass by Masterson to Laws was completed, but it was ruled out because the All-Stars' back field was in motion. A pass by Everhardus was intercepted by Manders on the Bears' 43 yard line.

Corbett shot inside the All-Stars' left tackle to the 50 yard line. Corbett went through the line for 2 yards. A pass by Manders was intercepted by Vuchnich on the All-Stars' 40 yard line. Lukats replaced Everhardus in the Collegians' back field.

A long pass by Lukats was incomplete. Hecker was thrown for an eight yard loss by Hewitt. Lukats went around the Bears' right end for 11 yards. The Bears took the ball on downs on the All-Stars' 42 yard line as the period ended. Score: Bears, 0; All-Americans, 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

Becker kicked off to Mikulak, who came back to the All-Stars' 40 yard line before being downed. Griffith made a quick kick which rolled to the Bears' one yard line. The Bears immediately punted out of danger to their own 25 yard line. Everhardus fumbled and Brumbaugh recovered for the Bears on the All-Stars' 31 yard line.

The Bears failed to gain and Becker punted to the All-Stars' 25 yard line. Mikulak plunged for three yards. Griffith sent a quick kick to Corbett, who returned to the Bears' 45 yard line. A pass, Nagurski to Corbett, was incomplete.

Corbett was thrown for an eight yard loss by Schwammel. Becker punted and Lyman of the Bears downed the ball on the All-Stars' 27 yard line. Everhardus punted and the ball rolled dead on the Bears' 21 yard line.

On the first down the All-Stars were penalized 5 yards for offside. Nagurski failed in a wide swing around the Collegians' right end. Nagurski went through his own right guard for two yards. From a punt formation Corbett went through his right tackle for two yards. Becker punted to Griffith, who was downed after a short gain on the All-Stars' 47 yard line.

For the All-Stars Feathers replaced Everhardus and Pardonner went in for Griffith. Kawal went to center in place of Miller for the Bears. Laws shot through tackle to the Bears' 39 yard line. Mikulak ripped through to the 35 yard line. Feathers tried his own right end, but was nailed by Nagurski for a two yard loss.

Mikulak went through the line for five yards. Smith attempted a place kick with the ball on the 40 yard line, but it fell short by inches. The Bears put the ball in play on their 20 yard line.

Corbett failed to gain at the line. A pass by Becker to Johnsos was incomplete. Becker punted to the All-Stars' 47 yard line. Feathers punted out of bounds to the Bears' 18 yard line. Nagurski hit the line for three yards as the period ended. Score: Bears, 0; All-Americans, 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Another batch of eight replacements rushed into the All-Stars' lineup. Sisk hit his left guard for 2 yards. Westray, who replaced Ronzani punted to Pardonner, who returned 10 yards to the All-Stars' 48 yard line. The All-Stars were penalized 25 yards for clipping by Manske. The Bears were penalized for holding, giving the All-Stars first down on their 28 yard line.

Feathers raced around his own right end for a short gain, but the ball was called back and the Bears penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness. A long pass by Hecker was incomplete.

There was a roar from the crowd as Red Grange returned to left half in place of Westray. Nagurski went back for the Bears in place of Manders.

Sebastian Is Hurt.

A long All-Star pass by Hecker was intercepted by Kawal on the Bears' 45 yard line. Sisk ripped through for seven yards. A pass, Grange to Sisk, put the ball on the All-Stars' 26 yard line. Sebastian, who tackled Sisk, injured his right leg in the play and was helped off the field. Laws filled the vacancy.

A pass by Sisk was knocked down by Everhardus. Nagurski hit the All-Stars' left tackle for a yard. Nagurski fumbled when about to pass, but the ball was recovered for the Bears by Kopcha on the Stars' 33 yard line. Hewitt went wide around his right end, but was thrown for a loss by Mikulak. The Stars took the ball on downs on their 36 yard line.

Everhardus was stopped for no gain in an effort through right tackle. Nagurski intercepted Everhardus' pass and returned to the 41 yard line before being bumped out of bounds.

Everhardus lost a yard around his right end. Mikulak smacked center for four yards. Becker broke through and blocked Jones' punt on the All-Stars' twenty yard line. Becker recovered for the Bears. Laws intercepted Corbett's pass on his goal line and ran it back to the eleven yard line.

Everhardus punted out to Corbett, who returned 10 yards to the 35 yard line. However, the Bears were penalized for clipping on the play, placing the ball on the Bears' 35 yard line. Becker got off a long punt which rolled over the All-Stars' goal for a touchback. The ball was put in play on the All-Stars' 20 yard line.

Collegians Forced to Punt.

Two cracks at the Bears' center netted only one yard. Sauer, who replaced Lukats in the Collegians' back field, punted to Corbett, who was dropped in his tracks on the Bears' 43 yard line.

Sauer intercepted Corbett's pass and returned 15 yards to the Bears' 25 yard line. Sauer was stopped for no gain on a buck. He was stopped again for no gain. Cramer tried his right end for no gain. Bill Smith attempted a placement from his 35 yard line which fell far short of the mark as the game ended. Final score: All-Americans, 0; Bears, 0.

HUGE CONCOURSE OF CARS CHOKES PATHS TO GAME

BY HAL FOUST.

There were 75,000 in the stadium and several more thousand stuck in trafic jams at the kickoff of last night's football game at Soldiers' field. Trafic engineers in THE TRIBUNE yesterday had warned fans to go early because there isn't enough pavement for every one to arrive at once. But the world is full of procrastinators. Those who came early had no difficulties. There were 20,000 in the grand stands an hour before the game.

Radios in the blockades of automobiles announced that the pigskin oval was sailing through the electric lighted sky. Drivers honked their horns, taxicabs zigzagged trying to squeeze a few extra yards. But there was little progress. Passengers jumped from cabs and walked faster than the vehicles could move. This was the scene a mile north and a mile south of the stadium when the game started.

Largest In Chicago's History.

Otto Jelinek, trafic engineer for the south park district, estimated that it was the largest gathering of automobiles in the history of Chicago sports, not excepting the Army-Navy football game of 1926 nor the Dempsey-Tunny fight. Half an hour after the kickoff, when all ticket holders were in the stadium except a few stragglers, all nearby parking stations were full. Approximately 8,500 private automobiles aided taxicabs, buses, elevated lines, street cars and the Illinois Central in assembling 79,432 football fans while the nearby World's Fair turnstiles were clicking 100,000.

At the break up of the game Capt. Timothy Howard, chief of the South Park police, closed the outer drive to north bound trafic at 31st and to east bound trafic into Grant park from Michigan avenue so as to give the fans the right of way. Capt. David Flynn, head of the city trafic police, augmented the park force so that there were 150 uniformed men trying to handle the crowd.

Streets and Sidewalks Choked.

But it was just too many folks and vehicles to handle on pavement facilities designed for normal usage rather than such emergencies. Notwithstanding pedestrian bridges, painted trafic lanes, and one way routing, the horde that poured out of the stadium choked sidewalks and blocked vehicles.

As the parking lots emptied, the pavements were quickly filled and everything was brought to a crawling pace that was little better than a standstill. There were thousands who abandoned hopes of a prompt homeward trip and flocked to the gates of the Fair for a sip, bite, peek or look before starting for their firesides.

Thirty minutes after the breakup, trafic was moving a bit but it was still slow. It was close to midnight before the movement returned to normal

College Boys Jubilant Over Playing Pros to Standstill

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

The collegians' dressing room was a scene of jubilation after the All-Star football game last night, the players yelping enthusiastic greetings to each other as they helped peel sweaters and caked gold jerseys over their shoulder harness. The boys flocked around Coaches Noble Kizer and Dick Hanley as the two fought their way through the pawing crowd that jammed the entry to the All-Stars' quarters.

"Our bunch was good enough to win and it was due to bad breaks that they didn't win," Kizer said. "The greatest bunch of kids I ever saw. They did everything perfectly. It was remarkable to have a bunch pull together so well on such short notice. I have to hand it to Dick Hanley. He had the Bears cold. He gave the boys a defense for the Bears' stuff which functioned 100 per cent. They didn't complete a single one of their famous laterals. It was the first time this had happened to the Bears.

Proves Caliber of College Game.

"I guess there won't be so much said about college football in the future. There are 80,000 people who were convinced tonight that college football is pretty good football. But you have to hand it to these boys individually."

Kizer moved into the room with the rubbing tables where his "kids" were having their strained shoulders and ailing elbows rubbed. He patted Masterson of Nebraska on the back, and confronted Krause of Notre Dame with his hand on Moose's shoulder. They laughed happily at each other as the dripping captain of the All-Americans swung a busy towel from one shoulder to another.

"They weren't so tough," scoffed Mike Mikulak of Oregon, the great full back of the All-Stars, whose crashing game in backing up the line made him conspicuous along with Michigan's buffeting Chuck Bernard.

Compliments for Coaches.

Dick Hanley, who coached the collegians on their defense for the pro champs, plunged into the room as the training house doors swung open for a new surge of grimy, grinning players.

"Congratulate Kizer and Jimmy Crowley," Hanley boomed. "They deserve everything good you can say about a football man, for putting on such a complicated offense as that in such a short space of time."

Hanley continued in a lower voice as Kizer paced out of the rubbing room in search of a new player to single out for compliments. "Kizer and Crowley did a wonderful piece of work. I take my hat off to them. They surprised even football oldtimers by the way they were able to put a finished offense on the field in such a brief preparatory period."

Two All-Stars Hurt.

Only two of the collegians received injuries important enough to bring them to the attention of the team's physicians, Drs. Marcus H. Hobart of Northwestern university athletic staf, and William Rothman. The two neither more than slightly injured, are Mike Sebastian, Pittsburgh half back, and Bernie Masterson, Nebraska back. Sebastian threw out his left knee when he tried to make a quick turn to cut off a Bear runner along the side line. Masterson gave his right shoulder a wrench when he dived for a tackle but missed his man.

Bill Smith, crashing University of Washington end, and Joe Laws, Iowa half back, were two players surrounded by their beaming mates in the dressing quarters.

"Too bad, Bill, to have that placement go wide," Homer Griffith of Southern California and Fred Crawford of Duke university told him. "But what a whale of a game you played."

Smith Tells of Kick.

Kizer came up to Smith with outstretched hand. "I want to thank you," he told the Seattle boy.

"Too bad that second one was blocked," Smith told the coach soberly. "I knew that one was going to register if I got it off the ground. I had it sighted right and you know that feeling you get when you know you're going to score?"

Mikulak of Oregon said, "That lineman who clipped me on the jaw may hear more about it later."

Outside of this the bulky Oregon puncher said the game "was a good clean one."

The glummest man in the All-Stars' dressing room after the game was Aaron Rosenberg of Southern California. Rosenberg, a guard who was injured in last week's practice, did not get into the fray because of his bad right knee. He was the only man in the dressing room who was not beaming.

"Not So Tough," Says Schwammel.

"They didn't prove as tough as most of the boys expected," said Ade Schwammel, Oregon State tackle. "But I found Lyman and Hewitt plenty tough."

Just then Hecker, Crawford, and Cook surrounded Schwammel and told the 225 pound ex-sailor that he ought to be ashamed to mistreat the Bears' linemen.

"Our boys charged harder and straighter," said Krause, the All-Star captain. "They were easier than we expected. It was a clean game, but if any one should have won it, we should, and we feel a little disappointed that we didn't. Just say that college football stands supreme."

BEARS OFFER NO ALIBIS, BUT WISH ANOTHER CHANCE

Gloom Thick in Quarters of Pro Champions.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Bears had no alibis to offer last night following their 60 minutes of futile activity with the collegians at Soldiers' field. There were expressions of surprise, of disappointment and even of embarrassment. But none was willing to acknowledge that they couldn't win if the same spectacle were staged a few weeks hence.

However, there was a general atmosphere of gloom pervading the Bears' quarters when they trooped in from the battlefield with Head Coach George Halas trailing instead of leading the pack. The gloom was caused by the fact that the professionals, having been tendered the job of upholding their dignity against an assemblage of collegians, who until a couple of weeks ago were almost utter strangers, had failed. At least that was the way the salaried giants of the gridiron regarded the outcome.

Brumbaugh Plays Through.

The one man among the Bears who was just about too tired to remember what happened was Carl Brumbaugh, the Florida varsity graduate who played the full game at quarter and was the only Bear who wasn't given relief at one time or another.

"Well, it was a surprise to me," declared Brumbaugh as the sweat rolled down on his bewhiskered cheeks. "I think we covered them better on passes than they could ever cover us. They had a good ball club and I'll give them credit, but I know we would welcome another crack at them."

Grange Out Early.

Red Grange, the famous No. 77 of Illinois, regretted that he couldn't figure just what it was all about. The veteran was kneed in the neck in the second period and forced to retire momentarily. When he came back later he was still bleary, as he expressed it, and blamed this unhappy condition for his failure to accomplish anything of consequence.

Roy (Link) Lyman, the ex-Nebraska campaigner who is the daddy of pro football men, was the one exception among the Bears. The big fellow was pleased with a tie. He figured that some of his teammates thought it would be a tough struggle and that others had looked on it as a setup. This diversity of opinion reduced the team effectiveness, according to his way of reckoning.

Stars Surprise Hewitt.

Bill Hewitt, Michigan's former end, was candid enough to admit the game was tougher than he had expected.

"They had the pick of too many men," said Hewitt, but he was laughing when he made the statement. "They had so many triple threat men that you couldn't figure what was likely to happen."

Bronko Nagurski, who once did noble things for the cause of Minnesota, attributed the Bears' failure to score to the fact that the collegians' line outcharged the professionals at all times. He also spoke a few words on the ability of Charles Bernard, Michigan alumnus, and Beattie Feathers, Tennessee, and on the general all around skill of the All-Stars' backs in the matter of secondary defense.

Kopcha Praises Stars.

Dr. Joe Kopcha, the Bears' right guard, had nothing but praise for the fashion in which the collegians conducted themselves.

"They played good, hard, clean football," said the recent graduate of Rush Medical school.

MARMION CHOICE IN HANDICAP AT CICERO TODAY

Illinois Owners' Attracts Fast Field.

Along about 5 o'clock this afternoon, when the field turns into the long stretch at Hawthorne for the last quarter mile of the $2,000 added Illinois handicap, a little group of well known Chicago owners, huddled down in one corner of the clubhouse, is quite likely to furnish a surprise for the racing regulars.

The group will be made up of the owners of the horses which are coming together in the fifth running of the Illinois handicap, for which only Illinois owned horses are eligible. And although all of the owners have been racing horses long enough to maintain an air of dignity when any other race is being run they make an exception in the case of the Illinois handicap. As the horses approach the finish most of them will be indulging in their personal variations of encouragement with which the ordinary horse player greets every tight finish in which he has a betting interest.

There's No Explaining It.

Whether it is the neighbor against neighbor angle which always crops up in the Illinois handicap or whether it is the sizeable horse and horse side bets always made as the best way to settle heated arguments between Illinois owners, that are responsible for this side show the Illinois handicap invariably develops is open to dispute.

Last night few indeed were the experienced handicappers who cared to venture a guess as to the probable winner. In other seasons, when the Illinois handicap has been won by such good horses as Stuyvesant Peabody's Martie Flynn, John Marsch's Chief John, the Reichert brothers' My Dandy, and D. A. Woods' Indian Runner, many have been able to pick the winner. But of the twelve named over night for this fifth running, hardly one could be set down as having no chance.

Marmion Has Following.

Most of the talent inclined to the 5 year old Marmion, top weight at 115 pounds, which races for the Coldstream stud of Oil Magnate C. B. Shaffer. Marmion has been running with good horses ever since he came to the races, and during his preparation for the handicap under the shrewd hand of Jack Howard he showed himself not far away from his best condition by working six furlongs in 1:12 3-5.

But Marmion is by no means a unanimous favorite. J. B. Partridge's Cabezo is well liked, despite his impost of 113 pounds. Pot Au Brooms, only recently acquired by Trainer Dick Watts, has his supporters. And all the way down to Minton, which will carry only 95 pounds, to represent the politically potent Nash brothers, there are racing enthusiasts who have centered their loyalty upon an otherwise lightly regarded member of the field of twelve.

Every Place Counts.

An odd angle in connection with the Illinois handicap is that the battle for tenth place or seventh place is likely to prove just as bitter as that which the leaders wage for the winner's end of the $2,000 added purse.

Those horse-and-horse wagers between the owners are responsible for this. On one occasion several seasons back the horses that came down the stretch under the whip fighting for sixth place were racing to decide a wager between the rival owners larger than the purse given the winner.

The distance of the Illinois handicap is one mile and a sixteenth and is for three year olds and up.

Following are horses in order of post positions, weights, jockys, and probable odds:

GRAINS LOWER; NEW DAMAGE TO CORN REPORTED

Crop to Be Smallest for 53 Years.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The corn crop suffered further severe damage during August, particularly in states where prospects were the most promising at the beginning of the month, according to reports of the leading private crop forecasters, issued yesterday. As a result of deterioration the crop will aggregate only 1,459,000,000 bushels, the smallest yield in 53 years and more than a billion bushels below what is now considered a "normal" crop, the reports promised. The government predicted a month ago that the crop would aggregate 1,607,000,000 bushels.

With speculators fully prepared for the condition disclosed by the reports, the grain markets showed barely a ripple in response. Prices of all grains declined moderately and corn, on which the crop figures were most significant, showed the biggest loss.

Corn Loses Over Cent.

Future contracts in corn declined 1 to 1⅜ cents with the December contract closing at 79⅞ cents a bushel. Wheat receded ¼ to ⅞ cent and the December delivery was quoted at $1.03⅝ when trading ended.

The market was featured by nervously zigzagging price trends. Trade was light and the selling pressure centered in the September contracts against which deliveries of actual grain will begin today.

The estimates on the spring wheat crop made by the crop experts contained no surprises. The average of the estimates was 84,000,000 bushels, compared with the government's Aug. 1 figure of 90,000,000 bushels. The total wheat crop is now indicated at approximately 484,500,000 bushels, compared with 1933 production of 528,000,000 bushels, and the annual average of 854,000,000 bushels in the preceding five years.

Wheat Forecasts Ignored.

The figures on wheat had little or no effect on the market. More attention is being paid to a probable slowing up in the Canadian harvest as a result of wet weather and the action of the Liverpool. Wheat advanced about ½ cent in Liverpool as unfavorable crop reports were received from Australia.

The average of the private estimates on the oats crop was 515,000,000 bushels. Prospects underwent little change during the month and the average figure shows only a small decline from the Aug. 1 estimates of the private forecasters. It is considerably under the government's Aug. 1 figure of 545,000,000 bushels.

The oats market was lower yesterday with losses ranging from ½ to 1⅝ cents. The September delivery showed the widest loss, as was the case in the rye market, where the September contract fell 2¼ cents and other futures lost less than a cent.

Chief Corn States Affected.

The depreciation in the corn crop during the last four weeks occurred principally in the big producing states, according to Nat C. Murray, statistician for Clement Curtis & Co. His figures showed that the present prospects in the eight "surplus" corn states is 616,000,000 bushels, against 822,000,000 last month and last year's actual production of 1,412,000,000.

Iowa and Illinois are the biggest corn producing states and the crops in these states showed heavy losses. Murray estimates the Iowa crop at 198,720,000, compared with the 261,000,000 in prospect at the beginning of August. He figures Illinois will produce only 167,808,000 bushels, compared with the 209,760,000 which appeared probable last month. Prospects improved in the southeastern states and in Pennsylvania, he added.

The average of the four forecasters on the Canadian wheat crop was 250,000,000 bushels, or 15,000,000 bushels below the figure estimated by Sanford Evans.

ARGENTINA AGAIN REFUSES TO CUT WHEAT ACREAGE

LONDON, Aug. 31.—(AP)—New efforts to induce Argentina to curtail wheat acreage failed to bring definite results as representatives of the governments of the United States, Canada and Argentina met privately today. The discussions were expected to continue, but it was stated that the efforts of the United States to obtain commitments from Argentina, or even Canada or Australia, are not promising at present.

Although the United States has launched its program to increase acreage 5 per cent, it was explained there are various devices to offset this increase if a suitable agreement with other nations is reached. It was said the United States might control production by cutting wheat green for feed, denaturing it or even plowing up some fields. Other large producers agreed to maintain last year's reductions.

Nichols' Defy to Bring U. S. "Crack Down"

Repeated invitations of J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National bank of Englewood, to the administration to "do something" about his defiance of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation will soon bear fruit. The administration, it was learned yesterday, has accepted the challenge and plans to "crack down" on the fiery south side banker in no uncertain manner.

Under the act creating the FDIC, the corporation is allowed to rule that all members must display signs above each receiving teller's window stating the bank is a member. Failure to do so is punishable with a fine of $100 daily for each violation. As the First of Englewood has four receiving windows it probably will be fined $400 daily if Nichols continues his stand.

Refuses to Pay Assessment.

Nichols has steadfastly refused to pay his assessment to the FDIC, contending he did not join it and therefore is not liable. The law, however, makes membership mandatory on all national banks.

Nichols was in northern Wisconsin yesterday and could not be reached, but he has asserted repeatedly in the past that if membership is enforced on him he either will drop his national charter and become a state bank or else liquidate his institution.

Meanwhile he addressed a second plea to small depositors yesterday asking them to withdraw their accounts. Since issuing his first withdrawal appeal a few weeks ago 2,000 of the 4,800 accounts have been taken out.

Nichols told them that were the bank to continue carrying these accounts the depositors should be charged $2 monthly, or $24 a year, "merely for the privilege of allowing their money to lie idle."

Confiscation? Sure It Is!

"Confiscation! Robbery! You are right," his letter states. "We agree with you. But if you won't come in and get it something has to be done. Under the New Deal it is utterly impossible to handle small accounts without sustaining a loss.

"Our President has asked: 'Aren't we better off today than we were a year ago?' Answering for ourselves, we say: 'No, a thousand times, no!' Under his administration sound banking as well as sound industry is fighting for its very existence.

"Something is radically wrong with an economic program that with one hand pours billions of our taxpayers' money into busted banks and industry, while with the other hand sets up barriers which make it next to impossible for conservative, well managed institutions to exist.

"There are plenty of lame ducks who will be glad to get your money, but if the time has come when sound banking no longer has a place in our economic structure, I am sure you will be far better off to take your money and bury it."

Withdrawal of the accounts has lessened work of the bank's staf to a point where "we are now well within Hughie's 40 hour week," Banker Nichols declares. "I hope they are satisfied on that score."

FRENCH WHEAT CONTROL FAILS; NEW PLAN TRIED

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A breakdown in the French wheat control today caused the cabinet to approve a revised plan to handle the 110,000,000 bushel surplus, which is disrupting the market.

The cabinet decided the situation was almost as serious as that of a year ago, and was, in fact, made worse by the failure of price fixing and the millers' open defiance of the government, the millers having said that they intended to operate according to the law of supply and demand.

The present surplus is about one-third the annual French consumption. The government intends to seek a more strict enforcement of milling regulations, an increase of exports, and an encouragement of stock feeding to maintain the official price of $1.95 a bushel, which farm authorities say has been disregarded throughout the country.

France had hoped to pay her adverse balance of trade with Germany with surplus wheat, but now Germany is expected to buy Russian grain.

RAIL EQUIPMENT ORDERS EXCEED LAST TWO YEARS

On Aug. 1 class I. railroads in the United States had 13,755 new freight cars on order, compared with 1,187 a year ago and 1,572 two years ago, it was announced yesterday by the American Railway association.

There were 85 new steam locomotives and 107 new electric locomotives on order at the same time. A year ago there was only one steam locomotive on order and two years ago there were six.

During the first seven months of the year 9,483 new freight cars were instaled as compared with 1,391 a year ago and 1,646 two years ago. During the period there were also placed into service 6 new steam locomotives and 8 new electric locomotives. In the corresponding period of 1933 there was 1 new steam locomotive instaled and two years ago 34.

FORD SALES RISE THIS YEAR TO 29.3% OF TOTAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 31.—In the first seven months of this year the Ford Motor company sales in the domestic passenger car market were boosted to 29.3 per cent of the total from 20.8 per cent in 1933. The latter portion was the lowest the company ever had since it became of any importance, with the exception, of course, of the transitional period in 1927 and 1928 when models were being radically changed.

Total sales for the first seven months were about 7 per cent greater than those of Chevrolet, which since 1930 had held the sales leadership for any individual line. In 1933 Chevrolet's domestic passenger car sales were 52 per cent ahead of Ford's. That company still holds leadership over Ford in the truck field, however.

Since Ford's 1934 program involved few changes in the V-8 line he was not hit by the tool and die workers' strike and so was able to start the year with an adequate stock of cars in the field, while his competitors were struggling with shortages.

Standard Oil (Ind.) Cuts Price of Fuel Oil Half Cent

Standard Oil Company of Indiana yesterday announced a reduction of one-half cent a gallon in the price of No. 3 fuel oil, effective today, and is now quoted at 7 cents. As previously in orders of more than 150 gallons the price is 1 cent less. Quotations on other oils and gasoline remain unchanged.

MANNING NAMED NEW PRESIDENT OF CORD CORP.

Causes Speculation in Trade Circles.

Considerable speculation followed announcement yesterday that L. B. Manning, executive vice president of the Cord corporation, had been named president to succeed E. L. Cord, who remains a director and chairman of the executive committee. At the same time R. S. Pruitt, general counsel, was named a vice president.

L. B. MANNING.

Cord has been in England for several months. Since then Manning has had virtual direction of the company. Cord officials denied the move was significant and declared there was no change in Cord's holdings or control.

Other Changes Made.

The changes follow several shifts made a week ago. At that time Roy H. Faulkner returned from the Pierce-Arrow corporation to assume again the presidency of Auburn Automobile company, a Cord subsidiary. He succeeded W. H. Beal who was made vice president of Cord corporation and assistant to Manning. H. T. Ames, head of Duesenberg, Inc., another Cord unit, was named vice president of Auburn.

Motor car circles view the latest changes as important because of reports that Pierce-Arrow and Reo would be merged with Auburn, creating a competitor to the Big Three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Manning is regarded as one of the most aggressive executives in the country. His rise has been as rapid as that of Cord. After graduating from college he worked as a lumberjack and then entered the automobile business in 1915 at Tacoma, Wash., as a retail automobile and truck tire salesman.

Came to Chicago in 1922.

In 1922 he came to Chicago, obtaining a job in a brokerage office, and a year later joined Cord in affairs of Auburn. Much of the financing attendant to the rapid expansion of Cord's interests has been handled by Manning.

Manning's interest in aviation led the Cord group to enter the aviation manufacturing field in 1929 with the purchase of the Stinson Aircraft corporation. In 1933 he was elected president of the Aviation Corporation of America, which operated American Airways. He holds various positions in other Cord concerns.

Nash July Registrations 129% Above Year Ago

Registrations of Nash-built cars during July showed a gain of 129.66 per cent over July of last year, it was announced yesterday. For the first seven months there was an increase of 101.27 per cent over the corresponding period of 1933.

U. S. Will Get 1,500 Tons of Foreign Silver

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 31.—The steamship Berengaria arrived today with more than 41 tons of silver bullion consigned to Handy & Harman, dealers in precious metals, and preparations were made to receive 400 tons more of the white metal on the President Harding, scheduled to dock tomorrow. Word also was received that the liner Manhattan had left Southampton with 293 tons additional.

Since some 700 tons or more have already arrived on vessels docking recently, the consignments due this week and next will lift aggregate receipts since nationalization of the metal here to more than 1,500 tons.

Most of the silver on the President Harding is believed to be treasury property, purchased abroad under the silver purchase act, and the metal on the Manhattan is said to have like ownership.

Dealers Get Metal Shipment.

The shipment to Handy & Harman was explained by that firm as being its own property, bought for its own account in London because it could not have been acquired advantageously here. The Handy & Harman silver consisted of 1,245 bars.

The bullion on the President Harding, due tomorrow, is in the form of 12,370 bars. The shipment coming on the Manhattan was described as 8,800,000 ounces, valued at $4,175,000.

Wall street heard rumors today that the treasury had ceased buying silver abroad, such cessation of purchases being given as a partial explanation of weakness in sterling. Silver bullion brokers who watch foreign markets suggested that the rumors might mean that the treasury had stopped buying until the first of next week. Treasury purchases of silver abroad are now estimated to have cost more than $20,000,000.

Gold Exports Continue.

Meanwhile gold continued to flow out, due in some part to the dislocation of the United States balance of payments created by enormous treasury purchases of foreign silver. Lazard-Freres are shipping to France $1,000,000 more on the Europa, which is also carrying $400,000 shipped yesterday by the Guaranty Trust company. This makes more than $11,000,000 sent to France on gold exchange transactions since the franc crossed the gold point earlier in this month.

In addition to the French shipment, arrangements have been made to export $300,000 gold to Belgium.

Two Roads Report Little Change in Week's Loadings

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Revenue freight car loadings on the Chicago Burlington and Quincy system during the week ended Aug. 25 totaled 22,620 compared with 22,654 in the preceding week and 20,600 in the same week last year. Pere Marquette loadings totaled 8,089 compared with 8,068 in the preceding week and 8,340 in the same week last year.

Oil Companies Boost Buying of Distress Gasoline Stocks

Purchases of distress gasoline stocks by major oil companies during September are expected to total 1,600,000 barrels, or 80,000,000 gallons, it was reported yesterday. This is double the estimated total taken off the market during July and August.

The stocks are being removed by the oil concerns in an effort to bolster prices throughout the country. About 80 per cent of the September purchases will be taken from the Texas and Louisiana fields and the balance from various oil refining districts east of the Rockies, according to the report. The total amounts to approximately 5 per cent of all gasoline manufacture allocated by the federal oil administrator for September.

Prices Reduced Sharply.

In the meantime drastic price reductions were placed in effect in east and west coast territories. Socony-Vacuum Oil company cut tank car kerosene prices ¼ to 5¼ cents a gallon at New York, Providence, and Boston, and 5½ cents at Portland, Me. Atlantic Refining company lowered its gasoline prices 3½ cents a gallon at Wilmington, Del.

Retail gasoline prices were reduced a cent a gallon throughout Pacific coast territory by the Standard Oil company of California, excepting southern California and Arizona, where the price was listed a half cent a gallon. The company said that the return of normal conditions on the coast brought about a price adjustment which, following yesterday's changes, places the retail price structure at all points on a normal basis.

California Retail Prices.

Retail gas prices in southern California now are 18 cents a gallon and 18½ cents in San Francisco and the territory it embraces.

Stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum were reported yesterday by the oil administration at 336,944,000 barrels on Aug. 25, a drop of 1,818,000 from the 338,762,000 barrel total the week before. Domestic crude stocks fell off 1,551,000 barrels during the week and foreign 267,000.

The administration said reports from the industry indicate a decline in daily average crude production of about 50,000 barrels in the week ended Aug. 25. This brought the daily average output to 2,530,000 barrels. Imports increased 16,000 barrels to a daily average of 78,000 and crude runs to stills 55,000 barrels to a daily average of 2,635,000.

STERLING FALLS UNDER $5; FRANC UP ON DOLLAR

British Devaluation Policy Foreseen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 31.—The British pound sterling continued its downward course in the foreign exchange market today and sold below $5 for the first time since last February, when the United States devalued the dollar. The further depreciation in sterling was attributed to a deliberate policy on the part of British officials, who apparently have decided to attempt to restore the old dollar-pound ratio existing before America's devaluation.

As the pound depreciated the gold price on the London market reached another new high quotation of 140 shillings 11½ pence per ounce, and trades were reported at as high as 141 shillings 7 pence in the over-the-counter market.

Sterling Down to $4.98½.

The low quotation on sterling in the market here was $4.98½, a drop of 3 cents from last night's final price. The final pound price was $4.99⅛. Sterling closed at $4.98¾ in London.

For months sterling has been selling above the $5 mark. The lowest quotation it has reached this year was $4.86, its old parity, just after the United States devaluation. As the dollar sought its new level the pound shot up around $5.10 and reached its high for the year in April at $5.18⅞.

Sterling exchange was also weak against other currencies today. In Paris its lost 53 centimes against the franc and closed at 74.68 francs. The dollar also gave way against the franc in the Paris market and closed 1¼ centimes lower, with the franc quoted at 6.693 cents, compared with 6.687 cents yesterday. The franc advanced to 6.695 here, a gain of an eighth of a cent over last night's quotation.

Orther Foreign Rates Irregular.

The trend of other foreign currencies in relationship with the dollar was irregular. The Canadian dollar weakened slightly with sterling and closed about a fifth of a cent lower at $1.0206. The German mark eased a trifle to 39.9 cents, but the Dutch florin was a little stronger.

London dispatches said that the weakness of sterling did not disturb the securities markets. Glit edged securities were strong, which was interpreted to indicate that speculators believed the currency situation sound.

The pound is now only a few cents above its old parity of $4.8665 and traders are awaiting with interest the trend of the next few days to see if it is allowed to sink to its old par. With the United States committed to a new gold standard the British are free to manage their currency as they are not pledged to stabilize. Whether their operations might lead to another devaluation of the dollar is a question which lurks in the background.

LAW PREVENTS SALE OF BONDS TO BANK BY RFC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—Because of a provision in the banking act of 1933, the Reconstruction Finance corporation found it necessary recently to refuse an offer by the First National Bank of New York to take over $1,200,000 of equipment trust certificates of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad on a yield basis under 4 per cent.

The certificates were purchased by the RFC from the Public Works administration, which is authorized to make loans to railroads for certain purposes on such collateral. When offered on Aug. 20 by the RFC to the private investment market, the New York bank agreed to take them if, in the opinion of the RFC, this would not be in violation of the bank act of 1933, which provides that no national bank shall purchase for its own account more than 10 per cent of the total of an issue offered.

In asking for bids, the RFC had specified that bids should be "unconditional" and therefore, without passing on the question, merely notified the bank that it could not accept a conditional offer and returned the check sent as a deposit.

TREASURY SELLS 182 DAY BILLS TO YIELD 0.18%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—Secretary Morgenthau tonight announced the sale of a new issue of $75,290,000 of 182-day treasury discount bills at an average price of 99.908, equivalent to a yield of about 0.18 per cent annually on a bank discount basis. Accepted bids ranged from 99.914, equivalent to a rate of 0.17 per cent, to 99.907, equivalent to about 0.18 per cent.

The total amount of bills applied for was $342,426,000. Bids were invited on Wednesday. The new bills will be dated Sept. 5 and will mature March 6, 1935.

Few Exchanges Close Today; All Do Monday

Several of the commodity markets will close today in accordance with their summer schedules and will not resume operations until after Labor day. The Chicago Board of Trade and the leading security exchanges, however, will operate as usual for the half session today, but will be idle Monday. Banks also will observe the holiday Monday. Because both the New York and New Orleans cotton markets will be closed today, the only trading in that commodity will be on the Board of Trade here.

British Playing Aces in World Money Game

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Decline of the British pound in terms of dollars is interpreted by money experts as Great Britain's announcement to the world that her money is going to fluctuate with the dollar rather than with the French franc.

Great Britain is not interested—as are the New Dealers in this country—in debasing money in an attempt to raise internal price levels. Great Britain is primarily concerned in maintaining her big volume of foreign trade. When the dollar gets too cheap in terms of pounds, British exporters lose business, because buyers in the markets of the world are able to purchase goods more cheaply from the United States. Therefore, British statesmen will see to it that as the dollar becomes worth less the pound also becomes worth less.

For months the British pound has been above par in terms of American dollars. Par for the pound is $4.8665. Lately the pound has been worth well over $5 in foreign exchange transactions. This has irked British exporters and there were persistent rumors that the British would shortly take steps to bring the pound down at least to $4.8665.

Now the British are apparently doing just that. They could not have struck at a more propitious time. The United States treasury department faced with the necessity of selling nearly 2 billion dollars worth of bonds during the next six weeks is helpless to strike back because it must do nothing to lead bond buyers to believe that the dollar is to be further cheapened.

Secretary Morgenthau, therefore, must for the present drop behind the British in this lap of the international race for currency advantage through depreciation. He must use his 2 billion dollar stabilization fund to keep the dollar up to its present level.

That would explain why the pound has been dropping away from the dollar in spectacular fashion during the last few days and why the dollar has persistently stuck to its existing ratio to the European gold currencies.

Secretary Morgenthau can't deal with his British opponents until after he has dealt with his bond investors at home.

The British have had long experience in the highly complicated game of manipulating foreign exchange and they know when to play their aces.

They waited until Secretary Morgenthau let it be known—in order to stem the tide of selling in the government bond market—that no further debasement of the dollar was in prospect. Then, knowing he would be weaponless until after the completion of his refinancing program they started driving the pound down.

The French are the third side of this money triangle, but until they are driven off the gold standard they will not be an important factor in the big international rhummy game in foreign exchange.

U. S. SEEKS TRADE TREATIES WITH BRAZIL AND HAITI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—Trade treaties with Brazil and Haiti will be sought by the state department, it was announced today, as another step in the administration plan to regain foreign markets through a series of reciprocal commercial pacts with other nations.

Having launched the program several days ago with conclusion of a Cuban trade agreement, the state department served notice that formal negotiations looking to the formation of similar treaties with Brazil and Haiti will be undertaken at the end of thirty days.

Under the reciprocal tarif law passed by the last congress the department is required to post thirty days' notice of its intention to seek reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries, in order that interested industries will have opportunity to express their views. In accordance with this proviso in the law the department announced that public hearings on the proposed Brazilian treaty will be held Oct. 22, and on the Haitian pact Oct. 15.

Although trade between the United States and Haiti is almost negligible from this country's standpoint, conclusion of a commercial pact with Brazil would affect one of our most important South American trade relationships. Brazil has consistently been one of the United States' major customers in the western hemisphere. The United States, on the other hand, is the greatest single outlet for Brazil's major crop, coffee, permitting that product to enter this country free of duty.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE SEATS RISE TO $52,000

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Reports from Toronto of a further sharp advance in the value of Toronto Stock exchange seats stirred interest in Wall street today. An open bid of $52,000 for a membership was reported, against the last sale three months ago at $44,700. The current asking price was said to be $60,000.

While the climb in Toronto seat values was viewed in some quarters as portending a loss of some speculative business to the exchange across the border it was pointed out by brokers that seat values on the New York Stock exchange have also strengthened since the last sale, about two weeks ago. At the present time, it is understood, seats for sale are being held around $160,000, against $95,000 paid on the last transfer.

Brazilian Milreis Pegged to Franc Due to Dollar's Sag

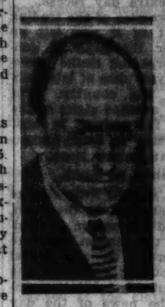
RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Bank of Brazil announced that effective today the milreis will be pegged to the French franc a decision understood to have developed as a consequence of the shifting of the dollar and pound. At the opening market the 90 day dollar was 12 milreis and the pound 59.394 milreis.

ANNOUNCE U. S. FINANCING TO BE EXCHANGE ONLY

Morgenthau Rebuffs Inflation Talk.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—Rumors that the profit on gold accruing from dollar devaluation would be employed in meeting early maturities of government securities were spiked tonight by Secretary Morgenthau with the statement that orthodox exchange offerings would be made on Sept. 10 to refund $524,728,500 of certificates of indebtedness maturing on Sept. 15 and to handle $1,200,000,000 of fourth Liberty bonds called for redemption on Oct. 15.



HENRY L. MORGENTHAU JR. [Acme Photo.]

This unusual procedure was taken because of the fact that reports that the treasury was contemplating inflationary steps in connection with the approaching financing had apparently been circulated through the country to an extent which had reacted adversely on the market for outstanding government securities.

Treasury's Statement.

The treasury put an end to such rumors in the following statement:

"Announcement of the terms of the Sept. 15 financing by the treasury will be on Monday, Sept. 10, according to a statement today by the secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau Jr.

"The announcement will be confined to an exchange offering open to the holders of the certificates of indebtedness maturing Sept. 15 and the fourth Liberty loan 4¼ per cent bonds of 1933-'38, called for redemption on Oct. 15."

Apparently the treasury is in a strong financial position to handle current expenditures, as there is at present in the general fund a balance of $1,361,578,402, after deducting $812,000,000, representing gold profit, which has been segregated. A quarterly instalment of income taxes on Sept. 15 also will go to swell the treasury cash balance and provide sufficient funds to handle current expenditures until Dec. 15.

Regarded as Important.

Unusual importance was attached to the statement made tonight, as it put the department definitly on record as determined to follow out orthodox procedure in its financing program, a policy which has been adhered to uninterruptedly up to this time regardless of pressure brought by inflationists to attempt various expedients.

Rumors that the treasury might stray from the straight path of orthodoxy were resumed after the address by Secretary Morgenthau Tuesday night in which he said that 'ultimately" the profit on gold would be employed to reduce the public debt, a statement intended to establish that such procedure was not contemplated at this time.

Officials here are satisfied that tonight's statement will end all doubt as to the policy which the treasury intended to pursue and result in a strengthening of the bond market. They are confident that the exchanges will be freely accepted.

RETAILERS FIGHT ENTRY OF U. S. IN SHOE INDUSTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 31.—Backing the stand taken by the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers, the National Council of Shoe Retailers, comprising about 4,000 stores, with an annual business of $250,000,000, telegraphed today to President Roosevelt protesting against any proposed plan for the manufacture of shoes by the government from drouth cattle hides.

On the previous day the manufacturers' organization had lodged their protest against the reported project of the Federal Surplus Relief corporation to have tanners process the hides on a contract basis and to have shoes manufactured from them, partly by regular plants and partly by idle factories, which would be reopened under government auspices.

The shoe group contended that the scheme would demoralize the regular channels of distribution, and urged that the hides be held and released from time to time, so that they might be absorbed in a normal and orderly manner.

The communication of the shoe retailers was signed by Ward Melville, president of the Melville Shoe corporation and also head of the council, and urged that the administration call a conference with representative manufacturers and distributors to discuss the best means of disposing of the hides.

STRIKE OUTLOOK GIVES CONCERN TO STOCK TRADE

Market Is Dull; Closes Mostly Lower.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 31.—Wall street traders were burdened with troubled thoughts again today and the stock market found no incentive for a rise in any quarter. In fact, the general tendency was toward easier levels and losses in some of the more vulnerable issues ran to 2 points or so.

The turnover was the smallest in some time, reflecting the preholiday character of trading and the absence of many traders from the financial district for the extra day recess.

Most of the worries of the trading community—what of it was left on guard—fell under the head of concern over the spreading strike movement and other symptoms of labor unrest throughout the country. The tardiness of long awaited signs of the much discussed fall upturn in business invited caution in commitments on that somewhat forlorn hope.

Little Change at Start.

Opening prices showed little change from those of yesterday, in the main, and the slow, tedious course of business throughout the session failed to add much interest to the initial picture. What buying appeared was spotty and without any particular reason so far as the news of the day showed. Some of the group leaders like American Can, Consolidated Gas, United States Steel, and New York Central closed either unchanged or within a fraction of their starting points.

Nominations to the feature division were few and far between. National Dairy Products lurched heavily in the early trading. One sale of 1,400 shares at 16¾ was followed by another of 2,800 at 16½, after the stock had climbed down nearly a point from the previous closing price. Other food stocks were steady. The trouble in Dairy Products was set down to the necessity of making immediate sale of a few thousand shares held by one owner. That is a lot of any stock to sell in this thin market.

Borden Sinks, But Reacts.

Borden also had a sinking spell in the forenoon, but firmed up to finish behind a plus sign. Threats of a widespread strike of power and light company workers in the east had little appreciable effect on the utilities. The group displayed quiet firmness throughout the session. Railroad shares were rather heavy, but some of them showed a disposition to brace up in the afternoon. Union Pacific closed up a point and Delaware and Hudson off as much.

Farm implement and mail order descriptions held around their previous closing levels as a rule. The oils and aviations came in for scant notice and few specialties did anything to justify their appearance on the tape.

On the face of the chart stock prices finished the month about 5 per cent higher than they began it.

SIMMONS CO. LOSES $2,191,750 IN FRAUD SUIT

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 31.—(AP)—U. S. District Judge Fred M. Raymond today awarded the Michigan Trust company of Grand Rapids, as receiver for the Berkey & Gay Furniture company, $2,191,750 in its suit against the Simmons company of New York.

The trust company had sued for $5,000,000, charging that the Simmons company purchased control of Berkey & Gay and depleted its assets through fraud and mismanagement until it was forced to close with heavy losses to holders of stocks and bonds.

HOME LOAN BANK WILL PAY MORE ON ITS DEPOSITS

Chicago Institution Raises Rate to Members.

Announcement was made by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago last night that the interest rate on deposits of member institutions has been raised to 1 per cent a year from the ½ of 1 per cent in force up until now. It was stated that the increase is designed to afford the bank further lending resources from private capital, thus making unnecessary any further call upon the treasury.

A. R. Gardner, president of the bank, reported that the recent acceleration in demand for advances by member building and loan associations in its Illinois-Wisconsin district has brought the outstanding loans to a new peak of $11,789,000. He said this makes it necessary for the institution to add to its resources either by securing funds from private capital or by going to the treasury.

Seeks to Use Idle Funds.

"As long as we have a number of institutions with funds which cannot find sound outlets in home loans in their own localities and at the same time have other member institutions with active loan demand which they cannot supply with their own savings resources, the bank can perform one of its primary functions by accepting the deposits of the one and thus making available further advances to the other," Mr. Gardner said.

"The deposits are not subject to check, but can be withdrawn upon demand should the depositor association be faced with a rapid increase in its sound loan applications. At the time of the setting up of the Federal Home Loan bank system two years ago $14,173,000 was allotted for the treasury's purchase of stock in the Chicago unit of the system.

Treasury Funds Unused.

"Of that amount $4,173,900 has been left undisturbed and provides a backlog of liquidity, making it possible for the bank to offer this demand deposit service to member building and loan associations and at the same time increase loanable resources for the present without creating a further burden on the treasury.

"The decision is in line with the general policy of bringing private capital into use for credit expansion rather than depending upon loans from the government. Encouraging signs that private capital is gradually being won back into investment fields have come to the bank's attention of late. While not large in themselves, these incidents are certainly straws indicating the wind direction."

JAPAN PROTESTS NEW U. S. TARIF WITH FILIPINOS

TOKIO, Aug. 31. [Friday].—(AP)—The Japanese government made representations today to the state department at Washington and also to the government of the Philippines against a proposed tarif agreement between the United States and the islands.

The agreement, it was asserted, under which tarif increases on foreign goods entering the Philippines are permitted, will discriminate against Japan's trade with the Philippines. The Chugai Shogo, Japan's leading financial newspaper, headlined the story, "Trans-Pacific Trade War Begun."

The Japanese consul general at Manila in a recent address said there might be "serious effects" from tarif increases by the islands. The speech was followed by a declaration from the Japanese foreign office that "the Japanese government has no intention of interference in the domestic affairs of the Philippines or the relations between the United States and the Philippines."

GLENCOE LAWYER FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

Curtis B. Camp, 81 Lakewood road, Glencoe, an attorney, yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in federal court here. He listed liabilities of $220,099—all but $5,000 of it in bank loans secured by real estate collateral. Almost all of the assets, put at $90,815, are accounted for by his home, which is encumbered by a $50,000 mortgage.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward appointed A. J. Fitzgerald as receiver for the Dutch Village at the World's Fair in bankruptcy proceedings begun last week. His bond was fixed at $3,000.

The Chicago Coin Machine company, 1725 Diversey boulevard, manufacturers of amusement games, asked for reorganization under section 77 B of the bankruptcy law. Liabilities of $2,5,604 and assets of $31,738 were listed in the petition.

Estimate Drouth Has Killed 40,000,000 Acres of Pasture

Pastures and other forage crops have been helped by the good rains this week in Illinois and Iowa, but it is believed that the corn crop is too far along to be affected one way or the other. How much of the pasture land has been damaged by the drouth beyond the point where it will recover next season is difficult of calculation. Clement, Curtis & Co. queried crop correspondents on the subject and received replies indicating that 10 per cent of the pastures were killed outright by the drouth. In terms of acres this would mean about 40,000,000 as there are 400,900,000 acres of permanent pastures.

Curb Halts Trade in Stocks of U. S. Dairy Products Co.

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The New York Curb exchange today suspended from trading the class A and B common stocks of the United States Dairy Products company due to the failure of the company to maintain a transfer office as required by the rules of the exchange. Two trustees were named for the corporation by the federal court in Baltimore on July 24, under the new bankruptcy law.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 31.—Government securities underwent moderate but broad price reductions in more active trading today. Selling at first converged on the Home Owners' Loan issues, particularly the 3s, but the lower trend gradually embraced other sections of the list.

The market's weakness was said to have reflected investor nervousness over the treasury's new financing plans, awaiting announcement. With only three exceptions all classes of government bonds lost 1-32 to 9-32 of a point. One block of $1,125,000 of Home Owners' Loan 3s changed hands at 98.2, at which price they were 4-32 off. In subsequent trading, however, the issue strengthened and closed at 98.4 for a decline of 2-32 from the previous day.

Corporation Bonds Narrow.

There was not enough trading in high grade domestic corporate issues to lend any significance to their price movements. These changes reflected the trading position of the moment, a fact that was attested to by the small decline in one obligation of a company at the same time that another of the same company and no better secured advanced slightly.

Thus, on small transactions Chesapeake and Ohio refunding 4½s were up more than a point, while the general 4½s were a half point lower. American Telephone 5½s advanced ½ of a point, while the convertible 4½s yielded the same amount to 108½. The same narrow fluctuations occurred in obligations of California Packing, Chicago Union Station, Consolidated Gas, Liggett & Myers, Shell Pipe Line, and West Penn Power. Pacific Telephone first 5s declined a point, and New York Central gold 4s advanced ⅝ point.

Secondary Issues Weak.

Second grade and speculative bonds varied less than they have in many a day, and there was nothing uniform about their trend. Lower prices prevailed most of the day in International Telephone convertible 4½s and debenture 4½s, International Agricultural 5s, Lehigh Valley general 4s, New York, Westchester and Boston 4½s, Pere Marquette first 5s, St. Louis-San Francisco consolidated 4½s, Southern Pacific collateral 4s, and Southern Railway 4s of 1938.

Further sharp declines in German bonds lent some interest to the foreign group.

Standard Oil Co. (Kentucky).

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me latest earnings of Standard Oil Company of Kentucky? On what dates are dividends paid? Thank you in advance.—W. L. M.

Answer: Standard Oil company [of Kentucky], although it has some production facilities, is primarily a distributor of petroleum products. It operates about 1,500 distributing stations in Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida.

Net income in 1933 was $2,458,000, or 94 cents per share, compared with $2,594,000, or $1 a share, for 1932. Net income in 1931 was $3,332,000, against $5,258,000 in 1930. Dividend payments exceeded net income by $149,000 in 1933, $795,000 in 1932 and $824,000 in 1931.

W. E. Smith, president of the company, said on May 17, 1934, when announcing the regular quarterly dividend payment of 25 cents a share: "Improved conditions which were reflected in company's business during the latter part of last year still continue, and the company is now more than earning its dividend."

On Dec. 31, 1933, cash and investments of $13,500,000 compared well with total current liabilities of $3,583,000. Capitalization consists solely of 2,606,983 shares of $10 par stock. The stock is rather high grade.

Dividends are ordinarily payable every three months, Sept. 15, etc.

Selwyn-Harris Theaters.

Investors' Guide: Can you give me any information regarding first mortgage leasehold 6s of Selwyn-Harris Theaters, Chicago? The last I heard of them the bonds were worthless. What I would like to know is who gets the money? I have heard nothing since I was told the bonds were worthless.—Miss D. M. L.

Answer: Selwyn-Harris Theaters bonds were secured by a first mortgage on theaters that were constructed on rented ground. In effect they were secured by a lease of the ground on which the theaters were erected. The venture was unsuccessful. When the protective committee stepped into the picture the company was not even earning operating costs, much less taxes and ground rent.

The ground rent of necessity was defaulted. The owner of the ground on which the structures were built canceled the lease. The effect of that was, in the opinion of the committee's lawyers, to wipe out the bondholders' security, rendering the bonds valueless.

One can only guess as to what happened to the money. About the best guess would be that it went to contractors to pay for the erection of the buildings; to Cook county, to pay taxes; to the owner of the land, to pay ground rent; to labor, to pay for help, and to various creditors who supplied the organization with goods.

THRONG OF 79,432 SEES ALL-AMERICAN COLLEGE FOOTBALL TEAM BATTLE CHICAGO BEARS, PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONS OF WORLD, TO SCORELESS TIE. Largest crowd attending a sports event this year, which jammed Soldiers' field last evening, photographed from west tower of the Sky Ride at the World's Fair. The multitude, singing campus songs and completely carried back to college days, cheered lustily for the first All-American team that was ever brought together and put into a game. Like the members of the All-American team, the spectators journeyed from all parts of the country. Both teams made several threats, but neither had the power to put across a touchdown. (Story on page 1.)
